Dear FOIA Officer:

Please consider this a freedom of information request for the following records:

All emails sent or received by Dean Kilburg, Mark Reinecke, Anaïs Bowring, William Malecki, Richard Marks, Brad Kosiog, Larry Furnish, Martha Paschke, Amy Mayer, Jeff Palmquist and Kevin Burns between Dec. 1, 2025 and Jan. 16, 2026, that include any of the following search terms in the subject, body or attachments of the email (please do individual searches for these keywords if possible):

"Shodeen"

"Dave Patzelt"

"HPC"

If this search would yield a burdensome amount of results, please contact me, as I am willing to narrow the scope of my request.

Please note: I know of no exemption that would allow these records to not be released, absent pinpoint redactions for private information such as Social Security Numbers. If your agency believes any parts of any records are exempt from disclosure, please provide an explanation to justify the redaction or withholding, and then provide the rest of the records. Please note that statute does not allow your agency to withhold documents in their entirety if only parts of the records may be exempt.

I'm requesting the records in electronic format, if they can be provided in that format. Otherwise, please provide the records in whatever format they are kept.

I am a member of the news media doing research in the public interest and request fees be waived. Please call me if you believe this request will cost more than $50 to fulfill.

Please contact me with any questions at mmorrow@chicagotribune.com or (312) 237-6299. Thank you very much.

Best,

Dear FOIA Officer:

Please consider this a freedom of information request for the following records:

All emails sent or received by Dean Kilburg, Mark Reinecke, Anaïs Bowring, William Malecki, Richard Marks, Brad Kosirog, Larry Furnish, Martha Paschke, Amy Mayer, Jeff Palmquist and Kevin Burns between Dec. 1, 2025 and Jan. 16, 2026, that include any of the following search terms in the subject, body or attachments of the email (please do individual searches for these keywords if possible):

"Shodeen"

"Dave Patzelt"

"HPC"

If this search would yield a burdensome amount of results, please contact me, as I am willing to narrow the scope of my request.

Please note: I know of no exemption that would allow these records to not be released, absent pinpoint redactions for private information such as Social Security Numbers. If your agency believes any parts of any records are exempt from disclosure, please provide an explanation to justify the redaction or withholding, and then provide the rest of the records. Please note that statute does not allow your agency to withhold documents in their entirety if only parts of the records may be exempt.

I'm requesting the records in electronic format, if they can be provided in that format. Otherwise, please provide the records in whatever format they are kept.

I am a member of the news media doing research in the public interest and request fees be waived. Please call me if you believe this request will cost more than $50 to fulfill.

Please contact me with any questions at mmorrow@chicagotribune.com or (312) 237-6299. Thank you very much.

Subject: January 12, 2026 Special City Council Meeting Flow & Process

TO AVOID THE RISK OF VIOLATING THE ILLINOIS OPEN MEETINGS ACT PLEASE DO NOT REPEND ALL

Ladies & Gentlemen,

Monday night's Special City Council meeting will be tightly managed to ensure Due process is followed every step of the way. Therefore, below please salient points outlining both the flow and the process of the January 12, 2026 meeting:

FLOW

- I. Opening Remarks by Mayor Burns (w/o objection by Council)
- II. Entertain motion and second to consider Resolution 2026-03
- III. Appellant Seeking Reversal of HPC Decision on 12.16.25 Invited to Speak
- IV. Representative of the City of Geneva Historic Preservation Commission Invited to Speak
- V. Appellant Seeking Reversal of HPC Decision on 12.16.25 Invited to Provide Additional Remarks
- VI. City Council Deliberates Resolution 2026-03

PROCESS

- I. Council is required to consider only the record adduced by the Historic Preservation Commission's Public Hearing on 12.16.25
- II. Council is not permitted to cross-examine or request additional information from either the appellant or the representative of Geneva's Historic Preservation Commission
- III. Please note the wording of Resolution 2026-03 and how the vote will ultimately be recorded; an "AYE" vote supports the request to reverse the HPC's decision of 12.16.25 and grant the issuance of the demolition permit. A "NAY" vote sustains the HPC's decision of 12.16.25 to deny the issuance of the demolition permit
- IV. To reverse the Historic Preservation Commission's 12.16.25 decision to deny the issuance of the demolition permit requires 7 "AYE" votes
- V. City Attorney Sandack is granted full authority to interrupt any speaker, at any time, whose comments are not germane to the singular question we are charged with considering and therefore, risking the Due process essential to the Council's deliberations.

With reference to item I under FLOW, my opening remarks will include these salient points as well as some housekeeping issues.

As always, feel free to contact me, City Administrator Voigt or City Attorney Sandack with any questions.

Mrs. Bowring and Mr. Malecki,

I hope the day and New Year find you both well! As a constituent of the Ward 1, I am reaching out to you both as you prepare to consider the demolition and removal of the Blacksmith Shop this coming Monday. I'll not occupy a lot of your time as I know you both are likely receiving a great deal of feedback from the public on this issue. Just a quick background. My wife Janet and I have been residents at 427 Anderson Boulevard since 1999 where we raised a son (Jonah) and daughter (Sarah) both terrific kids (yikes...now adults!) who were byproducts of the Geneva public school system. I am an architect with a residential practice that has been blessed with many projects in Geneva's historic district. As well I've been teaching architecture at Judson University since 2008. Below are a few points to consider as your mull over your decision.

1) The demolition and permanent removal of the structure will greatly undermine the authority and purpose of the Historic Preservation Commission, a group that has been a key partner in the success of our downtown business district and residential district. I could go on and on with this point but I'll only note that having been a member of the HPC for 11 years (2000-2011) we had frequent incursions with the Shodeen organization as they pursued the removal the East View house, the Dodson mansion (once a hospital) and the many other structures. Shodeen now highlights the Dodson mansion as part of the Dodson Place retail development. The East View house is now the grande dame of homes along Route 31...hard to imagine them not there now. Can Shodeen work with and transform historic structures...you betcha they can. Is it easier to tear them down and erase their memory from our community, I guess this must be the case since they wish to do this with the blacksmith shop, but it's an odd argument to make in light of their successes. Certainly we can't predict the future, it seems likely though, that if Shodeen is given the authority to remove the blacksmith shop, there will inevitably be other applicants in the future requesting a similar fate for other historic structures in our community.

2) The property was purchased knowing full well that this structure was something important and would likely present the Shodeen organization with community interest and push back if they decided to remove the structure, yet little to no effort was made to placate the public that was and has been concerned about this. The organization it seems has done little to acknowledge the significance of the structure and even less as far as giving creative consideration for its reuse. It's clear they can do it as seen in their work with the Harrington Inn, Riverside Receptions and others throughout the Fox Valley.

3) It seems that there has been little to no compromise by Shodeen in relation to the repurposing of the blacksmith shop. The argument that was initially set forward was an issue of the cost of reusing the structure. The argument now has shifted to the structure being a public nuisance, a pretty easy argument to make when it's intentionally left unprotected and further compromised. It's been noted by both sides that the property is "unsightly", yet who currently owns the property? Who has ignored legal and financial consequences?...well you get the gist.

4) There aren't many artifacts like this one in our City, for that matter in the Fox Valley. It's easy to lose sight of this one as we hurdle toward being a City that has great potential and building it out to that potential will push structures like this into oblivion. Obviously once it's gone, it's gone and it's really our one chance to protect it.

5) Geneva has become and will likely even more so become a significant player in attracting residential and business interest in the years to come. As far as cities along the Fox River, trying to be objective about this, Geneva's downtown is and will be the most desirable location for both homeowners and businesses along the Fox River. That said, the long term financial upside for this site is enormous. Our City leadership should leverage this with the Shodeen organization. I do understand that this site is a challenging one to build on, but the folks at Shodeen purchased it knowing this. I believe that this parcel will be a significant generator of income for the Shodeen organization so money spent now for the restoration or repurposing of the blacksmith shop will be minimal when seen through the lens of time and the future.

I'm sure there are many other arguments that can be made for keeping the blacksmith shop but the five noted above came to my mind initially. As I noted above, I served on the HPC for 11 years and I so appreciate and understand the significant commitment of your time and energy on behalf of our community. So at the end of the day you can put me in the camp of keeping the blacksmith shop.

Warmly and grateful for your service!

Good Morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

I have received questions regarding 4 E. State Street from various Council members. As is the practice, I am providing the answers to the entire City Council.

Previous meeting dates regarding 4 E. State Street:

Please see page 2 of the staff report (page 21 of this meeting packet) for a summary of prior meetings including the landmark nomination, charrette, landmark boundary amendment, and demolition request.

Previous discussions about integrating the structure into future projects:

The short answer is that Shodeen was presenting this information to support their previous request for demolition, claiming that they met standard 3 and that the "retention of the structure would cause the owner undue economic hardship". The plan to adaptively reuse the structure was submitted with a detailed proforma to show the high cost per square foot to bring the building to a habitable condition and the low return on that investment. The HPC and CC denied demolition based on economic hardship because the applicant did not factor in that the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site where TIF assistance is needed, and concluded (with the help of a 3rd party consultant review the proforma) that preserving the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site with TIF assistance would not cause undue economic hardship.

Thank you, wishing you all a safe and Happy New Year!

Alderwoman Bowring,

To the members of the Geneva City Council,

Although we live in the 1st Ward, we're writing to all of you because this is an issue that involves all of the City of Geneva: the preservation and repurposing of the historic blacksmith shop on East State St.

When the developer acquired this property, they were quoted in the Daily Herald as recognizing the historic importance of this building and they stated their intention to preserve it. When they demolished the rest of the old Mill Race Inn they took great care to preserve the blacksmith shop which, at that time had been incorporated into the structure of the restaurant.

But then, some time later, they submitted an application to the City to demolish the building. The fact that they submitted their request shortly before Christmas, when people were likely to be distracted by the upcoming holidays, that they knew that the building had no historic preservation protection, and that such a demolition request is frequently issued promptly as a matter of course, one might surmise that they were confident that the request would be granted and the building demolished before preservationists could react.

Fortunately, a concerned citizen learned of the application and worked almost overnight to submit an application to Landmark the old building. That, of course, halted any action to demolish it. The building was then granted Landmark status by HPC and the City Council.

Since then the developer has made many attempts to get the City to revoke the landmark status of the building. In each case the City has firmly rejected each request. And now they are trying yet once again to get the City to reverse itself and once again the HPC has unanimously ejected their request.

We don't understand their reasoning for committing so much time and money over the years in their repeated attempts to get the City to change its mind, but at this point their submitting yet another request seems almost abusive.

This developer has successfully and creatively restored numerous historic buildings in Geneva. These include The Herrington Inn complex, The Riverside Banquets complex, and The Dodson Place complex. Compared with these developments the blacksmith shop is a very small project. In a city that prides itself on historic preservation as an important aspect of its "brand" it would be a shame for the City to cave and allow this building to be demolished now.

We ask you to once again deny the request to demolish this historic structure and to support an honest effort on the part of the developer to restore and repurpose it.

Most sincerely,

Colin C. and Glorianne S. Campbell

Good Morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

I have received questions regarding 4 E. State Street from various Council members. As is the practice, I am providing the answers to the entire City Council.

Previous meeting dates regarding 4 E. State Street:

Please see page 2 of the staff report (page 21 of this meeting packet) for a summary of prior meetings including the landmark nomination, charrette, landmark boundary amendment, and demolition request.

Previous discussions about integrating the structure into future projects:

The short answer is that Shodeen was presenting this information to support their previous request for demolition, claiming that they met standard 3 and that the "retention of the structure would cause the owner undue economic hardship". The plan to adaptively reuse the structure was submitted with a detailed proforma to show the high cost per square foot to bring the building to a habitable condition and the low return on that investment. The HPC and CC denied demolition based on economic hardship because the applicant did not factor in that the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site where TIF assistance is needed, and concluded (with the help of a 3rd party consultant review the proforma) that preserving the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site with TIF assistance would not cause undue economic hardship.

Thank you, wishing you all a safe and Happy New Year!

Good morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

Please mark your calendars for a Special City Council Meeting on Monday, January 12, 2026. A summary of the meeting purpose has been provided below by Director DeGroot.

On December 16th the Historic Preservation Commission unanimously voted to deny the demolition of the historic landmark located at 4 E State Street. On December 17th the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. The ordinance requires that the appeal be considered by the City Council within 30 days. A special City Council meeting will be held on January 12th where both the applicant and the historic preservation commission will have the right to be heard. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than 2/3 of the alderpersons holding office.

Information on the case can be found on the development projects page and in the agenda center.

Please do not hesitate to reach out with any questions.

Anaïs --

That would be fabulous. I'm wondering, though, if it would be best to wait until after Shodeen presents its case, which will be in their petition for demolition and presentation to the Historic Preservation Commission next Tuesday. We'll then have more information about whether, when and how to move forward.

Also after next week, a decision could be made on my possible meeting with David Pazelt to show and discuss the model, as we discussed. Perhaps that should occur before a presentation to the Ccity ouncil. I just don't know the best strategy until after this coming week.

Dear Alderspersons Bowring and Malecki,

Thank you again for your visit on Sunday. I'm glad that we could get together to preview the architectural model of the Alexander brothers' foundry and blacksmith shop and to discuss related issues.

I'll keep in touch, and probably contact you after the Historic Preservation Commission holds its hearing next week. We'll know by then what's in the newest petition for demolition and what the commissioners have to say about it.

I appreciate your time. I think this is important for the community.

Good morning Anaïs, I am Jamie Dwyer a resident of the historic district for about 40 years.

I do believe that this is the first time I have ever written to my alderperson, but from what I have read and heard at the historic preservation meeting of Dec.16 input of the residence is needed. I am opposed to the demolition of the blacksmith shop.

Over the last 40years I have witnessed the demolition by neglect of many interesting and historical buildings in Geneva, I do not understand why progress has to be at the cost of the historic sites .

Alderwoman Bowring,

To the members of the Geneva City Council,

Although we live in the 1st Ward, we're writing to all of you because this is an issue that involves all of the City of Geneva: the preservation and repurposing of the historic blacksmith shop on East State St.

When the developer acquired this property, they were quoted in the Daily Herald as recognizing the historic importance of this building and they stated their intention to preserve it. When they demolished the rest of the old Mill Race Inn they took great care to preserve the blacksmith shop which, at that time had been incorporated into the structure of the restaurant.

But then, some time later, they submitted an application to the City to demolish the building. The fact that they submitted their request shortly before Christmas, when people were likely to be distracted by the upcoming holidays, that they knew that the building had no historic preservation protection, and that such a demolition request is frequently issued promptly as a matter of course, one might surmise that they were confident that the request would be granted and the building demolished before preservationists could react.

Fortunately, a concerned citizen learned of the application and worked almost overnight to submit an application to Landmark the old building. That, of course, halted any action to demolish it. The building was then granted Landmark status by HPC and the City Council.

Since then the developer has made many attempts to get the City to revoke the landmark status of the building. In each case the City has firmly rejected each request. And now they are trying yet once again to get the City to reverse itself and once again the HPC has unanimously ejected their request.

We don't understand their reasoning for committing so much time and money over the years in their repeated attempts to get the City to change its mind, but at this point their submitting yet another request seems almost abusive.

This developer has successfully and creatively restored numerous historic buildings in Geneva. These include The Herrington Inn complex, The Riverside Banquets complex, and The Dodson Place complex. Compared with these developments the blacksmith shop is a very small project. In a city that prides itself on historic preservation as an important aspect of its "brand" it would be a shame for the City to cave and allow this building to be demolished now.

We ask you to once again deny the request to demolish this historic structure and to support an honest effort on the part of the developer to restore and repurpose it.

Most sincerely,

City Council Denies Appeal Of 4 E. State St. Demolition Request

_____ The City of Geneva Development Projects Map has been updated with details about the Jan. 12 special City Council meeting regarding the appeal of the 4 E. State St. Historic Landmark Demolition request.

A reversal or modification of the Historic Preservation Commission's (HPC) determination requires not less than two-thirds of the alderpersons holding office (seven votes). At the City Council meeting, six alderpersons voted in favor of overturning the HPC, and four voted to uphold the HPC's decision.

As such, the appeal failed, and the demolition request was denied.

Good Morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

I have received questions regarding 4 E. State Street from various Council members. As is the practice, I am providing the answers to the entire City Council.

Previous meeting dates regarding 4 E. State Street:

Please see page 2 of the staff report (page 21 of this meeting packet) for a summary of prior meetings including the landmark nomination, charrette, landmark boundary amendment, and demolition request.

Previous discussions about integrating the structure into future projects:

The short answer is that Shodeen was presenting this information to support their previous request for demolition, claiming that they met standard 3 and that the "retention of the structure would cause the owner undue economic hardship". The plan to adaptively reuse the structure was submitted with a detailed proforma to show the high cost per square foot to bring the building to a habitable condition and the low return on that investment. The HPC and CC denied demolition based on economic hardship because the applicant did not factor in that the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site where TIF assistance is needed, and concluded (with the help of a 3rd party consultant review the proforma) that preserving the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site with TIF assistance would not cause undue economic hardship.

Thank you, wishing you all a safe and Happy New Year!

Good morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

Please mark your calendars for a Special City Council Meeting on Monday, January 12, 2026. A summary of the meeting purpose has been provided below by Director DeGroot.

On December 16th the Historic Preservation Commission unanimously voted to deny the demolition of the historic landmark located at 4 E State Street. On December 17th the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. The ordinance requires that the appeal be considered by the City Council within 30 days. A special City Council meeting will be held on January 12th where both the applicant and the historic preservation commission will have the right to be heard. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than 2/3 of the alderpersons holding office.

Please do not hesitate to reach out with any questions.

Good morning Emily and Brian,
I hope the day finds you both doing well! I am reaching out on behalf of Brian Hogan with Hogan Design + Construction in hopes of setting up a visit to discuss Hogan's intentions for the remodeling of the home at 17 N 6th Street. In anticipation of our visit I've attached some design drawings which I will bring full size hard copies to help our conversation. The structure initially served as a residence but was eventually converted to office space. The folks at Hogan wish to remodel the structure to accommodate two rentable units with a two bedroom unit at the first floor and a one bedroom unit on the second floor. The intention of our visit is to get feedback in preparation for a planned HPC visit in February for a "concept review". Following our HPC visit we would then move into development of the construction drawings to be used for permit review and a final HPC review. As for a day and time, below are a few dates with windows of time that would work. I would imagine our visit would take no more than 30-45 minutes at most. Please let me know which is most convenient for you both.

Wednesday 1/14: 9:00 am - 12:00 pm

Friday 1/16: 12:00 - 3:00 pm

Warm regards,
Sean

Hello,

My name is Shak Abdullah, and I am submitting our change of tenant permit information along with the interior tenant improvement design for our newly leased office space.

2053 Geneva Drive, Suite 165
Geneva, IL 60134

For background, the space has been leased under SMST LLC and will be used as a warehouse and logistics facility supporting our U.S. parent company, HSG TECH INC. HSG Tech's primary business is laser machine sales throughout the Chicagoland area, with our main U.S. office based in Addison, IL.

The project goal is to install non-permanent interior walls to divide the space into two offices, one conference room, and a small IT storage closet located within the breakroom area.

Please let me know if the City is able to review and approve our interior office improvement project, or if any additional information is needed to proceed.

Thank you for your time and assistance.

The structure initially served as a residence but was eventually converted to office space. The folks at Hogan wish to remodel the structure to accommodate two rentable units with a two bedroom unit at the first floor and a one bedroom unit on the second floor. The intention of our visit is to get feedback in preparation for a planned HPC visit in February for a "concept review". Following our HPC visit we would then move into development of the construction drawings to be used for permit review and a final HPC review. As for a day and time, below are a few dates with windows of time that would work. I would imagine our visit would take no more than 30-45 minutes at most. Please let me know which is most convenient for you both.

Good morning Emily and Brian,

I hope the day finds you both doing well! I am reaching out on behalf of Brian Hogan with Hogan Design + Construction in hopes of setting up a visit to discuss Hogan's intentions for the remodeling of the home at 17 N 6th Street. In anticipation of our visit I've attached some design drawings which I will bring full size hard copies to help our conversation. The structure initially served as a residence but was eventually converted to office space. The folks at Hogan wish to remodel the structure to accommodate two rentable units with a two bedroom unit at the first floor and a one bedroom unit on the second floor. Hi Robert,

Additions which are visible from the right of way are required to undergo full HPC review by the Commission. When additions aren't visible, they can typically undergo administrative review which does not include a meeting. Your case is a little unique because of the layout of the remaining fence on the property. Need for a meeting would really be based on whether that fence is scheduled to remain and what your plans look like when they come to permit. I'm happy to keep in contact as your plans progress and we determine whether a meeting is required!

Hi Robert,

Detached garages are actually allowed to be setback 5' off of the side and rear property lines, so the proposed addition would not encroach into the setback requirements. If the goal is to convert the garage into a short-term rental, the structure would be classified as an Accessory Dwelling Unit. I don't know if this is an issue for this site, but please note that the owner of the property must reside in either the principal structure or the ADU. The full list of requirements for ADUs can be found here: https://library.municode.com/il/geneva/codes/code\_of\_ordinances?nodeId=TIT11ZO\_CH3GEZOPR\_11-3-11ACDWUN.

Brian,

Good afternoon. I hope you're not working too hard and have time to enjoy this holiday season.

We spoke about the property at 301 S. 1st Street a few months ago (see attached). If you recall, the owner wants to convert the existing detached garage on her property to a short term rental. To accomplish the layout she would like a small (65 sq.ft) addition. The garage is currently non-compliant in rear and side yard setbacks. The proposed addition would further encroach into the rear yard setback. What is the cities current process for approving an addition like this? Is this something that can be done administratively?

Please let us know how we should proceed with the city. Thank you for your help and guidance!

Merry Christmas!

Hi all,

Since we've been talking about it, I'm just sending along the historical description of 101 W State to maybe answer some questions! It looks like the front was remodeled a few times and the current combined one might date to 1893. There used to be a dance hall upstairs, which is fun! I'm still digging around on the wallpaper when I get some free time, since I'd love to know which part of the building's history that dates to as well. The Geneva History Museum has a book with a longer history on the building and the Wrate family as a whole included in it, which I can always look through to try to answer more detailed questions that come up too.

Have a good day,

Good afternoon,

I hope you're doing well! This message is to remind you that materials for the January HPC meeting are due Tuesday, January 6. As we exit the holiday season, I know everyone has been busy, so please ensure that you keep that date in mind so that we are able to help you keep your project moving forward. If you are receiving this message, we have discussed required materials for your project, but as always, I am happy to answer any follow up questions or clarify details.

Additionally, due to Martin Luther King, Jr. day, the January HPC meeting will not occur on Tuesday, the 20th, but on Wednesday, the 21st. As we've discussed, a representative of the project is required to be at the meeting for the discussion. The meeting will still begin at 7 pm and occur at City Hall. Additional reminders of that date will be sent closer to the meeting.

Good morning Steve,

We can definitely find a time to meet, but I don't have much interesting to say on the history of this issue. I outlined my reasoning in my original response and confirmed it with my boss before responding.

I could meet Thursday 1-3 or Friday 9-2, either on site, at our office at Public Works (1800 South St), or at City Hall.

Hi David and Brian,

I hope you are both doing well. I have been working with Steve Kuhn on a design for a new house at 420 South Street. We plan to submit design drawings tomorrow to get a preliminary HPC review. I prepared the attached concept site plan and I wanted to make sure that there is a not a problem with having 2 driveway entrances. Steve would like to have a driveway to a porte-cochere and a detached garage.

Good morning Steve,

We can definitely find a time to meet, but I don't have much interesting to say on the history of this issue. I outlined my reasoning in my original response and confirmed it with my boss before responding.

I could meet Thursday 1-3 or Friday 9-2, either on site, at our office at Public Works (1800 South St), or at City Hall.

TJ,

Sounds good, we will keep an eye out for your message.

In future, my recommendation is that if you think reconstruction at this scale might be necessary, you mention it when you apply for the initial permit. That way, Staff and the Commission can work with you to get any preliminary approvals you might need ahead of time, instead of having to pause partway through the process. That way you would have the option to go further if you needed to, but wouldn't be required to do the full work if you didn't end up needing to. This is what many of the other contractors in the area do, and it works well for them, keeping properties in the district from ending up in this situation.

Our goal is always to be as efficient as possible, and one of the easiest ways to help that is to communicate early and often, especially in historic districts, as I'm sure you've experienced in your work. By encouraging that communication, and holding everyone to the same standard, we find that everyone expects the same system, which is a big part of our strategy in making the process applicant-friendly.

That said, we're always looking to improve the process, and appreciate comments from all applicants.

Thank you for the update on the lumber!

Emily,

I need to meet with Chad and determine a direction. Which will likely be to push off any work until after permit approval, of which we don't even know we need, and time and money neither of us will get back if we don't need it.

It begs the question, what would the HPC have done if I opened this roof and then discovered that more work was needed? Force me to stop work with an exposed rafter system, causing a public safety issue and potentially more damage to an already old structure?

Surely there has to be a better and more efficient way on your end to handle situations like this. You are prestigious Geneva. It's an honor to work in your town. I hope that moving forward you as a committee figure out how to make your process more homeowner and contractor friendly. I can't say you have the best reputation in the industry. Driving away good contractors does nothing to help restore and keep historic Geneva alive and beautiful.

Just some unsolicited thoughts. I respect you enough to share them. Talk soon.

TJ,

Yes, normal permit review would include an HPC meeting. Like I said on the phone, admin approval is typically not approved in this case due to the extent of work, and during our meeting today our team agreed that we would not be able to make exceptions. In any case, permit documents should be submitted before work is done.

As long as all materials are prepared, it is typical that only one HPC meeting would be required. This case is different from the siding case you experienced earlier because there will be no price comparisons or material differences in any replacements, which should aid efficiency in the Commission's decision-making.

I CC'ed Brian on this email again just to keep him in the loop.

Emily,

The wood will be moved tomorrow.

Does "undergo normal permit review" include waiting for a meeting in January? If so, this is about the worst case scenario compared to what we discussed yesterday.

As far as I know, the jack was put up because when my initial crew was not confident doing the work, Chad wanted to be extra cautious about an unknown.

There are exposed rafters from the inside. We did try to determine the required work the first time we were there. But there was no conclusion, which is why we felt it best to make that determination by doing a complete tear off and pulling up the decking. If I could've made that conclusion from the inside, I would've already applied for the necessary permit.

I can have all of these materials ready for you. But how am I to proceed if we tear it off and notice that it is above and beyond normal permit purview? We then have to wait for a meeting? Of which you know there is no guarantee of approval, as most contractors have to go through several meetings to get approval through the HPC. What does that also do for public safety, leaving an exposed roof with materials through winter and regarding Julie and her parallel driveway?

Can this be handled like we discussed on the phone? Where I have those permit materials prepared, we go and do the tear off, and if it is deemed beyond replacing a few boards we can continue with the work and I can submit the materials to you at the same time? Because with all due respect, it seems egregiously bureaucratic and unproductive to halt work and potentially carry this through the dead of winter, with an open and exposed roof, with no gutters, and Julie pulling her car in and out and walking that driveway with her daughter, Jeanie...just to go through a round of meetings to restore a garage (which is an addition) back to original shape and structure.

If calling is easier, I'm available. But please advise as soon as possible. Thank you, Emily.

Hi TJ,

We got together this morning to discuss the details of your case, and I did confirm that if the project goes beyond normal maintenance and repair, you will need to undergo normal permit review including the HPC review.

If you're able to estimate work from the interior of the garage, this may be able to better inform whether or not this work goes beyond normal maintenance and repair. I don't know the exact details, but Chad did let us know that there is a jack holding some things up inside the garage, which leads me to assume that the framing is at least partially exposed, as is pretty typical in historic garages. Hopefully this strategy would help you calculate timing for yourself and your team.

In order to streamline things for everyone involved, I included a bullet pointed list of additional materials which would be required for a new permit if the work does end up going beyond normal maintenance and repair. Feel free to reach out to myself or the Building Department on these permit requirements; Brian Byrne, our Building Commissioner, is CC'ed on this email so he's in the loop. Of course we already have the information on the shingles from your reroofing permit, so there's no need to resend that information. I know you like to plan ahead, so my recommendation is to get materials together earlier rather than later if you think there is any chance the work could go beyond normal maintenance and repair after taking a look inside the garage. That way Staff can work with you to make any necessary adjustments to minimize time spent in HPC meetings.

1. Normal drawing set for roof construction, including section and plan drawings
2. Documentation of damaged elements (typically labeling photos on a Word document or pdf is easiest for applicants)
3. Written scope of work, including that details like pitch, height, etc would be replaced like for like

Finally, just to keep you updated, I did let our Code Compliance Officer know that you plan to move that lumber out of sight, so that should hopefully take the temperature down for everyone a little.

Like I said, feel free to reach out to myself or Brian with any questions. If you have anything that might involve both of us, you can always just reply all to this email and we'll both be able to see it and help you out! Thank you,

TJ,

Yes, normal permit review would include an HPC meeting. Like I said on the phone, admin approval is typically not approved in this case due to the extent of work, and during our meeting today our team agreed that we would not be able to make exceptions. In any case, permit documents should be submitted before work is done.

As long as all materials are prepared, it is typical that only one HPC meeting would be required. This case is different from the siding case you experienced earlier because there will be no price comparisons or material differences in any replacements, which should aid efficiency in the Commission's decision-making.

I CC'ed Brian on this email again just to keep him in the loop.

Emily,

The wood will be moved tomorrow.

Does "undergo normal permit review" include waiting for a meeting in January? If so, this is about the worst case scenario compared to what we discussed yesterday.

As far as I know, the jack was put up because when my initial crew was not confident doing the work, Chad wanted to be extra cautious about an unknown.

There are exposed rafters from the inside. We did try to determine the required work the first time we were there. But there was no conclusion, which is why we felt it best to make that determination by doing a complete tear off and pulling up the decking. If I could've made that conclusion from the inside, I would've already applied for the necessary permit.

I can have all of these materials ready for you. But how am I to proceed if we tear it off and notice that it is above and beyond normal permit purview? We then have to wait for a meeting? Of which you know there is no guarantee of approval, as most contractors have to go through several meetings to get approval through the HPC. What does that also do for public safety, leaving an exposed roof with materials through winter and regarding Julie and her parallel driveway?

Can this be handled like we discussed on the phone? Where I have those permit materials prepared, we go and do the tear off, and if it is deemed beyond replacing a few boards we can continue with the work and I can submit the materials to you at the same time? Because with all due respect, it seems egregiously bureaucratic and unproductive to halt work and potentially carry this through the dead of winter, with an open and exposed roof, with no gutters, and Julie pulling her car in and out and walking that driveway with her daughter, Jeanie...just to go through a round of meetings to restore a garage (which is an addition) back to original shape and structure.

If calling is easier, I'm available. But please advise as soon as possible. Thank you, Emily.

If you're able to estimate work from the interior of the garage, this may be able to better inform whether or not this work goes beyond normal maintenance and repair. I don't know the exact details, but Chad did let us know that there is a jack holding some things up inside the garage, which leads me to assume that the framing is at least partially exposed, as is pretty typical in historic garages. TJ,

These drawings are a great start. I especially appreciate being able to compare the existing and the proposed structure. I copied Brian Byrne on this email again, as the Building Department will also be reviewing the structure as normal. I believe he will also need to see a plan of the roof, on top of the sections you've sent.

The HPC will also want to see photos of existing conditions in the roof. I would recommend overall photos from the outside and inside, so they can see the sag of the roof, as well as any detail photos of damage you're able to see on the interior at this point. They don't need to see the receipt – as this is a wood for wood exchange, material is less of a concern than a change in siding material, for example.

I would recommend filling out a new set of permit forms, as this will go beyond the extent of your existing permit, and a written scope would be useful to all reviewers. I attached those forms to this email for your convenience.

Thank you,

We have decided that we are just going to pursue the full permit. So I want to be prepared by January 6 when the materials are due. I also have a list of construction materials in the form of a receipt. Is that sufficient?

Sounds good, we will keep an eye out for your message.

In future, my recommendation is that if you think reconstruction at this scale might be necessary, you mention it when you apply for the initial permit. That way, Staff and the Commission can work with you to get any preliminary approvals you might need ahead of time, instead of having to pause partway through the process. That way you would have the option to go further if you needed to, but wouldn't be required to do the full work if you didn't end up needing to. This is what many of the other contractors in the area do, and it works well for them, keeping properties in the district from ending up in this situation.

Our goal is always to be as efficient as possible, and one of the easiest ways to help that is to communicate early and often, especially in historic districts, as I'm sure you've experienced in your work. By encouraging that communication, and holding everyone to the same standard, we find that everyone expects the same system, which is a big part of our strategy in making the process applicant-friendly.

That said, we're always looking to improve the process, and appreciate comments from all applicants.

Thank you for the update on the lumber!

Emily,

I need to meet with Chad and determine a direction. Which will likely be to push off any work until after permit approval, of which we don't even know we need, and time and money neither of us will get back if we don't need it.

It begs the question, what would the HPC have done if I opened this roof and then discovered that more work was needed? Force me to stop work with an exposed rafter system, causing a public safety issue and potentially more damage to an already old structure?

Surely there has to be a better and more efficient way on your end to handle situations like this. You are prestigious Geneva. It's an honor to work in your town. I hope that moving forward you as a committee figure out how to make your process more homeowner and contractor friendly. I can't say you have the best reputation in the industry. Driving away good contractors does nothing to help restore and keep historic Geneva alive and beautiful.

Just some unsolicited thoughts. I respect you enough to share them. Talk soon.

TJ,

Yes, normal permit review would include an HPC meeting. Like I said on the phone, admin approval is typically not approved in this case due to the extent of work, and during our meeting today our team agreed that we would not be able to make exceptions. In any case, permit documents should be submitted before work is done.

As long as all materials are prepared, it is typical that only one HPC meeting would be required. This case is different from the siding case you experienced earlier because there will be no price comparisons or material differences in any replacements, which should aid efficiency in the Commission's decision-making.

I CC'ed Brian on this email again just to keep him in the loop.

Emily,

The wood will be moved tomorrow.

Does "undergo normal permit review" include waiting for a meeting in January? If so, this is about the worst case scenario compared to what we discussed yesterday.

As far as I know, the jack was put up because when my initial crew was not confident doing the work, Chad wanted to be extra cautious about an unknown.

There are exposed rafters from the inside. We did try to determine the required work the first time we were there. But there was no conclusion, which is why we felt it best to make that determination by doing a complete tear off and pulling up the decking. If I could've made that conclusion from the inside, I would've already applied for the necessary permit.

I can have all of these materials ready for you. But how am I to proceed if we tear it off and notice that it is above and beyond normal permit purview? We then have to wait for a meeting? Of which you know there is no guarantee of approval, as most contractors have to go through several meetings to get approval through the HPC. What does that also do for public safety, leaving an exposed roof with materials through winter and regarding Julie and her parallel driveway?

Can this be handled like we discussed on the phone? Where I have those permit materials prepared, we go and do the tear off, and if it is deemed beyond replacing a few boards we can continue with the work and I can submit the materials to you at the same time? Because with all due respect, it seems egregiously bureaucratic and unproductive to halt work and potentially carry this through the dead of winter, with an open and exposed roof, with no gutters, and Julie pulling her car in and out and walking that driveway with her daughter, Jeanie...just to go through a round of meetings to restore a garage (which is an addition) back to original shape and structure.

If calling is easier, I'm available. But please advise as soon as possible. Thank you, Emily.

Hi TJ,

We got together this morning to discuss the details of your case, and I did confirm that if the project goes beyond normal maintenance and repair, you will need to undergo normal permit review including the HPC review.

If you're able to estimate work from the interior of the garage, this may be able to better inform whether or not this work goes beyond normal maintenance and repair. I don't know the exact details, but Chad did let us know that there is a jack holding some things up inside the garage, which leads me to assume that the framing is at least partially exposed, as is pretty typical in historic garages. Hopefully this strategy would help you calculate timing for yourself and your team.

In order to streamline things for everyone involved, I included a bullet pointed list of additional materials which would be required for a new permit if the work does end up going beyond normal maintenance and repair. Feel free to reach out to myself or the Building Department on these permit requirements; Brian Byrne, our Building Commissioner, is CC'ed on this email so he's in the loop. Of course we already have the information on the shingles from your reroofing permit, so there's no need to resend that information. I know you like to plan ahead, so my recommendation is to get materials together earlier rather than later if you think there is any chance the work could go beyond normal maintenance and repair after taking a look inside the garage. That way Staff can work with you to make any necessary adjustments to minimize time spent in HPC meetings.

1. Normal drawing set for roof construction, including section and plan drawings
2. Documentation of damaged elements (typically labeling photos on a Word document or pdf is easiest for applicants)
3. Written scope of work, including that details like pitch, height, etc would be replaced like for like

Finally, just to keep you updated, I did let our Code Compliance Officer know that you plan to move that lumber out of sight, so that should hopefully take the temperature down for everyone a little.

Like I said, feel free to reach out to myself or Brian with any questions. If you have anything that might involve both of us, you can always just reply all to this email and we'll both be able to see it and help you out! Thank you,

A drawing was forwarded to Brian. I have not heard back. I told TJ to call whoever he dealt with on my neighbors house. I think the plan is to stabilize the roof as they currently have a jack under a 4x4 holding the peak up. And I'd like gutters sooner than later. No one told me that discovery would result in a 2 month halt mid-winter or I wouldn't have kicked this off.

Please provide how you'd like the side porch stabilized in the interim. If it's violating code from your last email, I don't see it being okay that way until when they finish it next spring. I originally ordered materials for it right after the in-person meeting I had with Brian and Jackie last year and was told it would be administratively approved, similar to the front steps. Those materials are now likely no good (my fault I should have stored them, busy busy). So I'm not doing anything until it's approved, above 60 and scheduled.

Please provide TJ guidance going forward. This is my last work week before shutdown and I have a lot going on. And I'll have to find someone to talk to the HPC on 501 South Streets behalf..

Exterior like-for-like. Just brings the interior rafters to code and make the structure safe as it's about to fall over with all the snow recently. Best I can do. Hope it's acceptable. The weather is agreeable this week.

Seeing that garage currently has 6-7 broken rafters that I can see, and the north wall is being pushed out 6-8 inches and I have a 4x4 post currently propping the center of the garage holding the peak(recent development with all the snow, better safe than sorry) is this not a public safety issue as well? Emily had brought up public safety regarding the side porch, but honestly this is more so a real issue. I did some reading. See below. Just a thought. Go bears.

From Ordinance No. 82-11 (Original Historic Preservation Ordinance)

Section 10. Ordinary Maintenance Allowed; Public Safety.

"Nothing contained in this Ordinance shall be construed to prevent the ordinary maintenance or repair of any exterior feature in an historic district which does not involve change in the design, material, color, or other appearance thereof. Moreover, nothing contained in this Ordinance shall prevent the construction, reconstruction, alteration, restoration, or demolition of any such feature which the Building Commissioner shall certify is required by the public safety because of an unsafe or dangerous condition."

This section explicitly grants the Building Commissioner authority to certify work as necessary for public safety, allowing it to proceed without the standard HPC review process that applies to non-emergency alterations.

Chad,

I apologize for not getting back to you sooner; the HPC meeting tonight has taken up a lot of my time.

To be clear, Brian did not tell you that you can't fix your roof, just that it has not been approved under your existing permit. The work outside the pre-existing permit goes beyond normal repair and maintenance, so we just need to see the same permit materials we would request from anyone doing the work, whether the property is in the district or not. I CC'ed him on this email so he's up to date and can keep you apprised of what the Building Department would be looking for.

My recommendation is that you aim to get these materials together by January so that you can come forward with this along with the ongoing porch permit. That will minimize your need for HPC meetings and keep both projects in motion. Since TJ is working on the roof, you also have to option of speaking to him as your contractor to get those drawings needed for a roof reconstruction and attend the HPC meeting as your representative. The concern of the HPC in this case would be confirming that any changes would be structurally sound and visually the same, while retaining as much historic material as possible.

Exterior like-for-like. Just brings the interior rafters to code and make the structure safe as it's about to fall over with all the snow recently. Best I can do. Hope it's acceptable. The weather is agreeable this week.

Seeing that garage currently has 6-7 broken rafters that I can see, and the north wall is being pushed out 6-8 inches and I have a 4x4 post currently propping the center of the garage holding the peak (recent development with all the snow, better safe than sorry) is this not a public safety issue as well? Emily had brought up public safety regarding the side porch, but honestly this is more so a real issue. I did some reading. See below. Just a thought. Go bears.

From Ordinance No. 82-11 (Original Historic Preservation Ordinance)

Section 10. Ordinary Maintenance Allowed; Public Safety.

"Nothing contained in this Ordinance shall be construed to prevent the ordinary maintenance or repair of any exterior feature in an historic district which does not involve change in the design, material, color, or other appearance thereof. Moreover, nothing contained in this Ordinance shall prevent the construction, reconstruction, alteration, restoration, or demolition of any such feature which the Building Commissioner shall certify is required by the public safety because of an unsafe or dangerous condition."

This section explicitly grants the Building Commissioner authority to certify work as necessary for public safety, allowing it to proceed without the standard HPC review process that applies to non-emergency alterations.

I did speak with Emily and we both thought that it would be best if TJ could provide us with a drawing for his proposed work on the garage especially if he was replacing the complete roof rafter system.
If it does end up that the roof is removed to the walls it may need to be looked at by HPC at the January meeting, but please have TJ send us drawings of his proposal.
I included Emily here to so she is in the loop.

Hi Emily-

I told TJ to reach out to Brian just now over text. He knows more than me. It's a weather game at this point. If you want us to remove the dumpster I can, just ask. But I'll need another one when they do the garage. Let me know. I'm fine with either, I just don't want to cause a delay if we get a few warm days.

And I'll have your drawings soon. Maybe over the weekend. Then on the 19th I'll be out of town with family for a week, maybe two. Let's see how much snow is here when we get back.

Hi Chad,

Thank you for the response. Happy to keep in contact as you work on getting those drawings together and answer any questions you have. Like I said, the goal at this point is to see those drawings by January so we can get your permit in progress for the spring. It sounds like you have a model drawn, so you may be able to set the views to each side and just send along images of those for a good start.

In the meantime, is there any availability over the next few weeks for me to stop by and get those photographs of existing materials? Happy to work with you on figuring out a time for that as well.

We understand the weather issue on the dumpster. Since you're the property owner, at the end of the day you would be responsible for the dumpster restrictions, which is why I wanted to make sure you were aware of it as well. It is the responsibility of the homeowner or the contractor that pulled the permit to schedule inspections and keep the Building Department updated as needed on any changes made to work proposed in a permit.

Hi Emily-

Please talk with TJ regarding any of the roof. I'd also love to not have a dumpster in my driveway. I'm assuming he didn't expect three snows in a row. I'm looking forward to being able to have my car put inside :) I think they're waiting for 2-3 days of above freezing. I'm also waiting on gutters.

Regarding the side porch, I'll have your drawing soon. In the meantime I'll see if the guy who's giving the stamp will also attest to the current sturdiness to relive any short term concerns. I'll let you know what he says.

Thanks for the additional info!

Chad,

Just a follow up to our call yesterday morning, including continuing the review work on the side porch and your other questions. This email is going to be a long one, so feel free to respond with any questions for myself or other staff. Olivia, our Code Compliance Officer, is out of office today, so if you do have questions for her, I would recommend an email response so she can see it when she gets back tomorrow.

Our focus right now needs to be on getting the plans for the side porch created and moved through the HPC Review. Our Code Compliance Officer spent some more time looking at the case over the past few days, and she is concerned about several possible violations. Since we do not yet have confirmation of structural stability from a design professional, most of these are focused around the safety of the property, and I have listed a few that she is concerned about below. At this point, the goal of the City would be to have drawings for review by the January meeting. Due to the code concerns, failure to progress on this project may force the issuance of a summons to appear before the hearing officer for local adjudication.

2021 IPMC Chapter 1 Section 111.1.1 Unsafe structures

An unsafe structure is one that is found to be dangerous to the life, health, property or safety of the public or the occupants of the structure but not providing minimum safeguards to protect or warn occupants in the event of fire, or because such structure contains unsafe equipment or is so damaged, decayed, dilapidated, structurally unsafe or of such faulty construction or unstable foundation, that partial or complete collapse is possible.

City Code Title 5-1-3

It shall be unlawful to permit any building, structure or place to remain in such a condition as to be dangerous to the public health in any way. Any such structure, building or place is hereby declared to be a nuisance (Dangerous Premises) (1975 Code § 17-3)

Those materials are officially due on January 6, but I would strongly recommend aiming to get them to me as early as possible so I can work with you on making sure you have everything you need. As I've also said, it would be very useful to your application if I could also take photos of the materials you still have on site, and I'm not afraid of getting through the snow to get them! If you have any time to meet on site, please let me know, and we can work something out for a visit.

She also wanted to make sure you and TJ both know that there is a 30 day time restriction on the dumpster, as described below. You have some time there but we did want to give you a heads up.

Title 10-3-3 (Dumpster time restriction)

Temporary storage / Disposal Unit is hereby defined as: A unit that is designed for the storage or disposal of household goods or materials. When these units are located in any yard on any residential property located within the city there is a maximum time period not to exceed thirty (30) days.

Our ultimate goal is to work with you to get the porch permitted for rebuilding. Progress on this front would relieve some of the code compliance concerns and will also be better for your historic property in the long run.

I have also included responses to your other questions below.

1. Like I said, the city does not keep a list of salvage companies, but Landmarks Illinois actually does, which you can access here. It looks like several of them are in the area and some may be able to do pickups so you don't have to use your car. It might be an idea to consider Facebook Marketplace as well, where you could also arrange pickups.
2. Since the shutters were not originally on the house and are exempt from review, you should be fine with whichever replacement you prefer. They were likely added in the mid-1900s, when shutters were used for decoration instead of function, which is why they don't cover the entire window.
3. Since the railing is already in, my recommendation would just be to paint it in either the same color or a complimentary one for now. If you decide down the line to change it, the Commission will be more involved in the selection process, but for now it would be acceptable to leave it as is. I believe the members of the Commission agree with the City that at this point, the side porch is the priority and the front rail is acceptable for the current needs.

Thank you,

2. Since the shutters were not originally on the house and are exempt from review, you should be fine with whichever replacement you prefer. They were likely added in the mid-1900s, when shutters were used for decoration instead of function, which is why they don't cover the entire window.
3. Since the railing is already in, my recommendation would just be to paint it in either the same color or a complimentary one for now. If you decide down the line to change it, the Commission will be more involved in the selection process, but for now it would be acceptable to leave it as is. I believe the members of the Commission agree with the City that at this point, the side porch is the priority and the front rail is acceptable for the current needs.

Subject: 501 South Street Follow Up

Chad,

Just a follow up to our call yesterday morning, including continuing the review work on the side porch and your other questions. This email is going to be a long one, so feel free to respond with any questions for myself or other staff. Olivia, our Code Compliance Officer, is out of office today, so if you do have questions for her, I would recommend an email response so she can see it when she gets back tomorrow.

Our focus right now needs to be on getting the plans for the side porch created and moved through the HPC Review. Our Code Compliance Officer spent some more time looking at the case over the past few days, and she is concerned about several possible violations. Since we do not yet have confirmation of structural stability from a design professional, most of these are focused around the safety of the property, and I have listed a few that she is concerned about below. At this point, the goal of the City would be to have drawings for review by the January meeting. Due to the code concerns, failure to progress on this project may force the issuance of a summons to appear before the hearing officer for local adjudication.

An unsafe structure is one that is found to be dangerous to the life, health, property or safety of the public or the occupants of the structure but not providing minimum safeguards to protect or warn occupants in the event of fire, or because such structure contains unsafe equipment or is so damaged, decayed, dilapidated, structurally unsafe or of such faulty construction or unstable foundation, that partial or complete collapse is possible.

City Code Title 5-1-3

It shall be unlawful to permit any building, structure or place to remain in such a condition as to be dangerous to the public health in any way. Any such structure, building or place is hereby declared to be a nuisance (Dangerous Premises) (1975 Code § 17-3)

Those materials are officially due on January 6, but I would strongly recommend aiming to get them to me as early as possible so I can work with you on making sure you have everything you need. As I've also said, it would be very useful to your application if I could also take photos of the materials you still have on site, and I'm not afraid of getting through the snow to get them! If you have any time to meet on site, please let me know, and we can work something out for a visit.

She also wanted to make sure you and TJ both know that there is a 30 day time restriction on the dumpster, as described below. You have some time there but we did want to give you a heads up.

Title 10-3-3 (Dumpster time restriction)

Temporary storage / Disposal Unit is hereby defined as: A unit that is designed for the storage or disposal of household goods or materials. When these units are located in any yard on any residential property located within the city there is a maximum time period not to exceed thirty (30) days.

Our ultimate goal is to work with you to get the porch permitted for rebuilding. Progress on this front would relieve some of the code compliance concerns and will also be better for your historic property in the long run.

I have also included responses to your other questions below.

Like I said, the city does not keep a list of salvage companies, but Landmarks Illinois actually does, which you can access here. It looks like several of them are in the area and some may be able to do pickups so you don't have to use your car. It might be an idea to consider Facebook Marketplace as well, where you could also arrange pickups.

Since the shutters were not originally on the house and are exempt from review, you should be fine with whichever replacement you prefer. They were likely added in the mid-1900s, when shutters were used for decoration instead of function, which is why they don't cover the entire window.

Since the railing is already in, my recommendation would just be to paint it in either the same color or a complimentary one for now. If you decide down the line to change it, the Commission will be more involved in the selection process, but for now it would be acceptable to leave it as is. Hi David and Brian,
I hope you are both doing well. I have been working with Steve Kuhn on a design for a new house at 420 South Street. We plan to submit design drawings tomorrow to get a preliminary HPC review. I prepared the attached concept site plan and I wanted to make sure that there is a not a problem with having 2 driveway entrances. Steve would like to have a driveway to a porte-cochere and a detached garage.

Hi Chad,
I apologize for not updating you after lunch today.
I did speak with Emily and we both thought that it would be best if TJ could provide us with a drawing for his proposed work on the garage especially if he was replacing the complete roof rafter system.
If it does end up that the roof is removed to the walls it may need to be looked at by HPC at the January meeting, but please have TJ send us drawings of his proposal.
I included Emily here to so she is in the loop.

Thanks

Subject: Your vote on the demolition at 4 E. State Street

I'm writing to thank you for your reasoned, accurate comments and vote on the question to reverse the HPC decision to reject Shodeen's demolition request. I'm SO SO SO SO SO disappointed that the HPC decision was upheld.

I've lived on the east side for 33 years. The Mill Race Inn was a favorite, particularly the Gazebo, the Mill Grill (especially the steak sandwich), and the Duck Inn. Every Mother's Day once my children were old enough to be left alone in the morning, I walked there and ordered one bloody mary, sat on the deck chairs, watched the ducks, and pretended I was on my own deck. It was always a lovely time that I miss, even though I don't drink alcohol anymore.

I observed as the Mill Grill had to be closed, then the entire restaurant and Gazebo. It was devastating but inevitable. I participated in the Charette as well as the council meetings debating and voting on the output. In general, what I observed was that most participants from the community wanted a reincarnation of the Mill Race Inn. They had no stomach for a plan without a restaurant. A friend of mine actually left the city because of that, which frankly, I think was ridiculous, but it's evidence of the emotional investment in the property and concern over what will be developed.

I attended a council meeting sometime last year which had a very sparse attendance and since every person who spoke was in favor of retaining the structure, I didn't feel confident in speaking up. My bad but it really seemed a lost cause to speak against demolition. Tonight proved that there's much more of a split in opinions and, perhaps, more people in favor of demolition even if the council voted against. I should have stayed in the game, but I also had some family issues over the past few months, so I didn't keep tabs on the meetings preceding the council meeting tonight. Again, my bad.

In my opinion, you nailed it. What's left of the structure is a shadow of its former self and bears no real value that would serve as any sort of attraction. It's unsafe, really unmanageable, and I'm actually embarrassed that the city has saddled Shodeen with the monstrosity after they invested in the site when there weren't many (any?) other takers. There's enough problems with the flood plain but the city gave them a giant stone headache to boot. And the city wants them to invest in maintenance of a structure that's barely standing? It's ridiculous. (Sorry, I'm ranting now.)

I was very disappointed in the discussion that went beyond the question. Of course there will be a plan for development. Shodeen bought the property for that reason. Many people at the Charette proposed that something be done with the remnants that are left and tonight was not the first time that this idea had been discussed but others don't want to hear about that: They just want to preserve what can't be preserved without enormous expense and negative impact on what could be built.

I joke with my friends and neighbors that I'll be dead before anything happens with that property. I'm 73, but I'm hoping to survive long enough to see a development come to fruition. The arguments that alderpersons need to know what will be built or shouldn't overturn the work of the HPC are short-sighted and self-centered. Those arguments don't consider us residents sitting and waiting for something -- of course, I'm sure west side residents are just as eager to see something happen since the view coming into the city is compromised by the half-standing stone nothing. The question tonight was about keeping the remnants or demolishing the remnants. There is absolutely nothing that can be made of that building and what will happen now is that everybody who knows nothing about the history will be throwing darts at the wall to propose a visitor's center, a museum, a restaurant, a water stop, a retail shop, a beer garden, you name it. Not one of those proposals is a marketable idea, so none of those darts can stick.

I had emailed my alderperson, Billy, but very late and just prior to the meeting start, but I will contact him to expand on the brief opinion I stated in that email and also register my disagreement. I shudder to think how much of a delay tonight will have and how much less time I have to wait for . . . . something? anything? I don't even care what at this point. Just SOMETHING!

Sincerely,

Denise Ward

Subject: The Blacksmith Shop

Alderman Kosirog,

To the members of the Geneva City Council,

Although we live in the 1st Ward, we're writing to all of you because this is an issue that involves all of the City of Geneva: the preservation and repurposing of the historic blacksmith shop on East State St.

When the developer acquired this property, they were quoted in the Daily Herald as recognizing the historic importance of this building and they stated their intention to preserve it. When they demolished the rest of the old Mill Race Inn they took great care to preserve the blacksmith shop which, at that time had been incorporated into the structure of the restaurant.

But then, some time later, they submitted an application to the City to demolish the building. The fact that they submitted their request shortly before Christmas, when people were likely to be distracted by the upcoming holidays, that they knew that the building had no historic preservation protection, and that such a demolition request is frequently issued promptly as a matter of course, one might surmise that they were confident that the request would be granted and the building demolished before preservationists could react.

Fortunately, a concerned citizen learned of the application and worked almost overnight to submit an application to Landmark the old building. That, of course, halted any action to demolish it. The building was then granted Landmark status by HPC and the City Council.

Since then the developer has made many attempts to get the City to revoke the landmark status of the building. In each case the City has firmly rejected each request. And now they are trying yet once again to get the City to reverse itself and once again the HPC has unanimously ejected their request.

We don't understand their reasoning for committing so much time and money over the years in their repeated attempts to get the City to change its mind, but at this point their submitting yet another request seems almost abusive.

This developer has successfully and creatively restored numerous historic buildings in Geneva. These include The Herrington Inn complex, The Riverside Banquets complex, and The Dodson Place complex. Compared with these developments the blacksmith shop is a very small project. In a city that prides itself on historic preservation as an important aspect of its "brand" it would be a shame for the City to cave and allow this building to be demolished now.

We ask you to once again deny the request to demolish this historic structure and to support an honest effort on the part of the developer to restore and repurpose it.

Most sincerely,

Colin C. and Glorianne S. Campbell

I've asked the current shift supervisor to start looking for officers who would be available to work the overtime. Tonight's evening shift is at our minimum staffing requirements so we can't simply designate one of them to be there for the entire time in case an emergency came up elsewhere.

Hopefully we'll find someone available. I'm planning to leave here in the next 30 minutes or so to get some emergency plumbing work done at my house.

Subject: Police Presence at HPC Meeting Tonight

Hi Matt,

We are having a Historic Preservation Commission meeting tonight at 7pm at City Hall that I anticipate will be contentious. I know it is last minute, but would you be able to spare a police officer to babysit the room for us tonight?

Thank you,

City Council Denies Appeal Of 4 E. State St. Demolition Request

_____ The City of Geneva Development Projects Map has been updated with details about the Jan. 12 special City Council meeting regarding the appeal of the 4 E. State St. Historic Landmark Demolition request.

A reversal or modification of the Historic Preservation Commission's (HPC) determination requires not less than two-thirds of the alderpersons holding office (seven votes). At the City Council meeting, six alderpersons voted in favor of overturning the HPC, and four voted to uphold the HPC's decision.

As such, the appeal failed, and the demolition request was denied.

Dave,

Yes, this would need to go before HPC. The due date for materials for the 1/21/2026 meeting was 1/6/2026, so adding this proposal would not be possible for the January meeting, and would have to be considered for a later date.

Thanks Jessie. Here are my thoughts:

Following its Dec. 16 public hearing, the City's Historic Preservation Commission (HPC) unanimously voted to deny the proposed demolition.

On Dec. 17, the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. An appeal is required to be considered by the City Council within 30 days.

A special City Council meeting was held at 7 p.m. Jan. 12, 2026, at Geneva City Hall. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than two-thirds of the alderpersons holding office (7 votes). At the City Council meeting, 6 alderpersons voted in favor of overturning the HPC and 4 voted to uphold the HPC's decision. ~~Overturning the HPC decision requires 7 votes.~~ As such, the appeal failed and demolition is denied.

City Council and Historic Preservation Commission meetings air live on Geneva Broadcast Network, which can be viewed on Comcast Ch. 10, AT&T U-Verse Ch. 99, or the City's YouTube channel. Previous meetings are also available to watch on YouTube. Interested parties may sign up to receive email alerts on the project's status through the "Notify Me" feature found on the City's website. Provide your email and select "Development Projects" to stay informed.

Following its Dec. 16 public hearing, the City's Historic Preservation Commission (HPC) unanimously voted to deny the proposed demolition.

On Dec. 17, the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. An appeal is required to be considered by the City Council within 30 days.

A special City Council meeting was held at 7 p.m. Jan. 12, 2026, at Geneva City Hall. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than two-thirds of the alderpersons holding office (7 votes). At the City Council meeting, 6 alderpersons voted in favor of overturning the HPC and 4 voted to uphold the HPC's decision. Overturning the HPC decision requires 7 votes. As such, the appeal failed and demolition is denied.

City Council and Historic Preservation Commission meetings air live on Geneva Broadcast Network, which can be viewed on Comcast Ch. 10, AT&T U-Verse Ch. 99, or the City's YouTube channel. Previous meetings are also available to watch on YouTube. Interested parties may sign up to receive email alerts on the project's status through the "Notify Me" feature found on the City's website. Provide your email and select "Development Projects" to stay informed.

Hi Anaïs,

Both the change in roof material and the change in attached steps would have to return to HPC as a change to an existing permit per the HPC Review Matrix. If you were just recladding the roof with the same materials, that would just be administrative approval. The HPC did recently deny a change in material to metal on a porch roof on Second Street because of concerns over character and material, which I want to make sure you're aware of.

In terms of the solar panels, I want to make sure I'm answering the right question. Do you mean implications on how the solar panels will react with the materials or implications involving the building code?

If you do decide you want to go forward with review for any of these changes, we would just have to see updated drawings for the roof and stair, and any material specs for the roof. Happy as always to answer any questions, and to meet or call if that's easier!

Thanks for reaching out! I'll keep an eye out for any updates.

Hi Emily,

We wound up needing to find a new contractor for our porch project and one thing that came up in that search was that the angle of the roof on the porch is so shallow that it would be more appropriate for it to have a rubber or metal roof, rather than shingles, so that it was better able to shed water. While a new roof was not an explicit part of our HPC application (and I'm not sure that it is covered by HP guidelines), it does seem likely that the renovation process will likely require roof replacement.

I was curious what the HP take on such roofing materials was, and also if there are implications for installing solar panels (I don't know if you or David would know that) on a rubber or metal roof. From an aesthetic perspective, I think we would be more inclined toward a metal roof, and the contractor we are planning to work with thinks that the costs are about equivalent between the two.

Another change we are considering is lowering the floor of the porch so that the ceiling inside is not quite so low. That would mean one fewer step outside (and one interior step). Would that require us to present a new application to HPC, or is that something that could be administratively reviewed?

Thanks!

Good Morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

I have received questions regarding 4 E. State Street from various Council members. As is the practice, I am providing the answers to the entire City Council.

Previous meeting dates regarding 4 E. State Street:

Please see page 2 of the staff report (page 21 of this meeting packet) for a summary of prior meetings including the landmark nomination, charrette, landmark boundary amendment, and demolition request.

Previous discussions about integrating the structure into future projects:

The short answer is that Shodeen was presenting this information to support their previous request for demolition, claiming that they met standard 3 and that the "retention of the structure would cause the owner undue economic hardship". The plan to adaptively reuse the structure was submitted with a detailed proforma to show the high cost per square foot to bring the building to a habitable condition and the low return on that investment. The HPC and CC denied demolition based on economic hardship because the applicant did not factor in that the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site where TIF assistance is needed, and concluded (with the help of a 3rd party consultant review the proforma) that preserving the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site with TIF assistance would not cause undue economic hardship.

Thank you, wishing you all a safe and Happy New Year!

Please mark your calendars for a Special City Council Meeting on Monday, January 12, 2026. A summary of the meeting purpose has been provided below by Director DeGroot.

On December 16th the Historic Preservation Commission unanimously voted to deny the demolition of the historic landmark located at 4 E State Street. On December 17th the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. The ordinance requires that the appeal be considered by the City Council within 30 days. A special City Council meeting will be held on January 12th where both the applicant and the historic preservation commission will have the right to be heard. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than 2/3 of the alderpersons holding office.

Good morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

Please mark your calendars for a Special City Council Meeting on Monday, January 12, 2026. A summary of the meeting purpose has been provided below by Director DeGroot.

On December 16th the Historic Preservation Commission unanimously voted to deny the demolition of the historic landmark located at 4 E State Street. On December 17th the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. The ordinance requires that the appeal be considered by the City Council within 30 days. A special City Council meeting will be held on January 12th where both the applicant and the historic preservation commission will have the right to be heard. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than 2/3 of the alderpersons holding office.

Information on the case can be found on the development projects page and in the agenda center.

Please do not hesitate to reach out with any questions.

Thank you,

Alex

Good Morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

I have received questions regarding 4 E. State Street from various Council members. As is the practice, I am providing the answers to the entire City Council.

Previous meeting dates regarding 4 E. State Street:

Please see page 2 of the staff report (page 21 of this meeting packet) for a summary of prior meetings including the landmark nomination, charrette, landmark boundary amendment, and demolition request.

Previous discussions about integrating the structure into future projects:

The short answer is that Shodeen was presenting this information to support their previous request for demolition, claiming that they met standard 3 and that the "retention of the structure would cause the owner undue economic hardship". The plan to adaptively reuse the structure was submitted with a detailed proforma to show the high cost per square foot to bring the building to a habitable condition and the low return on that investment. The HPC and CC denied demolition based on economic hardship because the applicant did not factor in that the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site where TIF assistance is needed, and concluded (with the help of a 3rd party consultant review the proforma) that preserving the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site with TIF assistance would not cause undue economic hardship.

Thank you, wishing you all a safe and Happy New Year!

From page 3 of packet HPC agenda - "On July 15, 2019, the City Council passed Resolution 2019-73 (attached)"

And also - I'm not finding a way to search for the resolutions on our website. Is there a way to do that? I find ordinances in the code but not resolutions.

Thanks,

Geneva commission again denies demolition request for landmarked structure at old Mill Race Inn site

Linda Girardi/The Beacon-News

By Molly Morrow | mmorrow@chicagotribune.com | Aurora Beacon-News

PUBLISHED: December 26, 2025 at 6:00 AM CST

Some say it's an eyesore. Others appeal to its history. Some want to see it repurposed, others call for its demolition.

But before it became a site for public debates, the limestone structure at 4 E. State St. had many lives, according to the city of Geneva: it was a blacksmith shop in the 1840s, a carriage painting shop shortly after the turn of the 20th century and was part of the property of a longstanding Geneva restaurant that operated from the 1930s until it shuttered in 2011.

In more recent years, what remains of the limestone building on the northern edge of the former Mill Race Inn property has been a source of contention in Geneva. Its owner has on several occasions appealed to the city to tear it down, the city has denied its requests, and preservationists have joined the mix in attempts to keep it standing. Last week, the city's Historic Preservation Commission unanimously shot down another request by Dave Patzelt, the president of Geneva-based Shodeen Group, to demolish the structure.

Its future remains uncertain, however, as Shodeen has already filed an appeal of the commission's decision, meaning the Geneva City Council could still override the commission and vote to allow demolition. Discussion at the Dec. 16 meeting also led to a number of calls for redeveloping the property — another matter that's come before the city in the past.

These debates about the structure at the former Mill Race Inn property in downtown Geneva have been years in the making.

According to the city, the limestone building was first the Alexander Brothers' Blacksmith Shop in the mid-19th century. Among other things, it later was used as a wagon manufacturing and blacksmithing shop, a cooperage and a carriage painting shop.

The site of the property later was incorporated into an iconic restaurant, the Mill Race Inn.

After almost 80 years, the Mill Race Inn closed in 2011, and the property was eventually acquired by Geneva-based development company Shodeen Group. Demolition of most of the property began in 2016. At the time, city officials said the developer would evaluate the 1840s-era limestone sections to determine if the structure could be considered a historic landmark or be incorporated within any future development of the property.

In 2017, Shodeen looked to demolish the limestone building that had been part of the restaurant property, but the matter was put on hold early in 2018 after a Geneva resident moved to get it designated as a historic landmark.

Later that year, the building got a landmark designation from the city, and preservationists advocated for repurposing the site for another use.

A residential development at the site was considered in 2019, but later rejected by the Geneva City Council.

Fast forward a few years, the Shodeen Family Foundation again requested permission to demolish the building, but it was unanimously shot down by the city's Historic Preservation Commission. Following an appeal by the developer, the City Council affirmed the commission's decision in 2023.

Later that year, the city cited the property owner for code violations, per documents from the city, and a ruling was made on the case in September 2025 in the city's favor, requiring that the building be made weather-tight.

Then, in recent months, Shodeen made a request for demolition again. The application by Patzelt claims that the stone structure "stands in the way of" redevelopment goals for the property and that "no positive impacts have been accomplished" in the eight years of discussions regarding the structure. The application asks the city to consider the demolition request on the grounds that the structure "is not in the best interest of the majority of the community."

At the Dec. 16 meeting Patzelt noted that, previously, part of the hold on the future of the building was to give residents additional time to find something that could be done with the structure.

"I would suggest that, whatever amount of time, that time has passed," Patzelt said. "It's been long enough. There's been several different attempts ... whether it's to find a buyer, to move the structure, to find somebody that is interested in renovating the structure or ... using it for some specific use."

He argued that the cost to repair the structure is in excess of what it's worth.

"The time has come that we need to make some further decisions on it," he said.

Several of the commissioners offered their opinions on the request at last week's meeting, and considered what the future of the property might look like.

Commissioner Jewel Jensen — pointing to the portion of Shodeen's application related to a failed stakeholder input initiative about the site — suggested that taxpayer-funded efforts to determine the property's future were not successful because the owner didn't ultimately submit development plans for approval, has not protected the structure from the elements and has not agreed to work with a study group about the site.

Jensen also noted the fine the owner has incurred from the city, questioning whether the city would have to pay it if the demolition request were to be approved.

Jensen also asked about the ownership, and Patzelt clarified that the property is no longer owned by Shodeen itself, but by the Mill Race Land Company, LLC. Shodeen remains listed as the contractor on the original application for demolition from October.

Some of the response to the request for demolition centered around the criticism that there had been no significant change since the last time Shodeen came to the city asking to tear down the structure.

"I just want to make clear ... that nothing has changed since 2023 in August when this commission denied demolition, with the exception of, I'm assuming, additional letters that are in favor of demolition being submitted to the commission," said Commissioner Kevin Phillips.

Patzelt said he would “admit that there’s maybe no change,” but reiterated that there had been a request for more time, more time had been given, and no solution has since materialized.

Phillips argued that, because that request for additional time didn’t come from the commission, it was “irrelevant” from anything being different from its latest decision in 2023.

“Since that time, Shodeen has done nothing except drag the city into hearings in courts and question the (commission’s) decision, and, in the meantime, has allowed that building to deteriorate such, to the point where, now, maybe many people in ... the community view it as an eyesore,” Phillips said. “You’re asking us to approve a demolition that basically is based on an eyesore that you’ve created.”

Patzelt said he doesn’t think much has changed from deterioration.

Commissioner Lisa McManus suggested that there should have been work on a development plan for the property.

“It’s just not a property, right now, that’s in good shape,” she said. “And the reality is that we need, rather than have these conversations about taking the building down, for years we could’ve just presented something ... Shodeen could be making money on this property, but yet here we are entertaining another demo request.”

Patzelt said that, to do so, Shodeen would need to know what is to be done with the structure in order to make a redevelopment plan.

And Commissioner Mike Riebe asked whether, if the structure must remain, Shodeen plans to let the property sit as is, rather than develop the site.

Patzelt said they would, and noted that structural engineers have said the walls and footings are not capable of sustaining any additional load, so they couldn’t put an addition on the building.

During the meeting, a number of residents — split between those in favor and those against demolition — also advanced their suggestions about the site and what they hoped would come of it.

Several of those opposed to demolition spoke of their hopes that the site would ultimately be redeveloped.

“If the (commission) were to deny this demolition application, there is an opportunity for the former blacksmith shop to be part of a larger redevelopment at a minimal cost to the property owner,” said Al Watts, the community engagement director of local nonprofit Preservation Partners of the Fox Valley. “Collaboration between the public and the owner with that goal in mind would likely accomplish something the community could be proud of that both honors the legacy of Geneva’s industrial past and stimulates Geneva’s future.”

Alan Leahigh, of Geneva, said Shodeen is bringing forward a “false choice” between keeping the structure or demolition, suggesting that efforts to restore or redevelop the building would be “much more favorably received” by the community.

And Lee Eysturid, who said he lives across the street from the structure, said whether the building is an “eyesore” is subjective, and criticized the “stonewalling of the process” as setting a precedent for the future. He also spoke about his view on preservation, including what the future of the site could end up as.

“It’s not just the present of the history ... that you preserve, but it’s the future of the history you preserve,” Eysturid said. “And it’s not just the building, it’s the space. And by removing the building, you open this space up to a six-story monolith. And I know that’s not part of the point, but it is the point, because history is also into the future. Otherwise, why are we preserving anything?”

Some individuals from the area felt otherwise, criticizing in particular the impact the deteriorating structure has on the neighborhood and the city’s economic position.

Herb Nachreiner, of Elgin, said that even decades ago, the blacksmith shop “was a piece of junk, and it’s even worse today.” He noted that the site is essentially the gateway to Geneva’s business district, and that businesses “never get a second chance at a first impression.”

“Move on,” Nachreiner said. “We’re beating a dead horse with this building.”

Similarly, Patrice Bertheau, of Geneva, pointed out that there is “no progress being made” on the property, and it is having an impact on “neighborhood pride and economic potential, as it discourages investment and tourism.”

Another nearby resident of the structure, Ed Streibig, said he hopes there will be a sidewalk by the site for safety reasons, and that he is “here looking for progress.”

“When I think about progress, the quickest way to progress seems like demolition,” Streibig said. He suggested taking the stone blocks from the structure and incorporating them into a new structure.

Ultimately, after the public hearing on the proposal for demolition, the commission again considered the possibility, but ultimately landed in opposition to Patzelt’s request.

Riebe said they haven’t gotten a “good faith proposal” for redeveloping the site and suggested that Shodeen has just been “waiting and waiting and waiting to strongarm — whether it’s us or City Council to give in, give them what they want.”

“The differences between the petition ... to demo a few years ago versus today is that the property has sat longer,” McManus added.

The commission also considered how it could judge what the consensus from the community is, and Jensen suggested that the owner and community don’t have to be in opposition going forward.

“I believe that we can come to a solution if we do work together on this,” Jensen said.

The commission ultimately unanimously shot down the demolition permit request on Tuesday.

But Patzelt, in an email to The Beacon-News, says an appeal has been filed with the City Council, which the city also confirmed. A city spokesman said the date the council will consider the matter has not yet been determined.

The City Council has the ability to uphold, amend or reverse the commission’s decision, Historic Preservation Commission Chair Paul Zellmer noted at the Dec. 16 meeting. Per the city, the council must vote on the commission’s determination within 30 calendar days of an appeal being made. A reversal or modification of the commission’s decision requires a two-thirds majority of the aldermen.

Hello Planet Depos,

I am attaching an edited version of the Historic Preservation Commission Meeting 121625 Full Size 611338 (Corrected) file which was sent to us last Wednesday, December 24th. I just checked and it has the same contents as the file of the same name sent last Friday, December 26th. There are still errors in some of the names of the speakers. I highlighted the errors and wrote the correct name in the comments. Additionally, I included the correct spelling for the names of the public comment speakers (which would not have been available to the recorder). Please correct these errors as outlined in my comments, in all versions of this transcript. I only edited the Full Size version but the errors are the same in the condensed and other versions.

Thank you,

Hello Planet Depos,

We noticed a few errors in this transcript that need to be fixed on your end.

1. Firstly, Mrs. Jessie Malkosky is not a commissioner, she is the Assistant Planner. For this meeting, her sole role was taking roll call for attendance, minutes approval, and motions. The transcripts reflect a Mr. Malkosky seconding motions, opening the public hearing, and participating in discussions. I am not sure who was actually participating in the discussions, but I can help with who made the motions. I have attached my record of who made what motion and who seconded it.
2. Additionally, Ms. Emily Stood is the city's Preservation Planner. The transcript notes that Ms. Stood participated in a discussion as a commissioner and moved to approve a motion as a commissioner. Again, I'm not sure who actually participated in the discussion, but my record of HPC motions may help you determine who made the motion.

If possible, could you let me know an estimated timeframe for fixing these errors and if anything additional needs to be completed on our end?

Thank you,

Last night, December 16, 2025, the demolition request of Geneva's 1840s blacksmith shop was denied unanimously by the Historic Preservation Commission (HPC).

Since nothing substantial had changed since demolition was denied in 2023, the HPC found no reason to change its position on this latest request. While there were many more letters and speakers favoring demolition than in 2023, the HPC was not convinced this meant that a majority of the community wanted demolition, as the applicant had argued.

We expect the owner to appeal to City Council for its January 5, 2026 meeting. A supermajority, 2/3 of the alderpersons present, would need to approve demolition to overrule the HPC.

Like the HPC, City Council will evaluate whether or not the majority of the community wants the demolition of the blacksmith shop. We encourage you to express your opinion by submitting a letter to Emily Stood, Geneva Preservation Planner, at estood@geneva.il.us, submitting a letter to your alderperson (their contact info is here), and/or attending the public meeting, expected to be January 5, 2026 at 7 PM at Geneva City Hall, 109 James Street.

Jessie,

I've asked the current shift supervisor to start looking for officers who would be available to work the overtime. Tonight's evening shift is at our minimum staffing requirements so we can't simply designate one of them to be there for the entire time in case an emergency came up elsewhere.

Hopefully we'll find someone available. I'm planning to leave here in the next 30 minutes or so to get some emergency plumbing work done at my house.

DC Maduzia was looped in and cc'd on the emails so he may be the one getting back to you.

Good afternoon.

Can you tell me if the HPC meetings are broadcasted live or if they are only available as a recording on YouTube?

If broadcasted live, do they get to the link from the HPC Agenda Center?

Typical practice is to post letters in a compiled set for efficiency and to make those materials more clear for community members. In following that practice, any additional letters we receive, including the one you attached, will be posted in a set next week before the meeting.

Of course, continue to send any additional letters you would like to be included, and those will be added to that list.

Thanks Jessie. Here are my thoughts:

Following its Dec. 16 public hearing, the City's Historic Preservation Commission (HPC) unanimously voted to deny the proposed demolition.

On Dec. 17, the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. An appeal is required to be considered by the City Council within 30 days.

A special City Council meeting was held at 7 p.m. Jan. 12, 2026, at Geneva City Hall. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than two-thirds of the alderpersons holding office (7 votes). At the City Council meeting, 6 alderpersons voted in favor of overturning the HPC and 4 voted to uphold the HPC's decision. ~~Overturning the HPC decision requires 7 votes.~~ As such, the appeal failed and demolition is denied.

City Council and Historic Preservation Commission meetings air live on Geneva Broadcast Network, which can be viewed on Comcast Ch. 10, AT&T U-Verse Ch. 99, or the City's YouTube channel. Previous meetings are also available to watch on YouTube. Interested parties may sign up to receive email alerts on the project's status through the "Notify Me" feature found on the City's website. Provide your email and select "Development Projects" to stay informed.

If you have questions, please contact our Community Development Department staff.

Subject: Comprehensive Plan Update

Good morning,

With the contract for the Comprehensive Plan update now approved, I will reach out to Lakota about an official schedule. Early on we will need to decide if we want the Planning & Zoning Commission to act as the Plan Commission required by State Statute ( I assume we do, as we have in the past) and what the composition of the steering committee should look like. My initial thoughts for City participation on the steering committee include:

Chairman of the PZC
Chairman of the HPC
PW Director or Asst. PW Director
ED Director
CD Director
City Administrator or Asst. City Administrator
Two Alderpersons
Mayor

Your thoughts on this list? Any other organizations you think should be represented on the steering committee (school, park, etc.)? We have time but I wanted to at least get the wheels spinning on this.

Subject: RE: Special City Council Meeting - Monday, January 12, 2026

Good Morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

I have received questions regarding 4 E. State Street from various Council members. As is the practice, I am providing the answers to the entire City Council.

Previous meeting dates regarding 4 E. State Street:

Please see page 2 of the staff report (page 21 of this meeting packet) for a summary of prior meetings including the landmark nomination, charrette, landmark boundary amendment, and demolition request.

Previous discussions about integrating the structure into future projects:

The short answer is that Shodeen was presenting this information to support their previous request for demolition, claiming that they met standard 3 and that the "retention of the structure would cause the owner undue economic hardship". The plan to adaptively reuse the structure was submitted with a detailed proforma to show the high cost per square foot to bring the building to a habitable condition and the low return on that investment. Subject: Special City Council Meeting - Monday, January 12, 2026

Good morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

Please mark your calendars for a Special City Council Meeting on Monday, January 12, 2026. A summary of the meeting purpose has been provided below by Director DeGroot.

On December 16th the Historic Preservation Commission unanimously voted to deny the demolition of the historic landmark located at 4 E State Street. On December 17th the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. The ordinance requires that the appeal be considered by the City Council within 30 days. A special City Council meeting will be held on January 12th where both the applicant and the historic preservation commission will have the right to be heard. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than 2/3 of the alderpersons holding office.

Please do not hesitate to reach out with any questions.

Thank you,

Alex

Hi Alex,
I've had a chance to review the attached files and have a question. The Shodeens had Altus Works complete a Mill Race Assessment Report outlining the development of the Blacksmith Shop. The report summary states that it will support "an adaptive reuse of historic Mill Race to serve as an office or retail space." It would "preserve and repair historic building elements while incorporating new elements that are sympathetic to existing building fabric." It included rebuilt masonry and steel supports, as well as mechanical, electrical, and plumbing. The total cost of design and construction was estimated to be $ 1,461,849. Why have they walked away from this plan? Are there things that might be done to induce them to reconsider it? This would seem to be a sensible path forward. What are your thoughts?
Thanks very much,
Mark

Subject: ATTORNEY CLIENT PRIVILEGE WORK PRODUCT - DRAFT AMENDMENT or AGREEMENT for DEMOLITION OF STRUCTURE at 4 E. STATE STREET
Importance: High

Alex, David & Ron,

Below is a stream of consciousness amendment/agreement related to the demolition of the structure at 4 E. State Street relevant to the advancement of redevelopment of property along the southeastern shore of Rt. 25 & Rt. 38.

There's a lot to digest so just let me know when you'd like to discuss and dissect. J

KB

DRAFT Demolition Permit Amendment/Agreement Toward Advancing Redevelopment of 4 E. State Street Property

1. ~~Upon careful and responsible disassembling of the structure (avoiding merely bulldozing), materials deemed worthy of preserving for monument design, development and installation shall be relocated from 4. E. State parcel and stored in a location agreed upon and authorized by the City. Costs associated with such work shall be paid for with TIF funds.~~ I don't think we should commit to this.
  2. Remaining material from the disassembled structure will be offered to the GHM as a right-of-first-refusal to be used for purposes including but not limited to, collections, fundraising (selling pieces), etc.
  3. Preserve sufficient material from structure to design and develop and educational structure (monument) recognizing the erstwhile Blacksmith Shop and its relationship to the City for public benefit and place said structure (monument) on or in close proximity to the redevelopment of the 4 E. State parcel. Does it have to be a separate monument? Or can it be incorporated into the structure and signed as such, or something along those lines?
  4. Design of said monument to be directed by a panel of citizens appointed by the City and will include at least 2 representatives of the City Council, 1 representative from GHM, 1 representative of the Shodeen Group/Foundation (??? not sold on Shodeen rep), 1 representative from the City's Historic Preservation Commission and 1 one at-large community representative. I would like to discuss this more, this part makes me nervous. We need a process that will help "rebuild" the relationship between the community and Shodeen – this could inhibit this. I like the spirit of it, but given the poor relationship would need to be very carefully managed.
  5. All costs associated with the design, development and installation of said monument will be paid for by a grant from the Shodeen Foundation and not to exceed $_____
- or...

All costs associated with the design, development and installation of said monument will be paid for by TIF funds as the monument is a "public benefit". Costs associated thereto will be deducted from the anticipated TIF request by Mill Race Land Company/Shodeen. I think the approval and or proposal to use public funds with the fines out in the wind would be a bad idea.

6. Perpetual care of said monument shall be paid for by TIF funds and upon expiration of the TIF said costs shall be transferred to the City (just as the "Rain Man" statute on S. Third Street). Same comment as above.
7. Payment of fines assigned to the Mill Race Land Company shall be recouped by the City (effective dates of aggregate fines tbd) by means of subtracting said amount of fines from anticipated TIF request by Mill Race Land Company/Shodeen and approved by the City. This needs to be front and center and carefully articulated. Top of the fold as they say.

NOTE:

Per our own code we need to add dates and expectations of when disassembling of structure must commence.

Notice that I have not included any redevelopment deadline submittal date...should I/we?

Subject: Comprehensive Plan Update

Good morning,

With the contract for the Comprehensive Plan update now approved, I will reach out to Tesla about an official schedule. Early on we will need to decide if we want the Planning & Zoning Commission to act as the Plan Commission required by State Statute ( I assume we do, as we have in the past) and what the composition of the steering committee should look like. My initial thoughts for City participation on the steering committee include:

Chairman of the PZC
PW Director or Asst. PW Director
ED Director
CD Director
City Administrator or Asst. City Administrator
Two Alderpersons
Mayor

Your thoughts on this list? Any other organizations you think should be represented on the steering committee (school, park, etc.)? We have time but I wanted to at least get the wheels spinning on this.

Thanks,

I do respond to people in Geneva that reach out to my email or text. Some questions are directed to multiple people and if someone else sends the question to the responsible party, I usually do not duplicate the message. I also talk to people while out in the community.

I would be available to meet with you to talk about the Mill Race Inn or any other issues.

Subject: vote no to petition to demolish historic Blacksmith shop

Hello,

I am contacting you to encourage you to say no to the most recent petition from the Shodeen group to demolish the Blacksmith Shop on the site of the previous Mill Race Inn property. The Historical Preservation Committee has denied this request on multiple occasions. I implore to honor their sound reasoning for this and uphold their decision. In a recent HPC meeting, the following was stated:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

Shodeen shot down in showdown: Judge affirms Geneva ruling on 1840s blac...

Kane County Circuit Judge Elizabeth Flood ruled this week that Geneva developer Shodeen Group cannot evade the c...

There are many reasons to uphold the HPC decision. In support of them, I provide the following rationale:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine, even though there is a court order to do so. I am confused as to why a public entity is allowed to disregard the law and why the local governing body allows this. Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure. They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument, that also fell flat as why weren't other vacant buildings (Campana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr. It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. Now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. The Shodeen/Patzelt group has not pursued any available funding from historical societies. There are grants available from a number of resources that have been mentioned to this group at a previous HPC meeting by representatives from the state historical entities. These suggestions and resources have been blatantly ignored.

6. Why destroy a historical building and site if we have no idea what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval? It is on a floodplain, would require allowances for ingress and egress for two state highways, and no environmental impact study has been completed. Until these items are completed, why is a "possible construction project" even being considered?

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner. Geneva claims to be a historical community. It is time to keep history from being destroyed.

Hello,

I am contacting you to encourage you to say no to the most recent petition from the Shodeen group to demolish the Blacksmith Shop on the site of the previous Mill Race Inn property. The Historical Preservation Committee has denied this request on multiple occasions. I implore to honor their sound reasoning for this and uphold their decision. In a recent HPC meeting, the following was stated:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

Shodeen shot down in showdown: Judge affirms Geneva ruling on 1840s blac...

Kane County Circuit Judge Elizabeth Flood ruled this week that Geneva developer Shodeen Group cannot evade the c...

There are many reasons to uphold the HPC decision. In support of them, I provide the following rationale:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine, even though there is a court order to do so. I am confused as to why a public entity is allowed to disregard the law and why the local governing body allows this. Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure. They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument, that also fell flat as why weren't other vacant buildings (Campana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr. It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. Now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. CAUTION: This email originated from outside the City of Geneva. Exercise caution when opening attachments or on clicking links from unknown senders.

Hello:

This is my plea to you to uphold the good work of Geneva's Historical Preservation Commission (HPC) in its, and ideally your, denial of the request to demolish the 1840s Blacksmith shop.

I quote:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

The reasons to say no, I would offer, are:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine (why not? There was a court order. What happened here? Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure.). They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument (it's an eyes-sore, don't you know?) that also fell flat in that why weren't other vacant buildings (Capana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. The idea of "moving" of a historic structure sounds good, but it clearly robs the site and the building of their historic meaning. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr, but does anyone know or care? It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. And now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. Why do this until we know for sure what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval. It is on a floodplain, for example.

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner.

Dear Alderpersons,

The current demolition request for 4 E. State is going to be decided on January 12th, and I wanted to share my thoughts on the matter with you.

I realize you all are aware of the previous votes on this matter, as well as the legal decisions that have been issued in the last year or so. All of these votes/decisions were to maintain and protect the landmark status of the blacksmith structure.

While I agree with the past decisions, I also believe that the current petition presents a threat to the City's landmark ordinance.

The landmark status was granted without any time limit for redevelopment. The City has worked with the owner to determine a potential redevelopment project, and viable options were identified.

City Code 10-6-10 Part 13 C states that buildings and structures designated as a historic landmark shall be maintained and protected from demolition that results from neglect or undeterred deterioration of the exterior features or structural elements. This Duty to Maintain specifically requires the owner of record to repair any deficient element contributing to material deterioration of the structure. I see the refusal of the owner to properly protect the structure from the elements as evidence of this breach. The courts agreed.

To my knowledge, the owner has not presented a redevelopment plan since the conclusion of the charette project. A presentation of a plan would allow for the City and the owner to work through some of the potential obstacles to moving forward. One key point to work through would be the extent that TIF financing is available for this redevelopment. A key provision to our landmark ordinance is that demolition is considered only when all other redevelopment options have been exhausted. ( CC 10-6-10 4) How can all options be considered exhausted when none have been presented? It seems like a decision to allow demolition at this point in time is rewarding the owner for not maintaining the structure, as well as for not presenting any type of redevelopment plan. Would the City allow this failure to maintain our historic, protected, structures in the Historic District to occur for years?

The landmark owner stated at the last HPC meeting that no redevelopment plan will be presented as long as the blacksmith shop remains. This statement indicates a complete refusal to even attempt to exhaust all redevelopment options. This intransigence should not be rewarded. The historic preservation and landmark ordinances of the City deserve support and compliance.

Finally, I do not believe that demolition of the blacksmith structure is in the best interest of the majority of residents. There are many ways to evaluate this question, and arguments for both sides of demolition could be considered valid.

Is the best interest of the majority of residents determined by the highest EAV for the property? The greatest sales tax generated? The largest draw of out-of-town visitors? The priceless value of the sightline of the riverfront and the downtown? The potential benefits of being the only Fox River town with a renovated pre-Civil War industrial structure that once was the life blood of most river towns?

Demolition of the structure would eliminate some of the positive outcomes for residents that I mentioned above. I do not believe that the passage of time, and deterioration of the structure from neglect, should become the main drivers to evaluate the best interests of the majority of residents. Clearly, the majority of residents want the current status of the site to be improved. That does not mean that demolition is the only path forward to resolving this impasse.

I appreciate all of your efforts and work. You have a difficult, but clear, decision to make on Monday.

Thanks,

I live in the Third Ward 3 blocks southeast of the 180-year-old blacksmith shop and value Geneva's heritage. Please do not overrule or modify the HPC's unanimous decision (I submitted comments before their meeting). The property owners knew what they were getting into. I'm fine with putting a roof on it and strengthening it, with a nice sign, with graphics, telling the many passersby on 38 what it is. It is so much more important to our city than a structure one might find in, say, Schaumburg.

Thank you for your consideration and your service.

Alderman Kilburg,

To the members of the Geneva City Council,

Although we live in the 1st Ward, we're writing to all of you because this is an issue that involves all of the City of Geneva: the preservation and repurposing of the historic blacksmith shop on East State St.

When the developer acquired this property, they were quoted in the Daily Herald as recognizing the historic importance of this building and they stated their intention to preserve it. When they demolished the rest of the old Mill Race Inn they took great care to preserve the blacksmith shop which, at that time had been incorporated into the structure of the restaurant.

But then, some time later, they submitted an application to the City to demolish the building. The fact that they submitted their request shortly before Christmas, when people were likely to be distracted by the upcoming holidays, that they knew that the building had no historic preservation protection, and that such a demolition request is frequently issued promptly as a matter of course, one might surmise that they were confident that the request would be granted and the building demolished before preservationists could react.

Fortunately, a concerned citizen learned of the application and worked almost overnight to submit an application to Landmark the old building. That, of course, halted any action to demolish it. The building was then granted Landmark status by HPC and the City Council.

Since then the developer has made many attempts to get the City to revoke the landmark status of the building. In each case the City has firmly rejected each request. And now they are trying yet once again to get the City to reverse itself and once again the HPC has unanimously ejected their request.

We don't understand their reasoning for committing so much time and money over the years in their repeated attempts to get the City to change its mind, but at this point their submitting yet another request seems almost abusive.

This developer has successfully and creatively restored numerous historic buildings in Geneva. These include The Herrington Inn complex, The Riverside Banquets complex, and The Dodson Place complex. Compared with these developments the blacksmith shop is a very small project. In a city that prides itself on historic preservation as an important aspect of its "brand" it would be a shame for the City to cave and allow this building to be demolished now.

We ask you to once again deny the request to demolish this historic structure and to support an honest effort on the part of the developer to restore and repurpose it.

Most sincerely,

Colin C. and Glorianne S. Campbell

Good morning.

Apparently, there is at least one and may be more letters about the demolition of the Blacksmith shop floating around that I have not seen and that have not been posted on the City website. A copy of one example is attached. This was not included in the batch I provided to you. I have reached out to Emily to find out if there are more letters than this one.

Good morning Kevin,

Happy to meet! We have an HPC meeting this Tuesday that has me pretty busy for the first half of the week, but Thursday or Friday I am available any time. If either of those days works please let me know.

As an aside, I saw the church lit up for Christmas during the Cookie Walk, and it looked great! I was very excited to see it.

Hi Emily,

I hope all is well with you. I'd like to schedule a meeting with you to review a new project at UUSG. We will be installing security cameras on the building and electronic entry devices on the doors in the next couple of months. Before we sign with a contractor, I want your advice on how to proceed with the Historic Preservation Commission. Are you available before the end of the year, say next week December 15th?

Emily,

We do not have the exact color name for what is currently on the home. I have attached a photo of the roof shingles currently on the roof, it looks like we are replacing it with matching colors.

Hi Anaïs,

Just a follow up from our call! I spoke to Brian and his advice was to just wait until you're able to do some exploratory demo to make any changes to your plans on the structure of the porch. There are a few options, such as additional piers, that could work with the structural changes in case the long rim joist idea ends up not seeming successful after that demo. He just wanted to make you aware to try to minimize surprises (as I'm sure you've already experienced is common with historic work.) For now, our advice is to work through the HPC approval process and then just stay in contact through the demo and construction process on any changes to the permit! Hopefully that relieves some stress in working out that detail of the permit change.

Hi Anaïs,

Thank you for the updated drawing and this form! We are processing that and beginning work on the packet now. I'll make a note of that roof pitch and the code in the packet so the Commission is aware ahead of time. I'll also keep an eye out for the info on roofing materials.

Before we get ahead of ourselves (and while the weather is still decent) I would recommend just triple checking the ability to fasten the future porch to the frame of the house, as drawn (of course just lower), rather than needing to fasten that to your foundation. Like I mentioned, that would end up being a structural change and require more oversight from Building. When I mentioned these updates to Brian today, he brought that up again as a concern that might lengthen permit review time, so I just want to give you as much time as possible in case that ends up being a concern. In the meantime, I'll keep up the work on the HPC review!

Thanks, Emily!

Thanks so much for all the info! I reviewed the guidelines you linked to, and since I don't think that there are any original materials or particularly historic design/details for the porch roof, I didn't see much there that seemed very relevant to this proposed change. I also went back and remeasured the blueprints more carefully, and I think the shed roof pitch is actually 2.2:12 not 2.7:12. Separately, I sent a version of the East elevation with a seamed metal roof drawn in with 12" seams. I don't have more info yet on the specific materials for the roof, but have reached out to our contractor to ask for that.

Thanks!

Subject: Porch Roof and Steps

Hi Anaïs,

Thanks for calling today! Attached are the current design guidelines for more clarity on that porch roof question. I would look at both page 52 – residential roofs, and page 66 – porches for your specific proposal. As for proposal materials, I just checked in with Brian and have some info from Building and an HPC list for you.

Typically on a change like this, Brian would ask for revised drawings after construction to confirm everything. Since it also has to go before HPC, for now we're going to ask for exterior elevations with the changes drawn for the Commissioner review. Additional needs on the interior can go through the normal Building process. He did want to call out to you that one concern to check on before moving forward is whether there is space on the body of the house to attach the rim joist to with the lowered floor. Basically, if the new floor attaches lower, and ends up needing to go into a foundation like stacked limestone instead of the frame of the house, that's a larger change and Building would have to get more involved early on. He also confirmed that typically if a pitch is less than 2/12 asphalt shingles aren't as successful with water shed.

So what we're looking at now for application materials is as follows. Like I said on the phone, technically this month's application materials are due today. Next months are due 2/3. The other house I mentioned which looked at doing a metal porch roof was 127 Second Street, if you're interested in checking that out as well!

1. Elevation drawings that illustrate the new proposal. I would recommend a front and at least one side. I'll use your previous drawings in the packet to illustrate what's changing.
2. Material information on the metal roof

Thanks again, and feel free to reach out with questions,

Thanks, Emily!

Thanks so much for all the info! I reviewed the guidelines you linked to, and since I don't think that there are any original materials or particularly historic design/details for the porch roof, I didn't see much there that seemed very relevant to this proposed change. I also went back and remeasured the blueprints more carefully, and I think the shed roof pitch is actually 2.2:12 not 2.7:12. Separately, I sent a version of the East elevation with a seamed metal roof drawn in with 12" seams. I don't have more info yet on the specific materials for the roof, but have reached out to our contractor to ask for that.

Here is the application front form; I'll plan to drop off a signed copy tomorrow.

Thanks!

Hi Anaïs,

Thanks for calling today! Attached are the current design guidelines for more clarity on that porch roof question. I would look at both page 52 – residential roofs, and page 66 – porches for your specific proposal. As for proposal materials, I just checked in with Brian and have some info from Building and an HPC list for you.

Typically on a change like this, Brian would ask for revised drawings after construction to confirm everything. Since it also has to go before HPC, for now we're going to ask for exterior elevations with the changes drawn for the Commissioner review. Additional needs on the interior can go through the normal Building process. He did want to call out to you that one concern to check on before moving forward is whether there is space on the body of the house to attach the rim joist to with the lowered floor. Basically, if the new floor attaches lower, and ends up needing to go into a foundation like stacked limestone instead of the frame of the house, that's a larger change and Building would have to get more involved early on. He also confirmed that typically if a pitch is less than 2/12 asphalt shingles aren't as successful with water shed.

So what we're looking at now for application materials is as follows. Like I said on the phone, technically this month's application materials are due today. Next months are due 2/3. The other house I mentioned which looked at doing a metal porch roof was 127 Second Street, if you're interested in checking that out as well!

- Elevation drawings that illustrate the new proposal. I would recommend a front and at least one side. I'll use your previous drawings in the packet to illustrate what's changing.
- Material information on the metal roof

Thanks again, and feel free to reach out with questions,

Ok, great! I think I can add in a drawing with a seam metal roof and I've filled out the application form. Seems like we are in a bit of a grey zone with the roof pitch. Close to the absolute minimum recommended for asphalt, so metal works better (costs more), and I'd love to hear from our building department if they/our code has a recommendation.

Anaïs,

These drawings work! I think if you're able to just highlight where the metal roof would be proposed and send along some specs of what that material would be we'd have everything we need. I won't be starting on the packet today, so if it's easier to send that along by tomorrow morning that would be fine.

Hi Emily,

I used the blueprints to trace/amend the stairs elevations to show what one fewer exterior step would look like. Can you let me know if you think this is adequate pictorial representation for an HPC review? If so, I'll fill out an application form for this amendment to our current application.

Thanks!

Hi Emily,

We wound up needing to find a new contractor for our porch project and one thing that came up in that search was that the angle of the roof on the porch is so shallow that it would be more appropriate for it to have a rubber or metal roof, rather than shingles, so that it was better able to shed water. While a new roof was not an explicit part of our HPC application (and I'm not sure that it is covered by HP guidelines), it does seem likely that the renovation process will likely require roof replacement.

I was curious what the HP take on such roofing materials was, and also if there are implications for installing solar panels (I don't know if you or David would know that) on a rubber or metal roof. From an aesthetic perspective, I think we would be more inclined toward a metal roof, and the contractor we are planning to work with thinks that the costs are about equivalent between the two.

Another change we are considering is lowering the floor of the porch so that the ceiling inside is not quite so low. That would mean one fewer step outside (and one interior step). Would that require us to present a new application to HPC, or is that something that could be administratively reviewed?

Thanks!

Thank you for your email, Emily. I left you a long voicemail. We would like to get the materials for the meeting to you as soon as possible.

After reading your email, my husband, Tim, pointed out that actually our windows are in fact aluminum facing out due to the storm triple tracks that are on the windows. Our decision, and an expensive one at that, to go with the Marvin elevate, vastly improves the contributing historic facade of our home.

We will look forward to working on this together with you. My phone is: 630-621-7221.

Kind regards,

Susan

Good afternoon Susan,

I've had some time to review your paperwork and the files we have on your property. According to our files, your home was constructed in 1957, which is within the 1835-1966 Period of Significance for the historic district, so it is actually rated as a Contributing historic building.

Also according to our files, it looks like your existing windows are wood, and your proposed replacements appear to be a fiberglass/wood mix, which would indicate that this is not a like for like replacement in terms of material, which the HPC does have to consider. This means we will need some extra information in order to present the most thorough case possible to the HPC. I am attaching our Window Replacement Checklist to this email, which sums up that information. The specs you provided includes most of the information required on the Alternative Material section. Like we discussed yesterday, these materials will be necessary for the review of any street-facing windows you are proposing to replace.

The next deadline for HPC meeting materials is February 3rd, with the actual meeting scheduled for February 18th. I am happy to work with you during that period in gathering the additional information needed for this review, and can provide additional options for resources as needed. Hi Susan,

Thank you for getting back to me so quickly, I apologize that we keep missing each other! I just left you a voicemail but wanted to follow up by email as well! A couple things:

We totally understand your frustration and definitely want to work with you as much as possible to make this process smooth. We appreciate all the work you've done already on research and that will be great for the Commission to see as well.
In terms of the like for like label – thank you for that clarification! We're glad you're looking at the characteristics of the windows overall. The preservation guidelines adopted by the city prioritize repair over replacement, followed by replacement with a like material over replacement with an alternate material, which is why that detail is so important. On many historic homes introducing new materials can affect the overall building, which is why the HPC takes review of those new introductions so seriously, and requires enough information on the other two options to understand why those aren't feasible. I linked those guidelines below and am happy to also send along the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation, which Geneva also follows.
Thank you for the detail on those existing storms as well. Typically storms are not applicable for HPC review because they are designed to be removable, so our focus is still on the body of the window which stays in the house year-round. If the storms are somehow physically combined with the normal windows, that is a different consideration.
Any photos like you mentioned on the phone would be great! I'll be able to include everything in the Staff Report for the HPC so they can understand the reason for the project visually as well as in writing.
Additionally, so that I can set you up for a meeting involving all the windows, please send along the specs for the other windows proposed for replacement when you can. I'll package those all together and label them in the Staff Report.

Hi Emily - Thank you for the reminder. I will be there on Wednesday to answer any questions.

After reading your writeup within the agenda, I'd like to offer up some observations for additional clarification.

I would label my house design "English Arts & Crafts" vs. "Millennium Mansion". My architect labeled it as such.

We worked very hard to reduce the mass of the design to comply with the Geneva's zoning requirements...the home is very well designed to minimize mass.

We designed a "coach load" garage to push the mass back and to be more esthetically appealing with not having a traditional front load garage.

The peak of the house is 32' 3" from the 1st floor and the peak is pushed way back from the front at nearly ~100 ft from the front property line. The attached pdf of the front elevation is without the shed roof that is in the background on the west side. The shed roof in the originally provided CAD drawing makes the front look larger than it will appear in reality.

My house's height at its peak of 32' 3" is considerably lower than my next door neighbor's house to the east located at 502 S. Fourth Street. I'm assuming that the height of the house across the street at 422 S. Fourth Street is most similar to mine.

Best regards,
Steve

Good morning,

You are receiving this email as a reminder of the January HPC meeting, scheduled for Wednesday, 1/21 at 7pm in Geneva City Hall – Council Chambers. Your application is included in the Agenda and Staff Report, available at the linked Agenda Center. A representative of the project is required to attend the meeting in-person for discussion. Please note that the meeting will be on Wednesday, not Tuesday as is typical for HPC meetings, due to Monday's holiday. Feel free to reach out with any questions or concerns before the meeting.

Hi Steve,

Thank you for these! You are on the agenda for the January meeting and I'll keep you updated as I build out your packet. As this is for more of a Concept Review, the conversation will be more informal than the last meeting you attended, but I hope you're able to get a lot out of it before returning for your Permit Review.

Good afternoon,

I hope you're doing well! This message is to remind you that materials for the January HPC meeting are due Tuesday, January 6. As we exit the holiday season, I know everyone has been busy, so please ensure that you keep that date in mind so that we are able to help you keep your project moving forward. If you are receiving this message, we have discussed required materials for your project, but as always, I am happy to answer any follow up questions or clarify details.

Additionally, due to Martin Luther King, Jr. day, the January HPC meeting will not occur on Tuesday, the 20th, but on Wednesday, the 21st. As we've discussed, a representative of the project is required to be at the meeting for the discussion. The meeting will still begin at 7 pm and occur at City Hall. I'm looking forward to reading through all this when I have a moment. In the meantime, I just want to get these drawings over to you to ask if they are sufficient for what you're looking for. We have decided that we are just going to pursue the full permit. So I want to be prepared by January 6 when the materials are due. I also have a list of construction materials in the form of a receipt. Is that sufficient?

TJ,

Sounds good, we will keep an eye out for your message.

In future, my recommendation is that if you think reconstruction at this scale might be necessary, you mention it when you apply for the initial permit. That way, Staff and the Commission can work with you to get any preliminary approvals you might need ahead of time, instead of having to pause partway through the process. That way you would have the option to go further if you needed to, but wouldn't be required to do the full work if you didn't end up needing to. This is what many of the other contractors in the area do, and it works well for them, keeping properties in the district from ending up in this situation.

Our goal is always to be as efficient as possible, and one of the easiest ways to help that is to communicate early and often, especially in historic districts, as I'm sure you've experienced in your work. By encouraging that communication, and holding everyone to the same standard, we find that everyone expects the same system, which is a big part of our strategy in making the process applicant-friendly.

That said, we're always looking to improve the process, and appreciate comments from all applicants.

Thank you for the update on the lumber!

Emily,

I need to meet with Chad and determine a direction. Which will likely be to push off any work until after permit approval, of which we don't even know we need, and time and money neither of us will get back if we don't need it.

It begs the question, what would the HPC have done if I opened this roof and then discovered that more work was needed? Force me to stop work with an exposed rafter system, causing a public safety issue and potentially more damage to an already old structure?

Surely there has to be a better and more efficient way on your end to handle situations like this. You are prestigious Geneva. It's an honor to work in your town. I hope that moving forward you as a committee figure out how to make your process more homeowner and contractor friendly. I can't say you have the best reputation in the industry. Driving away good contractors does nothing to help restore and keep historic Geneva alive and beautiful.

Just some unsolicited thoughts. I respect you enough to share them. Talk soon.

TJ,

Yes, normal permit review would include an HPC meeting. Like I said on the phone, admin approval is typically not approved in this case due to the extent of work, and during our meeting today our team agreed that we would not be able to make exceptions. In any case, permit documents should be submitted before work is done.

As long as all materials are prepared, it is typical that only one HPC meeting would be required. This case is different from the siding case you experienced earlier because there will be no price comparisons or material differences in any replacements, which should aid efficiency in the Commission's decision-making.

I CC'ed Brian on this email again just to keep him in the loop.

Emily,

The wood will be moved tomorrow.

Does "undergo normal permit review" include waiting for a meeting in January? If so, this is about the worst case scenario compared to what we discussed yesterday.

As far as I know, the jack was put up because when my initial crew was not confident doing the work, Chad wanted to be extra cautious about an unknown.

There are exposed rafters from the inside. We did try to determine the required work the first time we were there. But there was no conclusion, which is why we felt it best to make that determination by doing a complete tear off and pulling up the decking. If I could've made that conclusion from the inside, I would've already applied for the necessary permit.

I can have all of these materials ready for you. But how am I to proceed if we tear it off and notice that it is above and beyond normal permit purview? We then have to wait for a meeting? Of which you know there is no guarantee of approval, as most contractors have to go through several meetings to get approval through the HPC. What does that also do for public safety, leaving an exposed roof with materials through winter and regarding Julie and her parallel driveway?

Can this be handled like we discussed on the phone? Where I have those permit materials prepared, we go and do the tear off, and if it is deemed beyond replacing a few boards we can continue with the work and I can submit the materials to you at the same time? Because with all due respect, it seems egregiously bureaucratic and unproductive to halt work and potentially carry this through the dead of winter, with an open and exposed roof, with no gutters, and Julie pulling her car in and out and walking that driveway with her daughter, Jeanie...just to go through a round of meetings to restore a garage (which is an addition) back to original shape and structure.

If calling is easier, I'm available. But please advise as soon as possible. Thank you, Emily.

Hi TJ,

We got together this morning to discuss the details of your case, and I did confirm that if the project goes beyond normal maintenance and repair, you will need to undergo normal permit review including the HPC review.

If you're able to estimate work from the interior of the garage, this may be able to better inform whether or not this work goes beyond normal maintenance and repair. I don't know the exact details, but Chad did let us know that there is a jack holding some things up inside the garage, which leads me to assume that the framing is at least partially exposed, as is pretty typical in historic garages. Hopefully this strategy would help you calculate timing for yourself and your team.

In order to streamline things for everyone involved, I included a bullet pointed list of additional materials which would be required for a new permit if the work does end up going beyond normal maintenance and repair. Feel free to reach out to myself or the Building Department on these permit requirements; Brian Byrne, our Building Commissioner, is CC'ed on this email so he's in the loop. Of course we already have the information on the shingles from your reroofing permit, so there's no need to resend that information. I know you like to plan ahead, so my recommendation is to get materials together earlier rather than later if you think there is any chance the work could go beyond normal maintenance and repair after taking a look inside the garage. That way Staff can work with you to make any necessary adjustments to minimize time spent in HPC meetings.

1. Normal drawing set for roof construction, including section and plan drawings
2. Documentation of damaged elements (typically labeling photos on a Word document or pdf is easiest for applicants)
3. Written scope of work, including that details like pitch, height, etc would be replaced like for like

Finally, just to keep you updated, I did let our Code Compliance Officer know that you plan to move that lumber out of sight, so that should hopefully take the temperature down for everyone a little.

Like I said, feel free to reach out to myself or Brian with any questions. If you have anything that might involve both of us, you can always just reply all to this email and we'll both be able to see it and help you out! Thank you,

Emily-

Brian told me that I can't fix my roof yesterday. The materials will be no good in 30-60 days sitting outside. That's 2600 dollars. I basically give up regarding the HPC and feel people should be give more obvious disclosures regarding this nutty process prior to purchasing a home in the district. I need administrative approval to proceed fixing the roof like-for-like or I'm not sure how to proceed. I can't start and then stop as It's winter and the materials were already purchased and are sitting outside. Please let me know how to proceed. I'm not making a drawing more complex than a simple pencil drawing showing the pitch and the hip on front.

The other option is to leave the structure as is. If you want me to see the committee I'll go that option. I'm not standing in front of those people again. Sorry.

Chad

Ms. Stood,

I have been involved in the effort to see that the blacksmith building be preserved, restored, and repurposed since at least 2014. I'm sorry that I am not able to attend the HPC meeting this evening but I have a prior commitment that I must attend.

It seems to be fairly obvious at this point that the owners of this building are willing to spend unlimited time and money in an effort to wear the City down and get their way.

Given their history of successfully restoring and repurposing historic buildings in the immediate area (Herrington Inn and Riverside Banquets) I simply can't understand their refusal to undertake the relatively small project of doing the same with the blacksmith shop.

I urge the HPC and will urge the City Council to reject their request and to offer appropriate incentives to the owners to make it clear that the City will not issue a demolition permit for this building.

Thank you.

Good morning Donna,

Thank you for your comments! Being an optimist is always a good thing in my opinion.

In terms of the initial demolition – when Shodeen purchased the property and began demolition, they agreed to leave the stone blacksmith shop up for investigation after pulling down the rest of the wood frame restaurant, because it was known that the stone existed within the larger building. This was before anything on the property had been landmarked, so that part of the demolition did not undergo HPC review. A lot of that history is described in the most recent agenda and packet, and videos of meetings referenced in that packet are available on YouTube.

In terms of many of your other comments, I would recommend you reach out to your alderpersons in order to make your voice heard. Their contact info is available here. Since the Public Hearing with the HPC is closed, and their decision has been made, they are no longer receiving comments for deciding the case. An appeal has been submitted by the property owners, so City Council will be the next group to make a decision on the case.

Thank you again, and have a good day,

I certainly do NOT want the blacksmith shop destroyed after all the destruction has occurred on this site. All the adjacent buildings are gone and the restaurant basement where parties and lovely family memories were made is not visible-maybe it's underwater by now with all of the neglect. So it's not just the buildings that need love and attention and protection from ambitious developers but the land itself. Whatever happened to that restaurant? We know what happened to the bike and thrift shop. Was it wise to tear things down and give Shodeen the upper hand to assume they could keep tearing down ALL structures? Can you get me up to speed here and check my attitude? This has all been unfortunate. How can we move past all of this in a positive manner?

I think enough destruction has occurred on this property. We need the blacksmith shop-even if we use only the stones to recreate the foundation. Can the city or some friendly entity legally buy the property back from Shodeen? And can this entity plan for the construction and development of this historic site that can be enjoyed by the citizens of Geneva and anyone who visits our charming town? This can be an investment in tourism-for real. The Cooperage made barrels- maybe let's plan a brewery there. Let's find an architectural plan for a real blacksmith shop again and have a real blacksmith create functional art and sell it on site-fences, locks, pots and pans...Let's plan for maybe a glassworks shop with artists making glass wares and selling them. There's more to consider...just think of the possibilities. We need a positive way forward.

I know-I'm an optimist.

I just wanted to give you a heads up in case you didn't already see it in the news that the appeal for 4 E State Street has been submitted to be brought to City Council. It looks like the appeal will be considered at the January 12th meeting. As I'm sure you know, the HPC has a right to speak at the meeting, basically to sum up why the demolition was denied again.

Since you're the chair, I wanted to get that in front of you first to see if you're available to speak or if you would need another member to attend that meeting. I'll be sending out an announcement email to the entire Commission once the date is added to our website later today. No worries! I didn't expect any quick responses last week.

That's perfect that you're already planning on being there. I'm attaching the script that Jewel used during the last appeal, if that's helpful in making up a new script. Happy to help pull together an updated version for this time around if you'd like. I can always hop on a call or set up a meeting if that's easier as well. I think the goal would be similar to the HPC meeting in making sure we really stick to the current application and emphasize everyone's conclusions from the meeting.

Either way, I'll keep you updated if anything changes as we get closer to the meeting!

Thank you,

Hi Lisa,

Hope you're doing well, and that your holiday season has been good! I have an ask for you.

As you know, the appeal was submitted for 4 E State Street, and will be going before the City Council on January 12. The HPC has a right to give a statement at this meeting, along with the applicant. Paul is not available to attend the meeting, so we're looking for another member to attend and make that statement. Would you be available to speak at the meeting? You would basically have to read off a summary of the conclusions you all reached when the demolition was denied on the 16th. We thought you would be great because you have experience with this project and you have a knack for summing things up well in meetings. I would of course be happy to talk with you about the meeting process or a statement before hand as well. If you're not available, just let me know and I can ask someone else.

Thank you in advance!

Hi Al,

Yes, an appeal has been filed. We don't have an official date for the appeal yet, but that will be announced on the City website when we do. In any case, code gives 30 days for an appeal to be reviewed by council once it is received, so it will be within the month.

Since the public hearing is closed, I've been pointing anyone with comments to their alderpersons. Just wanted to let you know since I know you've been keeping your members updated and included my contact as well! Of course, I can always help answer questions or point people towards resources like meeting videos, but the HPC itself has made their official decision on this application so any comment on the appeal is more for City Council at this point.

Thanks, and happy holidays if I don't hear from you!

Hi Emily,

In an article in the Kane County Chronicle last week, David Patzelt indicated that he intended to appeal HPC's denial of a demolition permit on December 16, 2025. Has the appeal been filed, and when would you expect it to come before the City Council?

Thanks!

Thank you for reaching out! The HPC appreciates hearing from all residents. Just so you know, since the public hearing is closed, they are no longer receiving comments for the actual hearing of the case. Any public comments at this point should go to your alderpersons so that it can be considered by City Council. I linked the page with alderperson contact info below.

Emily,

Please thank the HPC for letting the Blacksmith shop remain standing. I was born and raised in Geneva (living on Richards and Richards Streets) and am disappointed that many of the historic buildings have been razed. I fondly remember riding down Richards past the Cetron building to go to Jewel and Coast to Coast across 38 back in the 70's. Every time I drive through Geneva, something is always amiss.

Please continue the efforts to save the blacksmith shop. As a society, we need to value our historical buildings and not raze them under the guise of progress.

I always admired the stone work and the purpose when I visited that restaurant.

Please do not allow developers to erase the "old". It has stood for 180 years. Please value that and save it. Then ensure a preservationist design a use for it that respects the building and highlights the beautiful stone. Back in the day, a town couldn't function without the blacksmith. And Geneva wouldn't be anything special without it's history and charm.

Save it and respect it. Stop letting it linger, unloved and disrespected.

Thank you.

Demolish this eyesore.

It is part of history, but you have to realize that it's location and the value are just not what we want to see for our town.

Sell the rubble for the historic value it has to individuals to have a piece of the history and get on with changing the corner to something useful.

A park, a small business community, not a 5 story housing plan.

Dear Emily,

I'm not sure how you are going to figure out if the majority of Genevans are for the demolition of the blacksmith shop, but you can put me down for NOT demolishing it. Once a historic building is gone you can NEVER get it back. I believe Shodeen is gaslighting the citizens of Geneva by doing nothing to preserve the building and that they are waiting for it to fall over so they can say it's not safe and needs to go. I also believe a person/business MUST pay the fines levied, but apparently Shodeen believes the law doesn't apply to them.

Thank you for trying to preserve the blacksmith shop.

Hi Emily,

We live in a historic home in Geneva. While repairs are often more expensive and materials harder to find, we believe this is the beauty of preserving the past.

We are strongly opposed to Shodeen or any other company demolishing the blacksmith shop. It is such an iconic and irreplaceable part of Geneva's legacy that its loss would be tragic.

Best regards,

Patrice,

84 letters have been received, with 68 in favor and 16 against demolition. The majority of those have been posted on the City Development Project page, available below. An initial set was posted when the application was posted on 12/10, and a second set of letters received between 12/10 and 12/16 was posted yesterday at about 3 pm. The Commission was notified when both sets of letters were posted and reviewed them online before the meeting. Two letters were received between 3 pm and 7 pm yesterday, which were printed for Commission review before the meeting.

The vote was unanimous against the demolition permit. That can be viewed on the video of the meeting, also available below.

Emily,

At last night's HPC meeting, you indicated that there were a considerable amount of email/letters received regarding the demolition request on 4 E. State Street. At that time you didn't have a tally. Are you able to now provide how many letters were received, both for and against the demolition? Am I correct in presuming that all of them were presented to the committee prior to the meeting? Lastly, can you please tell me how each commissioner voted.
Thank you for your assistance.

Emily,

At last night's HPC meeting, you indicated that there were a considerable amount of email/letters received regarding the demolition request on 4 E. State Street. At that time you didn't have a tally. Are you able to now provide how many letters were received, both for and against the demolition? Am I correct in presuming that all of them were presented to the committee prior to the meeting? Lastly, can you please tell me how each commissioner voted.

Thank you for your assistance.

Jessie,

I've asked the current shift supervisor to start looking for officers who would be available to work the overtime. Tonight's evening shift is at our minimum staffing requirements so we can't simply designate one of them to be there for the entire time in case an emergency came up elsewhere.

Hopefully we'll find someone available. I'm planning to leave here in the next 30 minutes or so to get some emergency plumbing work done at my house.

DC Maduzia was looped in and cc'd on the emails so he may be the one getting back to you.

Thanks!

Good afternoon.

Can you tell me if the HPC meetings are broadcasted live or if they are only available as a recording on YouTube?

Emily and Paul,

Sorry for the change but I will not make it Tuesday.

Ms. Stood,

I have been involved in the effort to see that the blacksmith building be preserved, restored, and repurposed since at least 2014. I'm sorry that I am not able to attend the HPC meeting this evening but I have a prior commitment that I must attend.

It seems to be fairly obvious at this point that the owners of this building are willing to spend unlimited time and money in an effort to wear the City down and get their way.

Given their history of successfully restoring and repurposing historic buildings in the immediate area (Herrington Inn and Riverside Banquets) I simply can't understand their refusal to undertake the relatively small project of doing the same with the blacksmith shop.

I urge tha HPC and will urge the City Council to reject their request and to offer appropriate incentives to the owners to make it clear that the City will not issue a demolition permit for this building.

Thank you.

Colin C. Campbell

Hello Emily,

When 4 E. State Street last came up for demolition in 2023, Geneva hired Teska Associates and the Planera Group to do an assessment of the financial feasibility of reuse. Is it possible to add that report to the project page for 4 E. State Street? Or, if that isn't possible, are you able to share a copy of it with me via email?

Hi Max,

That's exactly what I needed, thank you! Since it is a change of material, we will have to bring this case before the HPC. Luckily, since you're already doing the grant application, there aren't a lot of extra materials you'll need. The HPC will take a look at the architectural rendering or conceptual sketches, scope of work, contractor info, and color photography. I can use the photos you've already sent for that section of the review.

Like I said, the next HPC meeting is 1/20, with materials due 1/6 to provide for prep time and advance review by Commissioners. Meetings are at 7 pm at City Hall. We do require someone involved in the project to be present for discussion – this is typically a contractor, property owner, or someone managing the property like yourself.

I will keep an eye out for the grant application submission and review that as soon as I see it so we can make sure we have everything you need for an efficient meeting.

Thank you again,

Hi Emily,

Sure thing, that's easily explained.

The existing pillars are metal and have rusted out at the bottom, and we can't repair that. Pictures attached for reference. In order to prevent this from happening again in the future, most manufacturers have switched to fiberglass/PVC constructed pillars. Advantages being they won't rust out and will be a long-term solution for Mike as well. With the custom pillars we will order through our vendor, the overall look will be identical to existing – same dimensions, with fluted and tapered design. They come primed from the factory, and one of my staff will install and paint them to match.

Does that provide you with enough information?

Thanks,

Max

Max,

Nice to e-meet you as well! I'm glad to hear you were able to find someone to do the custom pillars. I'll need a couple more details in order to determine whether the project can be administratively approved or needs to go before HPC. The majority of these are covered in the grant application checklist. Basically, a description of the existing pillars, including material and the conditions that caused you to investigate replacement, as well as specs of your proposed pillars, again including material details, would be the main materials for developing an understanding of the scope of work.

Either way, the proposed work will need an HPC Permit Review as an added layer to the normal Permit Review. If it does end up needing to go before HPC, the January meeting is 1/20, with materials due 1/6. If I determine that administrative review is acceptable after receiving those materials, I would be able to do that sooner.

Thank you,

Emily – pleasure to e-meet you! For reference, I am the Director of Property Management at Corcoran Commercial Real Estate & Complex Management and property manager for Mike Simon, owner of several prevalent historic buildings along Third Street. We have a need to replace 2 architectural pillars on the exterior of the 220 S Third building. These pillars need to be custom manufactured in order to match the existing – see description/explanation below. We intend to submit a grant application to reimburse the cost of the pillars and will exclude the installation and painting from that application. As it relates to you, can you please advise if we will need to file a Certificate of Appropriateness with the Historical Preservation Committee, since the replacement will be a like-for-like replacement of what is existing? In my experience, sometimes City Staff can approve without an application required. I've attached a photo of the two pillars for reference.

Thank you for your help, all!

Hi Cathleen,

I hope this email find you well. I've left a few voicemails but haven't heard back yet.

I wanted to provide you with some additional details and updated context as to the pillars that we would like to replace using funding from the Historic Preservation or Adaptive Reuse Grant Program.

Initially, we could not find exact replacement fluted and tapered pillars, so we initially quoted a similar tapered only pillar. Luckily, after some extensive research, we were able to source custom made pillars that match exactly to the existing pillars.

Pillars (via Artisan Millwork): $2,219.78

Installation (to be provided by Corcoran/Complex Management): $1,200.00

Painting (to be provided by Corcoran/Complex Management): $360.00

Total Project Cost: $3,779.78

Given we have gone through extensive measures to source exact matching pillars as to what is there, we feel it qualifies as an eligible project under the grant program guidelines.

Forgive me, as it's been a while, but what information is needed further than Mike and I have already provided?

I've included Mike on this email for ease of communication and transparency. He will be directly filing for the grant, as property owner.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

Thank you,

Max

Good morning Emily and Brian,
I hope the day finds you both doing well! I am reaching out on behalf of Brian Hogan with Hogan Design + Construction in hopes of setting up a visit to discuss Hogan's intentions for the remodeling of the home at 17 N 6th Street. In anticipation of our visit I've attached some design drawings which I will bring full size hard copies to help our conversation. The structure initially served as a residence but was eventually converted to office space. The folks at Hogan wish to remodel the structure to accommodate two rentable units with a two bedroom unit at the first floor and a one bedroom unit on the second floor. The intention of our visit is to get feedback in preparation for a planned HPC visit in February for a "concept review". Following our HPC visit we would then move into development of the construction drawings to be used for permit review and a final HPC review. As for a day and time, below are a few dates with windows of time that would work. I would imagine our visit would take no more than 30-45 minutes at most. Please let me know which is most convenient for you both.

Wednesday 1/14: 9:00 am - 12:00 pm

Friday 1/16: 12:00 - 3:00 pm

Warm regards,

Sean

Hi Steve,

Thank you for these! You are on the agenda for the January meeting and I'll keep you updated as I build out your packet. As this is for more of a Concept Review, the conversation will be more informal than the last meeting you attended, but I hope you're able to get a lot out of it before returning for your Permit Review.

Have a good one,

Subject: January HPC Meeting - Material Due Date Reminder

Good afternoon,

I hope you're doing well! This message is to remind you that materials for the January HPC meeting are due Tuesday, January 6. As we exit the holiday season, I know everyone has been busy, so please ensure that you keep that date in mind so that we are able to help you keep your project moving forward. If you are receiving this message, we have discussed required materials for your project, but as always, I am happy to answer any follow up questions or clarify details.

Additionally, due to Martin Luther King, Jr. day, the January HPC meeting will not occur on Tuesday, the 20th, but on Wednesday, the 21st. As we've discussed, a representative of the project is required to be at the meeting for the discussion. The meeting will still begin at 7 pm and occur at City Hall. Additional reminders of that date will be sent closer to the meeting.

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

Hi Susan,

Thank you for getting back to me so quickly, I apologize that we keep missing each other! I just left you a voicemail but wanted to follow up by email as well! A couple things:

1. We totally understand your frustration and definitely want to work with you as much as possible to make this process smooth. We appreciate all the work you've done already on research and that will be great for the Commission to see as well.
2. In terms of the like for like label – thank you for that clarification! We're glad you're looking at the characteristics of the windows overall. The preservation guidelines adopted by the city prioritize repair over replacement, followed by replacement with a like material over replacement with an alternate material, which is why that detail is so important. On many historic homes introducing new materials can affect the overall building, which is why the HPC takes review of those new introductions so seriously, and requires enough information on the other two options to understand why those aren't feasible. I linked those guidelines below and am happy to also send along the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation, which Geneva also follows.

3. Thank you for the detail on those existing storms as well. Typically storms are not applicable for HPC review because they are designed to be removable, so our focus is still on the body of the window which stays in the house year-round. If the storms are somehow physically combined with the normal windows, that is a different consideration.
4. Any photos like you mentioned on the phone would be great! I'll be able to include everything in the Staff Report for the HPC so they can understand the reason for the project visually as well as in writing.
5. Additionally, so that I can set you up for a meeting involving all the windows, please send along the specs for the other windows proposed for replacement when you can. I'll package those all together and label them in the Staff Report.

Thank you for your email, Emily. I left you a long voicemail. We would like to get the materials for the meeting to you as soon as possible.

After reading your email, my husband, Tim, pointed out that actually our windows are in fact aluminum facing out due to the storm triple tracks that are on the windows. Our decision, and an expensive one at that, to go with the Marvin elevate, vastly improves the contributing historic facade of our home.

We will look forward to working on this together with you. My phone is: 630-621-7221.

Kind regards,

Susan

Good afternoon Susan,

I've had some time to review your paperwork and the files we have on your property. According to our files, your home was constructed in 1957, which is within the 1835-1966 Period of Significance for the historic district, so it is actually rated as a Contributing historic building.

Also according to our files, it looks like your existing windows are wood, and your proposed replacements appear to be a fiberglass/wood mix, which would indicate that this is not a like for like replacement in terms of material, which the HPC does have to consider. This means we will need some extra information in order to present the most thorough case possible to the HPC. I am attaching our Window Replacement Checklist to this email, which sums up that information. The specs you provided includes most of the information required on the Alternative Material section. Like we discussed yesterday, these materials will be necessary for the review of any street-facing windows you are proposing to replace.

The next deadline for HPC meeting materials is February 3rd, with the actual meeting scheduled for February 18th. I am happy to work with you during that period in gathering the additional information needed for this review, and can provide additional options for resources as needed. Like I said yesterday, we will be able to do this as one HPC review with a phased project to lessen the amount of meetings you need to attend. I'll keep an eye out for the additional materials and any messages from you to get ahead of this and make this process as smooth as possible for you.

I apologize for not being able to speak more in depth yesterday! I am always open to answering questions or concerns – if you call and I can't answer, feel free to leave a message or send an email and I'll get back to you as soon as I can.

Hi Emily. Tim and I have been working on getting our materials together. We would like to schedule a meeting with you with our materials and pictures next Friday, the 23rd. Would that be possible?

Thank you.

Hi Susan,

Thank you for getting back to me so quickly, I apologize that we keep missing each other! I just left you a voicemail but wanted to follow up by email as well! A couple things:

We totally understand your frustration and definitely want to work with you as much as possible to make this process smooth. We appreciate all the work you've done already on research and that will be great for the Commission to see as well.

In terms of the like for like label – thank you for that clarification! We're glad you're looking at the characteristics of the windows overall. The preservation guidelines adopted by the city prioritize repair over replacement, followed by replacement with a like material over replacement with an alternate material, which is why that detail is so important. On many historic homes introducing new materials can affect the overall building, which is why the HPC takes review of those new introductions so seriously, and requires enough information on the other two options to understand why those aren't feasible. I linked those guidelines below and am happy to also send along the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation, which Geneva also follows.

Thank you for the detail on those existing storms as well. Typically storms are not applicable for HPC review because they are designed to be removable, so our focus is still on the body of the window which stays in the house year-round. If the storms are somehow physically combined with the normal windows, that is a different consideration.

Any photos like you mentioned on the phone would be great! I'll be able to include everything in the Staff Report for the HPC so they can understand the reason for the project visually as well as in writing.

Additionally, so that I can set you up for a meeting involving all the windows, please send along the specs for the other windows proposed for replacement when you can. I'll package those all together and label them in the Staff Report.

Thank you for your email, Emily. I left you a long voicemail. We would like to get the materials for the meeting to you as soon as possible.

After reading your email, my husband, Tim, pointed out that actually our windows are in fact aluminum facing out due to the storm triple tracks that are on the windows. Our decision, and an expensive one at that, to go with the Marvin elevate, vastly improves the contributing historic facade of our home.

We will look forward to working on this together with you. My phone is: 630-621-7221.

Kind regards,

Susan

Good afternoon Susan,

I've had some time to review your paperwork and the files we have on your property. According to our files, your home was constructed in 1957, which is within the 1835-1966 Period of Significance for the historic district, so it is actually rated as a Contributing historic building.

Also according to our files, it looks like your existing windows are wood, and your proposed replacements appear to be a fiberglass/wood mix, which would indicate that this is not a like for like replacement in terms of material, which the HPC does have to consider. This means we will need some extra information in order to present the most thorough case possible to the HPC. I am attaching our Window Replacement Checklist to this email, which sums up that information. The specs you provided includes most of the information required on the Alternative Material section. Like we discussed yesterday, these materials will be necessary for the review of any street-facing windows you are proposing to replace.

The next deadline for HPC meeting materials is February 3rd, with the actual meeting scheduled for February 18th. I am happy to work with you during that period in gathering the additional information needed for this review, and can provide additional options for resources as needed. Like I said yesterday, we will be able to do this as one HPC review with a phased project to lessen the amount of meetings you need to attend. I'll keep an eye out for the additional materials and any messages from you to get ahead of this and make this process as smooth as possible for you.

I apologize for not being able to speak more in depth yesterday! I am always open to answering questions or concerns – if you call and I can't answer, feel free to leave a message or send an email and I'll get back to you as soon as I can.

Hope you and your family had a good holiday season! I just wanted to give you a heads up on some slight schedule changes with the January and February HPC meetings in case it affects your availability. Because of MLK Jr Day and President's Day, both meetings will be moved back to Wednesday instead of Tuesday, but times and locations will remain the same. In March we'll return to the third Tuesday schedule. I wrote those schedules out below so you have them, and I'll send out the normal Friday emails as well! Just keep us updated on whether or not you're available and we'll keep you in the loop on our end as well.

January Meeting:
1/21 at 7pm, in City Hall

February Meeting:
2/18 at 7pm, in City Hall

Emily,
As I mentioned this morning, Phil Lang and his wife Jill are looking to re-engage with the process of moving forward with the work at their home at 428 N Second in the months to come. I thought it would be useful to provide an exchange with Jackie from 11/8/24 to provide some context. Phil is working to get Part 2 of the State Tax Freeze application moving with Darius Bryjka. Our intention is to first get the State's blessing for the project and then submit for "concept review" with the HPC after that.
Thanks!

Completely understandable! I will note, that it is great to have the support from the state with majority of the pending exterior changes, that would be tremendously helpful when moving forward to the HPC, even if the Lang's do not move forward with the tax freeze. Good morning Jackie,
Thanks so much for the follow up! I'll get back to you on Item 9 if we determine that Darius' feedback on the other items makes sense to the Lang's moving forward with the property tax freeze. There may be items in Darius' response that make going forward with the tax freeze unhelpful in terms of the needs as a family.
Warm regards and thank you for your help!

It's number 9, and it is highlighted. Let me know how you would like me to respond, or if you would like to ask any other questions!

Historic Preservation:

- 1) Can the chimney be removed? It is a non-historic element added for venting of a modern boiler. Yes, the chimney may be removed.
- 2) If the garage were to stay and an addition done, could the addition be taller than the existing garage? Yes, if an addition were done to the garage it could be taller.
- 3) Can the garage be removed? I believe that prior HPC reviews and the State of Illinois said yes, but there was a bit of back and forth and we're not quite sure where this ended up. The garage may be removed and if a new one were constructed, material from the existing garage would need to be utilized. There's no certain amount of historic material that needs to be saved. Given that several years have passed and the garage continued to deteriorate, the amount of salvageable material has likely diminished. We can evaluate any proposal presented for its overall impact on the historic property.
- 4) Can the new work be taller than the existing residence? This home is the shortest I've ever worked on at 20'-4" from grade to peak and 18'-4" from 1st floor to peak. Conceptually yes, but it should transition to that taller addition via a hyphen. I would encourage submission of conceptual plans for review
- 5) Owners may wish to restore the original porch (see attached photo). We assume this would be well received by the HPC but just confirming. This may also sit in the front setback depending on where the City agrees to establish the front setback line. This would be well received by the HPC. Clarification from the State of Illinois may be necessary to review the design to prevent false historicism.
- 6) Owner's may also wish to restore the porch to the "jelly kitchen" (see attached photo) which now is enclosed and is interior space for the home. We assume this would be well received by the HPC but just confirming. This would be well received by the HPC. Clarification from the State of Illinois may be necessary to review the design to prevent false historicism.
- 7) Owner's wish to remove the back sunroom.....will this be allowed? Yes, the back sunroom could be removed.
- 8) Window replacement is being considered as the windows in the home are not original, they are old....but do not appear to be the original units as the current units have additional upper sash material added to bridge the space from the top sash of the current windows to the original head of the original windows. No real question here, just sharing this item for an eventual broader discussion. Gallagher noted that it appears that the windows have been added at some point into existing sash openings that are taller than the windows that are currently in place. As the project develops a closer analysis and photos will need to be done to confirm the overall condition of the windows. See photo below showing top sash rail with blocking above.
- 9) Could the setting of the existing home on a new foundation be done such that the home sits higher than it is currently, potentially +1'-2' higher? Potentially. What is the rationale for raising it?
- 10) Because the framing for the existing first floor is in such disrepair can the Lang's remove the framing and replace it with new code compliant framing members? Yes. None of it will be visible after the walls are closed back up.
- 11) Could Mr. Lang add height to the existing first floor by adding taller sistered wood studs to the existing wall framing providing a ceiling height that would be taller than the existing 7'-2" height? Note that this would require additional risers to the existing stair, assuming the existing stair would need to remain. No. The ceiling height should be maintained.
- 12) Can existing first floor partition walls be removed or moved? In the existing addition, yes. Not in the main two-story home.
- 13) Does the existing stair need to remain? Yes. It is a primary historic element.
- 14) Can the second floor space be modified such that the ceilings are vaulted and a loft overlooking the existing first floor below be provided? I think that the flat ceiling in the bedroom could be raised to the underside of the roof framing, but a loft overlooking the first floor would not be approved. Such a proposal was already proposed and rejected previously.
- 15) Can the "jelly kitchen" ceiling be removed to vault the interior ceiling? Yes, but it should have a finished appearance (painted gypsum board, not exposed rafters/framing)
- 16) If an addition was to be placed on the east side of the existing home, how far back would it need to be placed from the front of the residence? Gallagher noted that the (2) narrow double hungs on the east elevation may have some influence on anything new placed on the east elevation. I think that the addition would need to be only nominally set back from the front of the existing one-story addition. It depends on the proposed massing and design of the new addition. But the new addition can cover the two window openings in question; it would not have to be set all the way back to leave them exposed and visible.

Subject: ? 428 Ford St. (Lang Residence) follow up

EXTERNAL EMAIL - USE CAUTION

Folks,

Below is a summary from our visit this morning. Please take a minute to review and let me know if you have any additions or edits. I've broken my note into Zoning and HPC items to separate out the subject matter. Do note that I've included Jackie's email response from ISHPO project reviewer Darius Bryjka.

Zoning:

1) What sets the Ford Street setback for the Lang home, Wetmore's porch or home?

A porch would be allowed to the front as far as the Wetmore porch at 18.2' but if a habitable addition was to be constructed it could only be built to the district minimum 20.0' (it's worth noting that no habitable addition is planned in this area currently).

2) Assuming the detached garage were to remain, would the detached garage allowable building area bonus and the side load garage allowable building area bonus both be applicable?

Only (1) of these bonuses would be allowed. If the garage were to remain detached it's assumed that the 500 s.f. area bonus would be observed. If the existing garage were to be removed and a new one constructed that was attached the 300 square foot side load area bonus would be observed. IMPORTANT NOTE: If a new garage were constructed and attached to the new work, it would need to be built no closer to the rear lot line than 25'. Also worth noting, if a new detached garage were to be constructed it would need to sit no closer to the 5th Street property line than 20' and no closer to the rear and side property lines than 5'.

3) If the Lang's wished to add to the existing detached garage, would a variance be needed? It's possible that the Lang's may want to add to the garage an additional stall to the north of the current garage. (The south portion of the garage currently sits in the allowable rear yard setback for accessory structures).

An addition would be allowed to the existing garage as long as it did not sit closer than 5' from the side and rear property lines.

4) For the Amore Residence at 127 Ford Street done in 2017, we stepped the addition down from the existing residence first floor. This allowed us a reasonable first floor height for the new work. Per our Zoning Compatibility Worksheet, the submitted permit drawings and my conversations with City Staff, it was allowed that even though the new work was lower than the existing first floor we set the 20' calculation line from the existing first floor and not the new stepped down first floor. I am simply confirming that City staff agree with this premise.

This is to be looked at by City Staff. Matt indicated that Brian Byrne and David DeGroot will be following up on this as an answer couldn't be provided at this time.

5) Gallagher asked if the addition to the rear of the home could sit as close to the 5th Street (west) property line as the existing residence sits (19.62')? Buesing indicated that the new work could not sit this close and would need to sit 20' from the 5th Street (west) property line.

6) An additional item for City Staff consideration. If a new front porch were proposed matching the original porch, the new porch would sit in violation of the 5th Street setback of 20' by .45', assuming the new porch aligns with the northwest corner of the existing residence. Would this be allowed?

Historic Preservation:

1) Can the chimney be removed? It is a non-historic element added for venting of a modern boiler.

Yes, the chimney may be removed.

2) If the garage were to stay and an addition done, could the addition be taller than the existing garage?

Yes, if an addition were done to the garage it could be taller.

3) Can the garage be removed? I believe that prior HPC reviews and the State of Illinois said yes, but there was a bit of back and forth and we're not quite sure where this ended up.

The garage may be removed and if a new one were constructed, material from the existing garage would need to be utilized. A clear definition of what material and how much material needs to be used was left undefined so there could be some back and forth on this in the future.

4) Can the new work be taller than the existing residence? This home is the shortest I've ever worked on at 20'-4" from grade to peak and 18'-4" from 1st floor to peak.

Yes, ish....this will need to be looked at critically as the design develops. New standards from the Secretary of the Interiors indicates that new work may be taller as long as the addition is "compatible" but this will need to be looked at in more detail as designs develop. When asked by Jackie how much taller the new work would be than the existing residence, a specific answer could not be provided at this time. The hope for the project is for the new work to step down from the existing first floor into new additions that have a 9' first floor ceiling (currently the existing home has first floor ceilings around 7'-2") It is clear that the new work will need to be taller than the existing 20'-4" at front grade but it's not yet certain what would best work for the Lang's. Gallagher did note that the current height of 20'-4" is around 14' lower than the allowable building height for the zoning district.

5) Owners may wish to restore the original porch (see attached photo). We assume this would be well received by the HPC but just confirming. This may also sit in the front setback depending on where the City agrees to establish the front setback line.

This would be well received by the HPC. Clarification from the State of Illinois may be necessary to review the design to prevent false historicism.

6) Owner's may also wish to restore the porch to the "jelly kitchen" (see attached photo) which now is enclosed and is interior space for the home. We assume this would be well received by the HPC but just confirming.

This would be well received by the HPC. Clarification from the State of Illinois may be necessary to review the design to prevent false historicism.

7) Owner's wish to remove the back sunroom.....will this be allowed?

No answer could be provided. Jackie will need to review and discuss this with Darius Bryjka.

8) Window replacement is being considered as the windows in the home are not original, they are old....but do not appear to be the original units as the current units have additional upper sash material added to bridge the space from the top sash of the current windows to the original head of the original windows. No real question here, just sharing this item for an eventual broader discussion.

Gallagher noted that it appears that the windows have been added at some point into existing sash openings that are taller than the windows that are currently in place. As the project develops a closer analysis and photos will need to be done to confirm the overall condition of the windows. See photo below showing top sash rail with blocking above.

9) Mr. Lang is considering moving the home temporarily on the site while a new deep foundation is placed under the existing home and for the new additions. The existing home would go back on the same footprint but would have a new deep concrete foundation and new floor framing. There would be no change in its location or footprint dimensionally on the site as it exists. Virtually the same thing was done on the Giampoli Residence at 201 N. Third Street. As well Mr. Lang may wish to set the existing residence slightly higher than the existing first floor in hopes that by doing this it will allow our new addition to be taller. I make note of this simply to make you aware and to open this up for discussion as far as potential concerns from HPC and Zoning. If we were to do this we would want to be sure we have an understanding of any potential roadblocks.

Jackie will discuss the temporary move and re-placing of the existing home on a new foundation with Mr. Bryjka.

Other State of Illinois items for consideration:

- 1) Could the setting of the existing home on a new foundation be done such that the home sits higher than it is currently, potentially +1'-2' higher?
- 2) Because the framing for the existing first floor is in such disrepair can the Lang's remove the framing and replace it with new code compliant framing members?
- 3) Could Mr. Lang add height to the existing first floor by adding taller sistered wood studs to the existing wall framing providing a ceiling height that would be taller than the existing 7'-2" height? Note that this would require additional risers to the existing stair, assuming the existing stair would need to remain.
- 4) Can existing first floor partition walls be removed or moved?
- 5) Does the existing stair need to remain?
- 6) Can the second floor space be modified such that the ceilings are vaulted and a loft overlooking the existing first floor below be provided?
- 7) Can the "jelly kitchen" ceiling be removed to vault the interior ceiling?
- 8) If an addition was to be placed on the east side of the existing home, how far back would it need to be placed from the front of the residence?

Gallagher noted that the (2) narrow double hungs on the east elevation may have some influence on anything new placed on the east elevation.

Please at your convenience, review the above summary and additional items and feel free to reach out with any feedback or edits.

Sean

Thank you, Jackie.

In answer to your questions:

1. If the garage were to stay and an addition done, could the addition be taller than the existing garage? Yes.
2. Can the new work be taller than the existing residence? This home is the shortest I've ever worked on at 20'-4" from grade to peak and 18'-4" from 1st floor to peak. Conceptually yes, but it should transition to that taller addition via a hyphen. I would encourage submission of conceptual plans for review.
3. Owner's wish to remove the back sunroom will this be allowed to accommodate the new addition? It appears to be non original to the material. Yes, the back sunroom could be removed.
4. Would the owners be permitted to vault the interior ceilings? Not in the historic building. In the addition, of course.
5. Per the comments provided during the October 2017 HPC meeting, they would be able to demolish the building and reuse materials – could we clarify what that would mean? Is there a certain number that needs to be met? This pertains only to the garage, not the house. And there's no certain amount of historic material that needs to be saved. Given that several years have passed and the garage continued to deteriorate, the amount of salvageable material has likely diminished. We can evaluate any proposal presented for its overall impact on the historic property.

Hi Anaïs,
Just a follow up from our call! I spoke to Brian and his advice was to just wait until you're able to do some exploratory demo to make any changes to your plans on the structure of the porch. There are a few options, such as additional piers, that could work with the structural changes in case the long rim joist idea ends up not seeming successful after that demo. He just wanted to make you aware to try to minimize surprises (as I'm sure you've already experienced is common with historic work.) For now, our advice is to work through the HPC approval process and then just stay in contact through the demo and construction process on any changes to the permit! Hopefully that relieves some stress in working out that detail of the permit change.

Hi Anaïs,
Thank you for the updated drawing and this form! We are processing that and beginning work on the packet now. I'll make a note of that roof pitch and the code in the packet so the Commission is aware ahead of time. I'll also keep an eye out for the info on roofing materials.

Before we get ahead of ourselves (and while the weather is still decent) I would recommend just triple checking the ability to fasten the future porch to the frame of the house, as drawn (of course just lower), rather than needing to fasten that to your foundation. Like I mentioned, that would end up being a structural change and require more oversight from Building. When I mentioned these updates to Brian today, he brought that up again as a concern that might lengthen permit review time, so I just want to give you as much time as possible in case that ends up being a concern. In the meantime, I'll keep up the work on the HPC review!

Have a good day, and feel free to reach out!

Thanks, Emily!

Thanks so much for all the info! I reviewed the guidelines you linked to, and since I don't think that there are any original materials or particularly historic design/details for the porch roof, I didn't see much there that seemed very relevant to this proposed change. I also went back and remeasured the blueprints more carefully, and I think the shed roof pitch is actually 2.2:12 not 2.7:12. Separately, I sent a version of the East elevation with a seamed metal roof drawn in with 12" seams. I don't have more info yet on the specific materials for the roof, but have reached out to our contractor to ask for that.

Thanks!

Subject: Porch Roof and Steps

Hi Anaïs,

Thanks for calling today! Attached are the current design guidelines for more clarity on that porch roof question. I would look at both page 52 – residential roofs, and page 66 – porches for your specific proposal. As for proposal materials, I just checked in with Brian and have some info from Building and an HPC list for you.

Typically on a change like this, Brian would ask for revised drawings after construction to confirm everything. Since it also has to go before HPC, for now we're going to ask for exterior elevations with the changes drawn for the Commissioner review. Additional needs on the interior can go through the normal Building process. He did want to call out to you that one concern to check on before moving forward is whether there is space on the body of the house to attach the rim joist to with the lowered floor. Basically, if the new floor attaches lower, and ends up needing to go into a foundation like stacked limestone instead of the frame of the house, that's a larger change and Building would have to get more involved early on. He also confirmed that typically if a pitch is less than 2/12 asphalt shingles aren't as successful with water shed.

So what we're looking at now for application materials is as follows. Like I said on the phone, technically this month's application materials are due today. Next months are due 2/3. The other house I mentioned which looked at doing a metal porch roof was 127 Second Street, if you're interested in checking that out as well!

- Elevation drawings that illustrate the new proposal. I would recommend a front and at least one side. I'll use your previous drawings in the packet to illustrate what's changing.
- Material information on the metal roof

Thanks again, and feel free to reach out with questions,

If you're having trouble viewing this email, you can see it online.

There's still time to register for NAPC's first webinar of the new year, taking place on Thursday, January 22, 2026. This timely program focuses on the skilled preservation trades and the critical role they play in achieving strong preservation outcomes.

As fewer craftspeople enter the field and experienced practitioners retire, many communities are finding it increasingly difficult to complete appropriate repairs, from window restoration to masonry work. This webinar will examine how these workforce challenges affect local preservation efforts and what commissions and staff can do to respond.

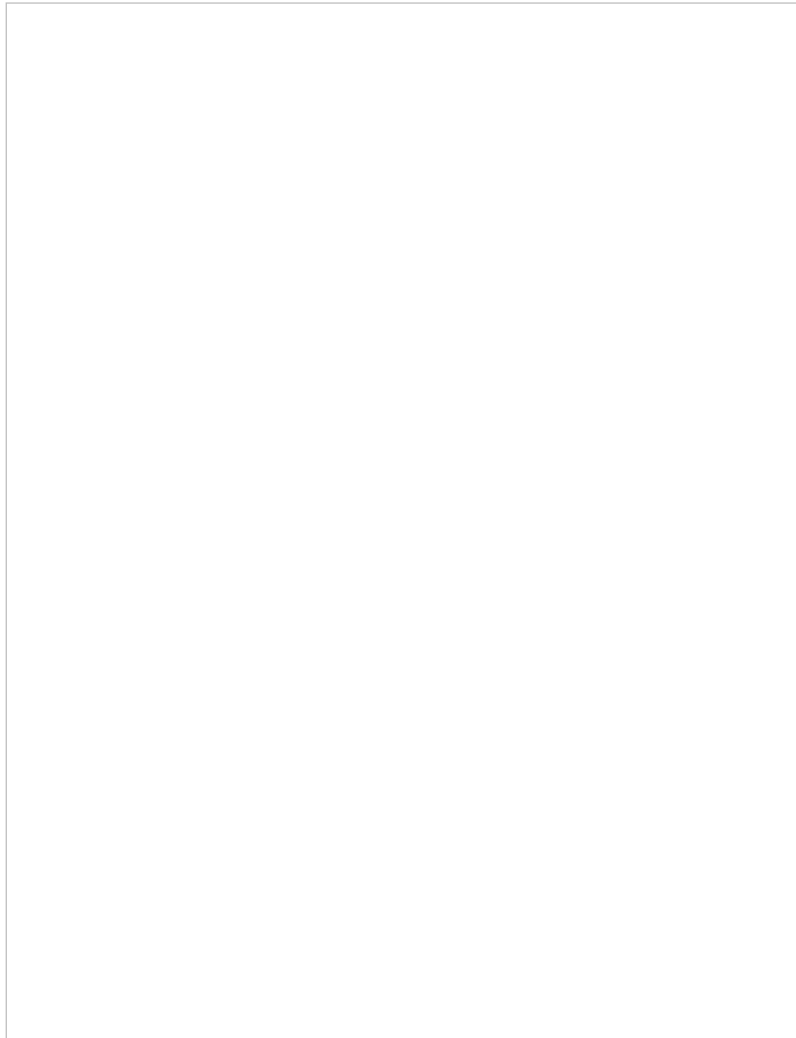

Participants will learn:

- Why the preservation trades matter to local governments
- How workforce shortages impact project quality and affordability
- Practical ways commissions and staff can support training, partnerships, and sustainable preservation outcomes

It looks like some of the options might involve selling the property, so I would be interested to see where that ended up. I don't think they would allow the solar to damage the house, although unexpected things can happen during construction. I linked the minutes from the meeting they described in the article in case you're interested, they map out the options a lot more visually which was helpful to me.

Thank you!
Last night went well. All but one were in agreement with the paint proposal. One concern that was raised was what to do if someone goes ahead and paints without a COA and those repercussions so that is why I asked you if everything is done through a permit or not.
Hope it went well for you as well!

Subject: RE: COA reviews questions

Hi Emma,

Yes, everything which is reviewed administratively and by the Commission requires a permit! Geneva runs a little bit of a different system than most HPC's so instead of issuing COA's as a more separate thing, the HPC review is a "Construction Plan Review" which is tied in with the full permit review. We do sometimes get people that don't realize they needed a permit in general, but since everything lines up we basically just hand off the HPC review form with the permit form anytime it affects a designated property. This is part of the conversation we've been having about paint on masonry – since paint doesn't require a permit, we would have to rewrite a lot of our system and I'm honestly not sure how we would handle notification at this point.

In other news, my friend checked her files last night and she didn't do a lot of research on shingle suppliers, especially up north. I quickly googled stamped metal shingles and it looks like there are a decent amount of manufacturers around doing different things, including with the more Victorian styles. I think pointing your applicant towards those and maybe the Landmarks Directory would be helpful! It looks like there are some contractors who also have experience in metal roofing on that site as well.

Hope this helps, and hope your meeting last night went well!

Hi Emily,
I am looking through your COA list and the level of review for each project. I know you do a lot of administrative reviews. It also looks like you do a lot of reviews for work that, in St Charles, would not require a permit. Does all the work that you and the Commission review, require a permit? For those that do not require a permit, how do people know to take out a COA for it? Thanks!

Good morning Emily and Brian,
I hope the day finds you both doing well! I am reaching out on behalf of Brian Hogan with Hogan Design + Construction in hopes of setting up a visit to discuss Hogan's intentions for the remodeling of the home at 17 N 6th Street. In anticipation of our visit I've attached some design drawings which I will bring full size hard copies to help our conversation. The structure initially served as a residence but was eventually converted to office space. The folks at Hogan wish to remodel the structure to accommodate two rentable units with a two bedroom unit at the first floor and a one bedroom unit on the second floor. The intention of our visit is to get feedback in preparation for a planned HPC visit in February for a "concept review". Following our HPC visit we would then move into development of the construction drawings to be used for permit review and a final HPC review. As for a day and time, below are a few dates with windows of time that would work. I would imagine our visit would take no more than 30-45 minutes at most. Please let me know which is most convenient for you both.

Wednesday 1/14: 9:00 am - 12:00 pm

Friday 1/16: 12:00 - 3:00 pm

Warm regards,
Sean

Hello everyone,

Just a few date reminders for the next few months as we have some moving pieces coming up! The January and February meetings will both be pushed back a day to Wednesday due to MLK Jr Day and President's Day, respectively. This means that the next two HPC meetings will be on January 21 and February 18. Other than the date shift, they will be at 7 at City Hall as normal. After February, we'll go back to our normal Tuesday schedule.

Additionally, as I've messaged earlier, the appeal for the 4 E State decision will occur next Monday, the 12th. Lisa will be representing the HPC at that meeting. The meeting will stream and be recorded as normal, and we will keep you all updated on the decision.

Lisa,

No worries! I didn't expect any quick responses last week.

That's perfect that you're already planning on being there. I'm attaching the script that Jewel used during the last appeal, if that's helpful in making up a new script. Happy to help pull together an updated version for this time around if you'd like. I can always hop on a call or set up a meeting if that's easier as well. I think the goal would be similar to the HPC meeting in making sure we really stick to the current application and emphasize everyone's conclusions from the meeting.

Either way, I'll keep you updated if anything changes as we get closer to the meeting!

Thank you,

Hi Lisa,

Hope you're doing well, and that your holiday season has been good! I have an ask for you.

As you know, the appeal was submitted for 4 E State Street, and will be going before the City Council on January 12. The HPC has a right to give a statement at this meeting, along with the applicant. Paul is not available to attend the meeting, so we're looking for another member to attend and make that statement. Would you be available to speak at the meeting? You would basically have to read off a summary of the conclusions you all reached when the demolition was denied on the 16th. We thought you would be great because you have experience with this project and you have a knack for summing things up well in meetings. I would of course be happy to talk with you about the meeting process or a statement before hand as well. If you're not available, just let me know and I can ask someone else.

Thank you in advance!

Good afternoon,

I hope you're doing well! This message is to remind you that materials for the January HPC meeting are due Tuesday, January 6. As we exit the holiday season, I know everyone has been busy, so please ensure that you keep that date in mind so that we are able to help you keep your project moving forward. If you are receiving this message, we have discussed required materials for your project, but as always, I am happy to answer any follow up questions or clarify details.

Additionally, due to Martin Luther King, Jr. day, the January HPC meeting will not occur on Tuesday, the 20th, but on Wednesday, the 21st. As we've discussed, a representative of the project is required to be at the meeting for the discussion. The meeting will still begin at 7 pm and occur at City Hall. Additional reminders of that date will be sent closer to the meeting.

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

Good morning Emily and Brian,

I hope the day finds you both doing well! I am reaching out on behalf of Brian Hogan with Hogan Design + Construction in hopes of setting up a visit to discuss Hogan's intentions for the remodeling of the home at 17 N 6th Street. In anticipation of our visit I've attached some design drawings which I will bring full size hard copies to help our conversation. The structure initially served as a residence but was eventually converted to office space. The folks at Hogan wish to remodel the structure to accommodate two rentable units with a two bedroom unit at the first floor and a one bedroom unit on the second floor. The intention of our visit is to get feedback in preparation for a planned HPC visit in February for a "concept review". Following our HPC visit we would then move into development of the construction drawings to be used for permit review and a final HPC review. As for a day and time, below are a few dates with windows of time that would work. I would imagine our visit would take no more than 30-45 minutes at most. Please let me know which is most convenient for you both.

Wednesday 1/14: 9:00 am - 12:00 pm

Friday 1/16: 12:00 - 3:00 pm

Warm regards,

Sean

Good morning Donna,

Thank you for your comments! Being an optimist is always a good thing in my opinion.

In terms of the initial demolition – when Shodeen purchased the property and began demolition, they agreed to leave the stone blacksmith shop up for investigation after pulling down the rest of the wood frame restaurant, because it was known that the stone existed within the larger building. This was before anything on the property had been landmarked, so that part of the demolition did not undergo HPC review. A lot of that history is described in the most recent agenda and packet, and videos of meetings referenced in that packet are available on YouTube.

In terms of many of your other comments, I would recommend you reach out to your alderpersons in order to make your voice heard. Their contact info is available here. Since the Public Hearing with the HPC is closed, and their decision has been made, they are no longer receiving comments for deciding the case. An appeal has been submitted by the property owners, so City Council will be the next group to make a decision on the case.

Thank you again, and have a good day,

I certainly do NOT want the blacksmith shop destroyed after all the destruction has occurred on this site. All the adjacent buildings are gone and the restaurant basement where parties and lovely family memories were made is not visible-maybe it's underwater by now with all of the neglect. So it's not just the buildings that need love and attention and protection from ambitious developers but the land itself. Whatever happened to that restaurant? We know what happened to the bike and thrift shop. Was it wise to tear things down and give Shodeen the upper hand to assume they could keep tearing down ALL structures? Can you get me up to speed here and check my attitude? This has all been unfortunate. How can we move past all of this in a positive manner?

I think enough destruction has occurred on this property. We need the blacksmith shop-even if we use only the stones to recreate the foundation. Can the city or some friendly entity legally buy the property back from Shodeen? And can this entity plan for the construction and development of this historic site that can be enjoyed by the citizens of Geneva and anyone who visits our charming town? This can be an investment in tourism-for real. The Cooperage made barrels- maybe let's plan a brewery there. Let's find an architectural plan for a real blacksmith shop again and have a real blacksmith create functional art and sell it on site-fences, locks, pots and pans...Let's plan for maybe a glassworks shop with artists making glass wares and selling them. There's more to consider...just think of the possibilities. We need a positive way forward.

I know-I'm an optimist.

Hi Al,

Yes, an appeal has been filed. We don't have an official date for the appeal yet, but that will be announced on the City website when we do. In any case, code gives 30 days for an appeal to be reviewed by council once it is received, so it will be within the month.

Since the public hearing is closed, I've been pointing anyone with comments to their alderpersons. Just wanted to let you know since I know you've been keeping your members updated and included my contact as well! Of course, I can always help answer questions or point people towards resources like meeting videos, but the HPC itself has made their official decision on this application so any comment on the appeal is more for City Council at this point.

Last night, December 16, 2025, the demolition request of Geneva's 1840s blacksmith shop was denied unanimously by the Historic Preservation Commission (HPC).

Since nothing substantial had changed since demolition was denied in 2023, the HPC found no reason to change its position on this latest request. While there were many more letters and speakers favoring demolition than in 2023, the HPC was not convinced this meant that a majority of the community wanted demolition, as the applicant had argued.

We expect the owner to appeal to City Council for its January 5, 2026 meeting. A supermajority, 2/3 of the alderpersons present, would need to approve demolition to overrule the HPC.

Like the HPC, City Council will evaluate whether or not the majority of the community wants the demolition of the blacksmith shop. We encourage you to express your opinion by submitting a letter to Emily Stood, Geneva Preservation Planner, at estood@geneva.il.us, submitting a letter to your alderperson (their contact info is here), and/or attending the public meeting, expected to be January 5, 2026 at 7 PM at Geneva City Hall, 109 James Street.

We will be installing security cameras on the building and electronic entry devices on the doors in the next couple of months. Before we sign with a contractor, I want your advice on how to proceed with the Historic Preservation Commission. Are you available before the end of the year, say next week December 15th?

Good morning Kevin,

I just wanted to give you a heads up that I completely forgot we have our office holiday party at noon today! I don't think we'll need more than an hour for our discussion, but if you'd prefer to come in a little early just in case, my morning is open, so I can be available whenever is best for you.

Good morning Kevin,

Happy to meet! We have an HPC meeting this Tuesday that has me pretty busy for the first half of the week, but Thursday or Friday I am available any time. If either of those days works please let me know.

As an aside, I saw the church lit up for Christmas during the Cookie Walk, and it looked great! I was very excited to see it.

Last night, December 16, 2025, the demolition request of Geneva's 1840s blacksmith shop was denied unanimously by the Historic Preservation Commission (HPC).

Since nothing substantial had changed since demolition was denied in 2023, the HPC found no reason to change its position on this latest request. While there were many more letters and speakers favoring demolition than in 2023, the HPC was not convinced this meant that a majority of the community wanted demolition, as the applicant had argued.

We expect the owner to appeal to City Council for its January 5, 2026 meeting. A supermajority, 2/3 of the alderpersons present, would need to approve demolition to overrule the HPC.

Like the HPC, City Council will evaluate whether or not the majority of the community wants the demolition of the blacksmith shop. Emily,

The wood will be moved tomorrow.

Does "undergo normal permit review" include waiting for a meeting in January? If so, this is about the worst case scenario compared to what we discussed yesterday.

As far as I know, the jack was put up because when my initial crew was not confident doing the work, Chad wanted to be extra cautious about an unknown.

There are exposed rafters from the inside. We did try to determine the required work the first time we were there. But there was no conclusion, which is why we felt it best to make that determination by doing a complete tear off and pulling up the decking. If I could've made that conclusion from the inside, I would've already applied for the necessary permit.

I can have all of these materials ready for you. But how am I to proceed if we tear it off and notice that it is above and beyond normal permit purview? We then have to wait for a meeting? Of which you know there is no guarantee of approval, as most contractors have to go through several meetings to get approval through the HPC. What does that also do for public safety, leaving an exposed roof with materials through winter and regarding Julie and her parallel driveway?

Can this be handled like we discussed on the phone? Where I have those permit materials prepared, we go and do the tear off, and if it is deemed beyond replacing a few boards we can continue with the work and I can submit the materials to you at the same time? Because with all due respect, it seems egregiously bureaucratic and unproductive to halt work and potentially carry this through the dead of winter, with an open and exposed roof, with no gutters, and Julie pulling her car in and out and walking that driveway with her daughter, Jeanie...just to go through a round of meetings to restore a garage (which is an addition) back to original shape and structure.

If calling is easier, I'm available. But please advise as soon as possible. Thank you, Emily.

Hi TJ,

We got together this morning to discuss the details of your case, and I did confirm that if the project goes beyond normal maintenance and repair, you will need to undergo normal permit review including the HPC review.

If you're able to estimate work from the interior of the garage, this may be able to better inform whether or not this work goes beyond normal maintenance and repair. I don't know the exact details, but Chad did let us know that there is a jack holding some things up inside the garage, which leads me to assume that the framing is at least partially exposed, as is pretty typical in historic garages. Hopefully this strategy would help you calculate timing for yourself and your team.

In order to streamline things for everyone involved, I included a bullet pointed list of additional materials which would be required for a new permit if the work does end up going beyond normal maintenance and repair. Feel free to reach out to myself or the Building Department on these permit requirements; Brian Byrne, our Building Commissioner, is CC'ed on this email so he's in the loop. Of course we already have the information on the shingles from your reroofing permit, so there's no need to resend that information. I know you like to plan ahead, so my recommendation is to get materials together earlier rather than later if you think there is any chance the work could go beyond normal maintenance and repair after taking a look inside the garage. That way Staff can work with you to make any necessary adjustments to minimize time spent in HPC meetings.

- Normal drawing set for roof construction, including section and plan drawings
- Documentation of damaged elements (typically labeling photos on a Word document or pdf is easiest for applicants)
- Written scope of work, including that details like pitch, height, etc would be replaced like for like

Finally, just to keep you updated, I did let our Code Compliance Officer know that you plan to move that lumber out of sight, so that should hopefully take the temperature down for everyone a little.

Like I said, feel free to reach out to myself or Brian with any questions. If you have anything that might involve both of us, you can always just reply all to this email and we'll both be able to see it and help you out! Thank you,

Emily,

I need to meet with Chad and determine a direction. Which will likely be to push off any work until after permit approval, of which we don't even know we need, and time and money neither of us will get back if we don't need it.

It begs the question, what would the HPC have done if I opened this roof and then discovered that more work was needed? Force me to stop work with an exposed rafter system, causing a public safety issue and potentially more damage to an already old structure?

Surely there has to be a better and more efficient way on your end to handle situations like this. You are prestigious Geneva. It's an honor to work in your town. I hope that moving forward you as a committee figure out how to make your process more homeowner and contractor friendly. I can't say you have the best reputation in the industry. Driving away good contractors does nothing to help restore and keep historic Geneva alive and beautiful.

Just some unsolicited thoughts. I respect you enough to share them. Talk soon.

TJ,

Yes, normal permit review would include an HPC meeting. Like I said on the phone, admin approval is typically not approved in this case due to the extent of work, and during our meeting today our team agreed that we would not be able to make exceptions. In any case, permit documents should be submitted before work is done.

As long as all materials are prepared, it is typical that only one HPC meeting would be required. This case is different from the siding case you experienced earlier because there will be no price comparisons or material differences in any replacements, which should aid efficiency in the Commission's decision-making.

I CC'ed Brian on this email again just to keep him in the loop.

Good morning!

I wanted to extend my apologies to the HPC for missing the meeting last night. The email from the 10th is in my inbox and was opened at one point, but it looks like I forgot to respond or to mark it in my calendar.

I'm very sorry for the error and I will, of course, try my best to make sure this isn't a reoccurring issue!

Hope the rest of the week goes well,
Marissa W.

Hi Susan,

Thank you for getting back to me so quickly, I apologize that we keep missing each other! I just left you a voicemail but wanted to follow up by email as well! A couple things:

1. We totally understand your frustration and definitely want to work with you as much as possible to make this process smooth. We appreciate all the work you've done already on research and that will be great for the Commission to see as well.
2. In terms of the like for like label – thank you for that clarification! We're glad you're looking at the characteristics of the windows overall. The preservation guidelines adopted by the city prioritize repair over replacement, followed by replacement with a like material over replacement with an alternate material, which is why that detail is so important. On many historic homes introducing new materials can affect the overall building, which is why the HPC takes review of those new introductions so seriously, and requires enough information on the other two options to understand why those aren't feasible. I linked those guidelines below and am happy to also send along the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation, which Geneva also follows.
3. Thank you for the detail on those existing storms as well. Typically storms are not applicable for HPC review because they are designed to be removable, so our focus is still on the body of the window which stays in the house year-round. If the storms are somehow physically combined with the normal windows, that is a different consideration.
4. Any photos like you mentioned on the phone would be great! I'll be able to include everything in the Staff Report for the HPC so they can understand the reason for the project visually as well as in writing.
5. Additionally, so that I can set you up for a meeting involving all the windows, please send along the specs for the other windows proposed for replacement when you can. I'll package those all together and label them in the Staff Report.

Thank you for your email, Emily. I left you a long voicemail. We would like to get the materials for the meeting to you as soon as possible.

After reading your email, my husband, Tim, pointed out that actually our windows are in fact aluminum facing out due to the storm triple tracks that are on the windows. Our decision, and an expensive one at that, to go with the Marvin elevate, vastly improves the contributing historic facade of our home.

We will look forward to working on this together with you. My phone is: 630-621-7221.

Kind regards,

Susan

Good afternoon Susan,

I've had some time to review your paperwork and the files we have on your property. According to our files, your home was constructed in 1957, which is within the 1835-1966 Period of Significance for the historic district, so it is actually rated as a Contributing historic building.

Also according to our files, it looks like your existing windows are wood, and your proposed replacements appear to be a fiberglass/wood mix, which would indicate that this is not a like for like replacement in terms of material, which the HPC does have to consider. This means we will need some extra information in order to present the most thorough case possible to the HPC. I am attaching our Window Replacement Checklist to this email, which sums up that information. The specs you provided includes most of the information required on the Alternative Material section. Like we discussed yesterday, these materials will be necessary for the review of any street-facing windows you are proposing to replace.

The next deadline for HPC meeting materials is February 3rd, with the actual meeting scheduled for February 18th. I am happy to work with you during that period in gathering the additional information needed for this review, and can provide additional options for resources as needed. Like I said yesterday, we will be able to do this as one HPC review with a phased project to lessen the amount of meetings you need to attend. I'll keep an eye out for the additional materials and any messages from you to get ahead of this and make this process as smooth as possible for you.

I apologize for not being able to speak more in depth yesterday! I am always open to answering questions or concerns – if you call and I can't answer, feel free to leave a message or send an email and I'll get back to you as soon as I can.

Good morning,

You are receiving this email as a reminder of the January HPC meeting, scheduled for Wednesday, 1/21 at 7pm in Geneva City Hall – Council Chambers. Your application is included in the Agenda and Staff Report, available at the linked Agenda Center. A representative of the project is required to attend the meeting in-person for discussion. Please note that the meeting will be on Wednesday, not Tuesday as is typical for HPC meetings, due to Monday's holiday. Feel free to reach out with any questions or concerns before the meeting.

Hope you and your family had a good holiday season! I just wanted to give you a heads up on some slight schedule changes with the January and February HPC meetings in case it affects your availability. Because of MLK Jr Day and President's Day, both meetings will be moved back to Wednesday instead of Tuesday, but times and locations will remain the same. In March we'll return to the third Tuesday schedule. I wrote those schedules out below so you have them, and I'll send out the normal Friday emails as well! Just keep us updated on whether or not you're available and we'll keep you in the loop on our end as well.

Good morning!

I am about to post the Staff Report packets and will send the normal email reminder when I do, but I wanted to keep you in the loop on some roof pitch calculations I did late last afternoon! It looks like the body of the porch does have a pitch of about 2.4 in 12, while that new overhang is only about 1.4 in 12. I left the proposal as is in the report, but I did suggest that if the Commission isn't comfortable with the full roof changing, allowing that overhang to change might be something to discuss since it's a new section and a much lower slope. Just didn't want that to be a surprise when you read over the packet.

Hope you're staying warm,

Hi Becca!

Hope you and your family had a good holiday season! I just wanted to give you a heads up on some slight schedule changes with the January and February HPC meetings in case it affects your availability. Because of MLK Jr Day and President's Day, both meetings will be moved back to Wednesday instead of Tuesday, but times and locations will remain the same. In March we'll return to the third Tuesday schedule. I wrote those schedules out below so you have them, and I'll send out the normal Friday emails as well! Just keep us updated on whether or not you're available and we'll keep you in the loop on our end as well.

January Meeting:
1/21 at 7pm, in City Hall

February Meeting:
2/18 at 7pm, in City Hall

Thanks, and have a good day,

Hi Anaïs,
Just a follow up from our call! I spoke to Brian and his advice was to just wait until you're able to do some exploratory demo to make any changes to your plans on the structure of the porch. There are a few options, such as additional piers, that could work with the structural changes in case the long rim joist idea ends up not seeming successful after that demo. He just wanted to make you aware to try to minimize surprises (as I'm sure you've already experienced is common with historic work.) For now, our advice is to work through the HPC approval process and then just stay in contact through the demo and construction process on any changes to the permit! Hopefully that relieves some stress in working out that detail of the permit change.

Hi Anaïs,
Thank you for the updated drawing and this form! We are processing that and beginning work on the packet now. I'll make a note of that roof pitch and the code in the packet so the Commission is aware ahead of time. I'll also keep an eye out for the info on roofing materials.

Before we get ahead of ourselves (and while the weather is still decent) I would recommend just triple checking the ability to fasten the future porch to the frame of the house, as drawn (of course just lower), rather than needing to fasten that to your foundation. Like I mentioned, that would end up being a structural change and require more oversight from Building. When I mentioned these updates to Brian today, he brought that up again as a concern that might lengthen permit review time, so I just want to give you as much time as possible in case that ends up being a concern. In the meantime, I'll keep up the work on the HPC review!

Have a good day, and feel free to reach out!

Thanks, Emily!

Thanks so much for all the info! I reviewed the guidelines you linked to, and since I don't think that there are any original materials or particularly historic design/details for the porch roof, I didn't see much there that seemed very relevant to this proposed change. I also went back and remeasured the blueprints more carefully, and I think the shed roof pitch is actually 2.2:12 not 2.7:12. Separately, I sent a version of the East elevation with a seamed metal roof drawn in with 12" seams. I don't have more info yet on the specific materials for the roof, but have reached out to our contractor to ask for that.

Thanks!

Hi Anaïs,

Thanks for calling today! Attached are the current design guidelines for more clarity on that porch roof question. I would look at both page 52 – residential roofs, and page 66 – porches for your specific proposal. As for proposal materials, I just checked in with Brian and have some info from Building and an HPC list for you.

Typically on a change like this, Brian would ask for revised drawings after construction to confirm everything. Since it also has to go before HPC, for now we're going to ask for exterior elevations with the changes drawn for the Commissioner review. Additional needs on the interior can go through the normal Building process. He did want to call out to you that one concern to check on before moving forward is whether there is space on the body of the house to attach the rim joist to with the lowered floor. Basically, if the new floor attaches lower, and ends up needing to go into a foundation like stacked limestone instead of the frame of the house, that's a larger change and Building would have to get more involved early on. He also confirmed that typically if a pitch is less than 2/12 asphalt shingles aren't as successful with water shed.

So what we're looking at now for application materials is as follows. Like I said on the phone, technically this month's application materials are due today. Next months are due 2/3. The other house I mentioned which looked at doing a metal porch roof was 127 Second Street, if you're interested in checking that out as well!

1. Elevation drawings that illustrate the new proposal. I would recommend a front and at least one side. I'll use your previous drawings in the packet to illustrate what's changing.
2. Material information on the metal roof

Thanks again, and feel free to reach out with questions,

Subject: 312 S Fifth Historic Info

Hi Jason,

I'm Emily, the Preservation Planner for the City of Geneva. Brian Byrne let me know that you might have some questions related to preservation on your project at 312 S Fifth Street, so I wanted to make myself available! I apologize for the delay in reaching out.

This is the link to the State Historic Preservation Office's website with information on the Tax Freeze option. There is a minimum threshold for the project budget – 25% of the assessor's value – and it would trigger higher oversight by the SHPO. If your clients balance those factors and decide they're interested in pursuing it, I would recommend starting that application as early as possible in order to make the process easier for everyone!

I know Brian also mentioned there might be some work on a chimney coming up. I'm happy to look into that more as you get into it, but just a heads up ahead of time that chimney replacement on a primary façade would require full HPC review, while chimney replacement on a secondary façade can typically just undergo administrative review with evidence of that chimney's existence.

From what Brian has said, it sounds like you're doing some really interesting work on this project, which I was glad to hear! Feel free to reach out any time.

Thank you,

Hi Anaïs,
Just a follow up from our call! I spoke to Brian and his advice was to just wait until you're able to do some exploratory demo to make any changes to your plans on the structure of the porch. There are a few options, such as additional piers, that could work with the structural changes in case the long rim joist idea ends up not seeming successful after that demo. He just wanted to make you aware to try to minimize surprises (as I'm sure you've already experienced is common with historic work.) For now, our advice is to work through the HPC approval process and then just stay in contact through the demo and construction process on any changes to the permit! Hopefully that relieves some stress in working out that detail of the permit change.

See you tonight,

Hi Anaïs,
Thank you for the updated drawing and this form! We are processing that and beginning work on the packet now. I'll make a note of that roof pitch and the code in the packet so the Commission is aware ahead of time. I'll also keep an eye out for the info on roofing materials.

Before we get ahead of ourselves (and while the weather is still decent) I would recommend just triple checking the ability to fasten the future porch to the frame of the house, as drawn (of course just lower), rather than needing to fasten that to your foundation. Like I mentioned, that would end up being a structural change and require more oversight from Building. When I mentioned these updates to Brian today, he brought that up again as a concern that might lengthen permit review time, so I just want to give you as much time as possible in case that ends up being a concern. In the meantime, I'll keep up the work on the HPC review!

Have a good day, and feel free to reach out!

Thanks, Emily!

Thanks so much for all the info! I reviewed the guidelines you linked to, and since I don't think that there are any original materials or particularly historic design/details for the porch roof, I didn't see much there that seemed very relevant to this proposed change. I also went back and remeasured the blueprints more carefully, and I think the shed roof pitch is actually 2.2:12 not 2.7:12. Separately, I sent a version of the East elevation with a seamed metal roof drawn in with 12" seams. I don't have more info yet on the specific materials for the roof, but have reached out to our contractor to ask for that.

Here is the application front form; I'll plan to drop off a signed copy tomorrow.

Thanks!

Subject: Porch Roof and Steps

Hi Anaïs,

Thanks for calling today! Attached are the current design guidelines for more clarity on that porch roof question. I would look at both page 52 – residential roofs, and page 66 – porches for your specific proposal. As for proposal materials, I just checked in with Brian and have some info from Building and an HPC list for you.

Typically on a change like this, Brian would ask for revised drawings after construction to confirm everything. Since it also has to go before HPC, for now we're going to ask for exterior elevations with the changes drawn for the Commissioner review. Additional needs on the interior can go through the normal Building process. He did want to call out to you that one concern to check on before moving forward is whether there is space on the body of the house to attach the rim joist to with the lowered floor. Basically, if the new floor attaches lower, and ends up needing to go into a foundation like stacked limestone instead of the frame of the house, that's a larger change and Building would have to get more involved early on. He also confirmed that typically if a pitch is less than 2/12 asphalt shingles aren't as successful with water shed.

So what we're looking at now for application materials is as follows. Like I said on the phone, technically this month's application materials are due today. Next months are due 2/3. The other house I mentioned which looked at doing a metal porch roof was 127 Second Street, if you're interested in checking that out as well!

- Elevation drawings that illustrate the new proposal. I would recommend a front and at least one side. I'll use your previous drawings in the packet to illustrate what's changing.
- Material information on the metal roof

Thanks again, and feel free to reach out with questions,

Subject: RE: COA reviews questions

Hi Emma,

Yes, everything which is reviewed administratively and by the Commission requires a permit! Geneva runs a little bit of a different system than most HPC's so instead of issuing COA's as a more separate thing, the HPC review is a "Construction Plan Review" which is tied in with the full permit review. We do sometimes get people that don't realize they needed a permit in general, but since everything lines up we basically just hand off the HPC review form with the permit form anytime it affects a designated property. This is part of the conversation we've been having about paint on masonry – since paint doesn't require a permit, we would have to rewrite a lot of our system and I'm honestly not sure how we would handle notification at this point.

In other news, my friend checked her files last night and she didn't do a lot of research on shingle suppliers, especially up north. I quickly googled stamped metal shingles and it looks like there are a decent amount of manufacturers around doing different things, including with the more Victorian styles. I think pointing your applicant towards those and maybe the Landmarks Directory would be helpful! It looks like there are some contractors who also have experience in metal roofing on that site as well.

Hope this helps, and hope your meeting last night went well!

Hi Emily,
I am looking through your COA list and the level of review for each project. I know you do a lot of administrative reviews. It also looks like you do a lot of reviews for work that, in St Charles, would not require a permit. Does all the work that you and the Commission review, require a permit? For those that do not require a permit, how do people know to take out a COA for it? Thanks!

There's still time to register for NAPC's first webinar of the new year, taking place on Thursday, January 22, 2026. This timely program focuses on the skilled preservation trades and the critical role they play in achieving strong preservation outcomes.

As fewer craftspeople enter the field and experienced practitioners retire, many communities are finding it increasingly difficult to complete appropriate repairs, from window restoration to masonry work. This webinar will examine how these workforce challenges affect local preservation efforts and what commissions and staff can do to respond.

Participants will learn:

- Why the preservation trades matter to local governments
- How workforce shortages impact project quality and affordability
- Practical ways commissions and staff can support training, partnerships, and sustainable preservation outcomes

Jewel,

Someone from the county HPC mentioned this to me so I've also been keeping an eye out. It will definitely be a change in context for the Amasa White House no matter what they choose. It looks like some of the options might involve selling the property, so I would be interested to see where that ended up. I don't think they would allow the solar to damage the house, although unexpected things can happen during construction. I linked the minutes from the meeting they described in the article in case you're interested, they map out the options a lot more visually which was helpful to me.

Emily,
Just read this article, any idea how this would impact the 1840's historical Amasa White house? It is a cool house, I had the pleasure of touring it a few years ago with a group.

Thanks,

Hi Emily,

Thanks for reaching out. It's always nice to hear from other preservation planners in the area! I'm copying my supervisor Zubin Coleman who was the preservation planner previously.

This is an interesting question! I do not have personal experience with a survey triggering a rating change for a designated property. Our last survey update did not change the ratings of any properties in Local Historic Districts or those of any Local Landmarks. Our survey updates avoid Local Districts because those properties have already been documented and are regulated.

If a third party recommended upgrading a non-contributing structure to a contributing structure, I would want that change to have the approval of both the HPC and City Council. In Highland Park I would think it would require an amendment to the original Local District ordinance because it would increase the level of regulation on the property.

If you want to give me a call or set up a meeting with Zubin and I sometime, let us know! We would be more than happy to chat.

Best regards,

[EXTERNAL EMAIL]

Hi Maddy,

It's nice to meet you! I'm Emily, the Preservation Planner for Geneva. I have a quick question for you about the survey updates you guys have been doing at Highland Park.

We have a survey update that was done some time ago by a third party for both our local district and NR districts, which overlap, but our HPC never reviewed it, so it hasn't been instated at the local level. I've been working on getting that local update processed so our Period of Significance and rating updates are all updated to the same period as our NR listing. We are now at a point where the updated survey, with rating changes, is ready to be reviewed, but we don't have a clear view on what level of review the update needs to undergo.

Have you all seen this issue with the updates you've been working through, where a district is already established but an update is triggering rating changes? If so, how have you handled it? We've seen a lot of variety in review processes and are hoping some local experience might bring clarity, so any advice would be great!

Thanks in advance!

Good morning Emily and Brian,
I hope the day finds you both doing well! I am reaching out on behalf of Brian Hogan with Hogan Design + Construction in hopes of setting up a visit to discuss Hogan's intentions for the remodeling of the home at 17 N 6th Street. In anticipation of our visit I've attached some design drawings which I will bring full size hard copies to help our conversation. The structure initially served as a residence but was eventually converted to office space. The folks at Hogan wish to remodel the structure to accommodate two rentable units with a two bedroom unit at the first floor and a one bedroom unit on the second floor. The intention of our visit is to get feedback in preparation for a planned HPC visit in February for a "concept review". Following our HPC visit we would then move into development of the construction drawings to be used for permit review and a final HPC review. As for a day and time, below are a few dates with windows of time that would work. I would imagine our visit would take no more than 30-45 minutes at most. Please let me know which is most convenient for you both.
Wednesday 1/14: 9:00 am - 12:00 pm
Friday 1/16: 12:00 - 3:00 pm
Warm regards,
Sean

Subject: HPC Updates

Hello everyone,

Just a few date reminders for the next few months as we have some moving pieces coming up! The January and February meetings will both be pushed back a day to Wednesday due to MLK Jr Day and President's Day, respectively. This means that the next two HPC meetings will be on January 21 and February 18. Other than the date shift, they will be at 7 at City Hall as normal. After February, we'll go back to our normal Tuesday schedule.

Additionally, as I've messaged earlier, the appeal for the 4 E State decision will occur next Monday, the 12th. Lisa will be representing the HPC at that meeting. The meeting will stream and be recorded as normal, and we will keep you all updated on the decision.

As always, please do not reply all to this message in compliance with the Open Meetings Act.

Thank you,

Lisa,

No worries! I didn't expect any quick responses last week.

That's perfect that you're already planning on being there. I'm attaching the script that Jewel used during the last appeal, if that's helpful in making up a new script. Happy to help pull together an updated version for this time around if you'd like. I can always hop on a call or set up a meeting if that's easier as well. I think the goal would be similar to the HPC meeting in making sure we really stick to the current application and emphasize everyone's conclusions from the meeting.

Either way, I'll keep you updated if anything changes as we get closer to the meeting!

Hi Lisa,

Hope you're doing well, and that your holiday season has been good! I have an ask for you.

As you know, the appeal was submitted for 4 E State Street, and will be going before the City Council on January 12. The HPC has a right to give a statement at this meeting, along with the applicant. Paul is not available to attend the meeting, so we're looking for another member to attend and make that statement. Would you be available to speak at the meeting? You would basically have to read off a summary of the conclusions you all reached when the demolition was denied on the 16th. We thought you would be great because you have experience with this project and you have a knack for summing things up well in meetings. I would of course be happy to talk with you about the meeting process or a statement before hand as well. If you're not available, just let me know and I can ask someone else.

Subject: Porch Roof and Steps

Hi Anaïs,

Thanks for calling today! Attached are the current design guidelines for more clarity on that porch roof question. I would look at both page 52 – residential roofs, and page 66 – porches for your specific proposal. As for proposal materials, I just checked in with Brian and have some info from Building and an HPC list for you.

Typically on a change like this, Brian would ask for revised drawings after construction to confirm everything. Since it also has to go before HPC, for now we're going to ask for exterior elevations with the changes drawn for the Commissioner review. Additional needs on the interior can go through the normal Building process. He did want to call out to you that one concern to check on before moving forward is whether there is space on the body of the house to attach the rim joist to with the lowered floor. Basically, if the new floor attaches lower, and ends up needing to go into a foundation like stacked limestone instead of the frame of the house, that's a larger change and Building would have to get more involved early on. He also confirmed that typically if a pitch is less than 2/12 asphalt shingles aren't as successful with water shed.

So what we're looking at now for application materials is as follows. Like I said on the phone, technically this month's application materials are due today. Next months are due 2/3. The other house I mentioned which looked at doing a metal porch roof was 127 Second Street, if you're interested in checking that out as well!

- Elevation drawings that illustrate the new proposal. I would recommend a front and at least one side. I'll use your previous drawings in the packet to illustrate what's changing.
- Material information on the metal roof

Thanks again, and feel free to reach out with questions,

Hi Anaïs,

Both the change in roof material and the change in attached steps would have to return to HPC as a change to an existing permit per the HPC Review Matrix. If you were just recladding the roof with the same materials, that would just be administrative approval. The HPC did recently deny a change in material to metal on a porch roof on Second Street because of concerns over character and material, which I want to make sure you're aware of.

In terms of the solar panels, I want to make sure I'm answering the right question. Do you mean implications on how the solar panels will react with the materials or implications involving the building code?

If you do decide you want to go forward with review for any of these changes, we would just have to see updated drawings for the roof and stair, and any material specs for the roof. Happy as always to answer any questions, and to meet or call if that's easier!

Thanks for reaching out! I'll keep an eye out for any updates.

Hi Emily,

We wound up needing to find a new contractor for our porch project and one thing that came up in that search was that the angle of the roof on the porch is so shallow that it would be more appropriate for it to have a rubber or metal roof, rather than shingles, so that it was better able to shed water. While a new roof was not an explicit part of our HPC application (and I'm not sure that it is covered by HP guidelines), it does seem likely that the renovation process will likely require roof replacement.

I was curious what the HP take on such roofing materials was, and also if there are implications for installing solar panels (I don't know if you or David would know that) on a rubber or metal roof. From an aesthetic perspective, I think we would be more inclined toward a metal roof, and the contractor we are planning to work with thinks that the costs are about equivalent between the two.

Another change we are considering is lowering the floor of the porch so that the ceiling inside is not quite so low. That would mean one fewer step outside (and one interior step). Would that require us to present a new application to HPC, or is that something that could be administratively reviewed?

Thanks!

Anaïs,

These drawings work! I think if you're able to just highlight where the metal roof would be proposed and send along some specs of what that material would be we'd have everything we need. I won't be starting on the packet today, so if it's easier to send that along by tomorrow morning that would be fine.

Thank you for being so quick!

Hi Emily,

I used the blueprints to trace/amend the stairs elevations to show what one fewer exterior step would look like. Can you let me know if you think this is adequate pictorial representation for an HPC review? If so, I'll fill out an application form for this amendment to our current application.

Thanks!

Hi Steve,

Thank you for these! You are on the agenda for the January meeting and I'll keep you updated as I build out your packet. As this is for more of a Concept Review, the conversation will be more informal than the last meeting you attended, but I hope you're able to get a lot out of it before returning for your Permit Review.

Have a good one,

Good afternoon,

I hope you're doing well! This message is to remind you that materials for the January HPC meeting are due Tuesday, January 6. As we exit the holiday season, I know everyone has been busy, so please ensure that you keep that date in mind so that we are able to help you keep your project moving forward. If you are receiving this message, we have discussed required materials for your project, but as always, I am happy to answer any follow up questions or clarify details.

Additionally, due to Martin Luther King, Jr. day, the January HPC meeting will not occur on Tuesday, the 20th, but on Wednesday, the 21st. As we've discussed, a representative of the project is required to be at the meeting for the discussion. The meeting will still begin at 7 pm and occur at City Hall. Additional reminders of that date will be sent closer to the meeting.

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

Good morning Randy,

Documents and public comments included in the Mill Race application are available on the City Development Projects page. I linked the 4 E State project page for you here. Two additional letters were submitted directly before the meeting, after we posted the second package of comments, so a total of 84 were received before the meeting.

Emily, I hope you are having a nice day. Thank you for the response. I was present at the 12/16/25 HPC meeting. In that meeting it was said that all the letters sent to HPC about the demolition of the Mill Race structure would be posted. How do I access those letters? How many letters were submitted?

Thank you.

Subject: Porch Roof and Steps

Hi Anaïs,

Thanks for calling today! Attached are the current design guidelines for more clarity on that porch roof question. I would look at both page 52 – residential roofs, and page 66 – porches for your specific proposal. As for proposal materials, I just checked in with Brian and have some info from Building and an HPC list for you.

Typically on a change like this, Brian would ask for revised drawings after construction to confirm everything. Since it also has to go before HPC, for now we're going to ask for exterior elevations with the changes drawn for the Commissioner review. Additional needs on the interior can go through the normal Building process. He did want to call out to you that one concern to check on before moving forward is whether there is space on the body of the house to attach the rim joist to with the lowered floor. Basically, if the new floor attaches lower, and ends up needing to go into a foundation like stacked limestone instead of the frame of the house, that's a larger change and Building would have to get more involved early on. He also confirmed that typically if a pitch is less than 2/12 asphalt shingles aren't as successful with water shed.

So what we're looking at now for application materials is as follows. Like I said on the phone, technically this month's application materials are due today. Next months are due 2/3. The other house I mentioned which looked at doing a metal porch roof was 127 Second Street, if you're interested in checking that out as well!

- Elevation drawings that illustrate the new proposal. I would recommend a front and at least one side. I'll use your previous drawings in the packet to illustrate what's changing.
- Material information on the metal roof

Thanks again, and feel free to reach out with questions,

Emily Stood

Hi Maddy,

It's nice to meet you! I'm Emily, the Preservation Planner for Geneva. I have a quick question for you about the survey updates you guys have been doing at Highland Park.

We have a survey update that was done some time ago by a third party for both our local district and NR districts, which overlap, but our HPC never reviewed it, so it hasn't been instated at the local level. I've been working on getting that local update processed so our Period of Significance and rating updates are all updated to the same period as our NR listing. We are now at a point where the updated survey, with rating changes, is ready to be reviewed, but we don't have a clear view on what level of review the update needs to undergo.

Have you all seen this issue with the updates you've been working through, where a district is already established but an update is triggering rating changes? If so, how have you handled it? We've seen a lot of variety in review processes and are hoping some local experience might bring clarity, so any advice would be great!

Thanks in advance!

Dave,

Yes, this would need to go before HPC. The due date for materials for the 1/21/2026 meeting was 1/6/2026, so adding this proposal would not be possible for the January meeting, and would have to be considered for a later date.

I assume that the proposed structure will need to go before HPC as it is within the footprint of the historic structure.

If so, is it too late to be on the 1/21/2026 HPC agenda?

Hi Susan,

Thank you for getting back to me so quickly, I apologize that we keep missing each other! I just left you a voicemail but wanted to follow up by email as well! A couple things:

1. We totally understand your frustration and definitely want to work with you as much as possible to make this process smooth. We appreciate all the work you've done already on research and that will be great for the Commission to see as well.
2. In terms of the like for like label – thank you for that clarification! We're glad you're looking at the characteristics of the windows overall. The preservation guidelines adopted by the city prioritize repair over replacement, followed by replacement with a like material over replacement with an alternate material, which is why that detail is so important. On many historic homes introducing new materials can affect the overall building, which is why the HPC takes review of those new introductions so seriously, and requires enough information on the other two options to understand why those aren't feasible. I linked those guidelines below and am happy to also send along the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation, which Geneva also follows.
3. Thank you for the detail on those existing storms as well. Typically storms are not applicable for HPC review because they are designed to be removable, so our focus is still on the body of the window which stays in the house year-round. If the storms are somehow physically combined with the normal windows, that is a different consideration.
4. Any photos like you mentioned on the phone would be great! I'll be able to include everything in the Staff Report for the HPC so they can understand the reason for the project visually as well as in writing.
5. Additionally, so that I can set you up for a meeting involving all the windows, please send along the specs for the other windows proposed for replacement when you can. I'll package those all together and label them in the Staff Report.

Good afternoon Susan,

I've had some time to review your paperwork and the files we have on your property. According to our files, your home was constructed in 1957, which is within the 1835-1966 Period of Significance for the historic district, so it is actually rated as a Contributing historic building.

Also according to our files, it looks like your existing windows are wood, and your proposed replacements appear to be a fiberglass/wood mix, which would indicate that this is not a like for like replacement in terms of material, which the HPC does have to consider. This means we will need some extra information in order to present the most thorough case possible to the HPC. I am attaching our Window Replacement Checklist to this email, which sums up that information. The specs you provided includes most of the information required on the Alternative Material section. Like we discussed yesterday, these materials will be necessary for the review of any street-facing windows you are proposing to replace.

The next deadline for HPC meeting materials is February 3rd, with the actual meeting scheduled for February 18th. I am happy to work with you during that period in gathering the additional information needed for this review, and can provide additional options for resources as needed. Like I said yesterday, we will be able to do this as one HPC review with a phased project to lessen the amount of meetings you need to attend. I'll keep an eye out for the additional materials and any messages from you to get ahead of this and make this process as smooth as possible for you.

Hi Emily,

Thanks for reaching out. It's always nice to hear from other preservation planners in the area! I'm copying my supervisor Zubin Coleman who was the preservation planner previously.

This is an interesting question! I do not have personal experience with a survey triggering a rating change for a designated property. Our last survey update did not change the ratings of any properties in Local Historic Districts or those of any Local Landmarks. Our survey updates avoid Local Districts because those properties have already been documented and are regulated.

If a third party recommended upgrading a non-contributing structure to a contributing structure, I would want that change to have the approval of both the HPC and City Council. In Highland Park I would think it would require an amendment to the original Local District ordinance because it would increase the level of regulation on the property.

If you want to give me a call or set up a meeting with Zubin and I sometime, let us know! We would be more than happy to chat.

Best regards,

Maddy Markle

Hi Maddy,

It's nice to meet you! I'm Emily, the Preservation Planner for Geneva. I have a quick question for you about the survey updates you guys have been doing at Highland Park.

We have a survey update that was done some time ago by a third party for both our local district and NR districts, which overlap, but our HPC never reviewed it, so it hasn't been instated at the local level. I've been working on getting that local update processed so our Period of Significance and rating updates are all updated to the same period as our NR listing. We are now at a point where the updated survey, with rating changes, is ready to be reviewed, but we don't have a clear view on what level of review the update needs to undergo.

Have you all seen this issue with the updates you've been working through, where a district is already established but an update is triggering rating changes? If so, how have you handled it? We've seen a lot of variety in review processes and are hoping some local experience might bring clarity, so any advice would be great!

Thanks in advance!

I just wanted to give you a heads up on some slight schedule changes with the January and February HPC meetings in case it affects your availability. Because of MLK Jr Day and President's Day, both meetings will be moved back to Wednesday instead of Tuesday, but times and locations will remain the same. In March we'll return to the third Tuesday schedule. I wrote those schedules out below so you have them, and I'll send out the normal Friday emails as well! Just keep us updated on whether or not you're available and we'll keep you in the loop on our end as well.

2. In terms of the like for like label – thank you for that clarification! We're glad you're looking at the characteristics of the windows overall. The preservation guidelines adopted by the city prioritize repair over replacement, followed by replacement with a like material over replacement with an alternate material, which is why that detail is so important. On many historic homes introducing new materials can affect the overall building, which is why the HPC takes review of those new introductions so seriously, and requires enough information on the other two options to understand why those aren't feasible. Good morning!

I am about to post the Staff Report packets and will send the normal email reminder when I do, but I wanted to keep you in the loop on some roof pitch calculations I did late last afternoon! It looks like the body of the porch does have a pitch of about 2.4 in 12, while that new overhang is only about 1.4 in 12. I left the proposal as is in the report, but I did suggest that if the Commission isn't comfortable with the full roof changing, allowing that overhang to change might be something to discuss since it's a new section and a much lower slope. Just didn't want that to be a surprise when you read over the packet.

Hope you're staying warm,

Hi Becca!

Hope you and your family had a good holiday season! I just wanted to give you a heads up on some slight schedule changes with the January and February HPC meetings in case it affects your availability. Because of MLK Jr Day and President's Day, both meetings will be moved back to Wednesday instead of Tuesday, but times and locations will remain the same. In March we'll return to the third Tuesday schedule. I wrote those schedules out below so you have them, and I'll send out the normal Friday emails as well! Just keep us updated on whether or not you're available and we'll keep you in the loop on our end as well.

January Meeting:
1/21 at 7pm, in City Hall

February Meeting:
2/18 at 7pm, in City Hall

Thanks, and have a good day,

Hi Susan,

Thank you for getting back to me so quickly, I apologize that we keep missing each other! I just left you a voicemail but wanted to follow up by email as well! A couple things:

1. We totally understand your frustration and definitely want to work with you as much as possible to make this process smooth. We appreciate all the work you've done already on research and that will be great for the Commission to see as well.
2. In terms of the like for like label – thank you for that clarification! We're glad you're looking at the characteristics of the windows overall. The preservation guidelines adopted by the city prioritize repair over replacement, followed by replacement with a like material over replacement with an alternate material, which is why that detail is so important. On many historic homes introducing new materials can affect the overall building, which is why the HPC takes review of those new introductions so seriously, and requires enough information on the other two options to understand why those aren't feasible. I linked those guidelines below and am happy to also send along the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation, which Geneva also follows.
3. Thank you for the detail on those existing storms as well. Typically storms are not applicable for HPC review because they are designed to be removable, so our focus is still on the body of the window which stays in the house year-round. If the storms are somehow physically combined with the normal windows, that is a different consideration.
4. Any photos like you mentioned on the phone would be great! I'll be able to include everything in the Staff Report for the HPC so they can understand the reason for the project visually as well as in writing.
5. Additionally, so that I can set you up for a meeting involving all the windows, please send along the specs for the other windows proposed for replacement when you can. I'll package those all together and label them in the Staff Report.

Thank you for your email, Emily. I left you a long voicemail. We would like to get the materials for the meeting to you as soon as possible.

After reading your email, my husband, Tim, pointed out that actually our windows are in fact aluminum facing out due to the storm triple tracks that are on the windows. Our decision, and an expensive one at that, to go with the Marvin elevate, vastly improves the contributing historic facade of our home.

We will look forward to working on this together with you. My phone is: 630-621-7221.

Kind regards,

Hi Jason,

I'm Emily, the Preservation Planner for the City of Geneva. Brian Byrne let me know that you might have some questions related to preservation on your project at 312 S Fifth Street, so I wanted to make myself available! I apologize for the delay in reaching out.

This is the link to the State Historic Preservation Office's website with information on the Tax Freeze option. There is a minimum threshold for the project budget – 25% of the assessor's value – and it would trigger higher oversight by the SHPO. If your clients balance those factors and decide they're interested in pursuing it, I would recommend starting that application as early as possible in order to make the process easier for everyone!

I know Brian also mentioned there might be some work on a chimney coming up. I'm happy to look into that more as you get into it, but just a heads up ahead of time that chimney replacement on a primary façade would require full HPC review, while chimney replacement on a secondary façade can typically just undergo administrative review with evidence of that chimney's existence.

From what Brian has said, it sounds like you're doing some really interesting work on this project, which I was glad to hear! Feel free to reach out any time.

Thank you,

Hi Anaïs,

Just a follow up from our call! I spoke to Brian and his advice was to just wait until you're able to do some exploratory demo to make any changes to your plans on the structure of the porch. There are a few options, such as additional piers, that could work with the structural changes in case the long rim joist idea ends up not seeming successful after that demo. He just wanted to make you aware to try to minimize surprises (as I'm sure you've already experienced is common with historic work.) For now, our advice is to work through the HPC approval process and then just stay in contact through the demo and construction process on any changes to the permit! Hopefully that relieves some stress in working out that detail of the permit change.

Hi Anaïs,

Thank you for the updated drawing and this form! We are processing that and beginning work on the packet now. I'll make a note of that roof pitch and the code in the packet so the Commission is aware ahead of time. I'll also keep an eye out for the info on roofing materials.

Before we get ahead of ourselves (and while the weather is still decent) I would recommend just triple checking the ability to fasten the future porch to the frame of the house, as drawn (of course just lower), rather than needing to fasten that to your foundation. Like I mentioned, that would end up being a structural change and require more oversight from Building. When I mentioned these updates to Brian today, he brought that up again as a concern that might lengthen permit review time, so I just want to give you as much time as possible in case that ends up being a concern. In the meantime, I'll keep up the work on the HPC review!

Thanks, Emily!

Thanks so much for all the info! I reviewed the guidelines you linked to, and since I don't think that there are any original materials or particularly historic design/details for the porch roof, I didn't see much there that seemed very relevant to this proposed change. I also went back and remeasured the blueprints more carefully, and I think the shed roof pitch is actually 2.2:12 not 2.7:12. Separately, I sent a version of the East elevation with a seamed metal roof drawn in with 12" seams. I don't have more info yet on the specific materials for the roof, but have reached out to our contractor to ask for that.

Here is the application front form; I'll plan to drop off a signed copy tomorrow.

Thanks!

Subject: Porch Roof and Steps

Hi Anaïs,

Thanks for calling today! Attached are the current design guidelines for more clarity on that porch roof question. I would look at both page 52 – residential roofs, and page 66 – porches for your specific proposal. As for proposal materials, I just checked in with Brian and have some info from Building and an HPC list for you.

Typically on a change like this, Brian would ask for revised drawings after construction to confirm everything. Since it also has to go before HPC, for now we're going to ask for exterior elevations with the changes drawn for the Commissioner review. Additional needs on the interior can go through the normal Building process. He did want to call out to you that one concern to check on before moving forward is whether there is space on the body of the house to attach the rim joist to with the lowered floor. Basically, if the new floor attaches lower, and ends up needing to go into a foundation like stacked limestone instead of the frame of the house, that's a larger change and Building would have to get more involved early on. He also confirmed that typically if a pitch is less than 2/12 asphalt shingles aren't as successful with water shed.

So what we're looking at now for application materials is as follows. Like I said on the phone, technically this month's application materials are due today. Next months are due 2/3. The other house I mentioned which looked at doing a metal porch roof was 127 Second Street, if you're interested in checking that out as well!

1. Elevation drawings that illustrate the new proposal. I would recommend a front and at least one side. I'll use your previous drawings in the packet to illustrate what's changing.
2. Material information on the metal roof

Thanks again, and feel free to reach out with questions,

Hi Anaïs,
Thank you for the updated drawing and this form! We are processing that and beginning work on the packet now. I'll make a note of that roof pitch and the code in the packet so the Commission is aware ahead of time. I'll also keep an eye out for the info on roofing materials.

Before we get ahead of ourselves (and while the weather is still decent) I would recommend just triple checking the ability to fasten the future porch to the frame of the house, as drawn (of course just lower), rather than needing to fasten that to your foundation. Like I mentioned, that would end up being a structural change and require more oversight from Building. When I mentioned these updates to Brian today, he brought that up again as a concern that might lengthen permit review time, so I just want to give you as much time as possible in case that ends up being a concern. In the meantime, I'll keep up the work on the HPC review!

Have a good day, and feel free to reach out!

Thanks, Emily!

Thanks so much for all the info! I reviewed the guidelines you linked to, and since I don't think that there are any original materials or particularly historic design/details for the porch roof, I didn't see much there that seemed very relevant to this proposed change. I also went back and remeasured the blueprints more carefully, and I think the shed roof pitch is actually 2.2:12 not 2.7:12. Separately, I sent a version of the East elevation with a seamed metal roof drawn in with 12" seams. I don't have more info yet on the specific materials for the roof, but have reached out to our contractor to ask for that.

Here is the application front form; I'll plan to drop off a signed copy tomorrow.

Thanks!

Hi Anaïs,

Thanks for calling today! Attached are the current design guidelines for more clarity on that porch roof question. I would look at both page 52 – residential roofs, and page 66 – porches for your specific proposal. As for proposal materials, I just checked in with Brian and have some info from Building and an HPC list for you.

Typically on a change like this, Brian would ask for revised drawings after construction to confirm everything. Since it also has to go before HPC, for now we're going to ask for exterior elevations with the changes drawn for the Commissioner review. Additional needs on the interior can go through the normal Building process. He did want to call out to you that one concern to check on before moving forward is whether there is space on the body of the house to attach the rim joist to with the lowered floor. Basically, if the new floor attaches lower, and ends up needing to go into a foundation like stacked limestone instead of the frame of the house, that's a larger change and Building would have to get more involved early on. He also confirmed that typically if a pitch is less than 2/12 asphalt shingles aren't as successful with water shed.

So what we're looking at now for application materials is as follows. Like I said on the phone, technically this month's application materials are due today. Next months are due 2/3. The other house I mentioned which looked at doing a metal porch roof was 127 Second Street, if you're interested in checking that out as well!

1. Elevation drawings that illustrate the new proposal. I would recommend a front and at least one side. I'll use your previous drawings in the packet to illustrate what's changing.
2. Material information on the metal roof

Thanks again, and feel free to reach out with questions,

Hi Anaïs,
Just a follow up from our call! I spoke to Brian and his advice was to just wait until you're able to do some exploratory demo to make any changes to your plans on the structure of the porch. There are a few options, such as additional piers, that could work with the structural changes in case the long rim joist idea ends up not seeming successful after that demo. He just wanted to make you aware to try to minimize surprises (as I'm sure you've already experienced is common with historic work.) For now, our advice is to work through the HPC approval process and then just stay in contact through the demo and construction process on any changes to the permit! Hopefully that relieves some stress in working out that detail of the permit change.

See you tonight,

Subject: RE: COA reviews questions

Hi Emma,

Yes, everything which is reviewed administratively and by the Commission requires a permit! Geneva runs a little bit of a different system than most HPC's so instead of issuing COA's as a more separate thing, the HPC review is a "Construction Plan Review" which is tied in with the full permit review. We do sometimes get people that don't realize they needed a permit in general, but since everything lines up we basically just hand off the HPC review form with the permit form anytime it affects a designated property. This is part of the conversation we've been having about paint on masonry – since paint doesn't require a permit, we would have to rewrite a lot of our system and I'm honestly not sure how we would handle notification at this point.

In other news, my friend checked her files last night and she didn't do a lot of research on shingle suppliers, especially up north. I quickly googled stamped metal shingles and it looks like there are a decent amount of manufacturers around doing different things, including with the more Victorian styles. I think pointing your applicant towards those and maybe the Landmarks Directory would be helpful! It looks like there are some contractors who also have experience in metal roofing on that site as well.

Hope this helps, and hope your meeting last night went well!

Hi Emily,
I am looking through your COA list and the level of review for each project. I know you do a lot of administrative reviews. It also looks like you do a lot of reviews for work that, in St Charles, would not require a permit. Does all the work that you and the Commission review, require a permit? For those that do not require a permit, how do people know to take out a COA for it? Thanks!

There's still time to register for NAPC's first webinar of the new year, taking place on Thursday, January 22, 2026. This timely program focuses on the skilled preservation trades and the critical role they play in achieving strong preservation outcomes.

As fewer craftspeople enter the field and experienced practitioners retire, many communities are finding it increasingly difficult to complete appropriate repairs, from window restoration to masonry work. This webinar will examine how these workforce challenges affect local preservation efforts and what commissions and staff can do to respond.

Participants will learn:

- Why the preservation trades matter to local governments
- How workforce shortages impact project quality and affordability
- Practical ways commissions and staff can support training, partnerships, and sustainable preservation outcomes

Thanks for your quick response. That's what it was looking like to me when I scanned your survey maps, but it never hurts to check! 😊 It's definitely an interesting issue to work through and hearing from a variety of experiences has been very helpful. I think for now, this answered my questions, but I may be reaching out again later as the process continues.

Nice to meet you again, and thanks for your help!

Hi Emily,

Thanks for reaching out. It's always nice to hear from other preservation planners in the area! I'm copying my supervisor Zubin Coleman who was the preservation planner previously.

This is an interesting question! I do not have personal experience with a survey triggering a rating change for a designated property. Our last survey update did not change the ratings of any properties in Local Historic Districts or those of any Local Landmarks. Our survey updates avoid Local Districts because those properties have already been documented and are regulated.

If a third party recommended upgrading a non-contributing structure to a contributing structure, I would want that change to have the approval of both the HPC and City Council. In Highland Park I would think it would require an amendment to the original Local District ordinance because it would increase the level of regulation on the property.

If you want to give me a call or set up a meeting with Zubin and I sometime, let us know! We would be more than happy to chat.

Best regards,

[EXTERNAL EMAIL]

Hi Maddy,

It's nice to meet you! I'm Emily, the Preservation Planner for Geneva. I have a quick question for you about the survey updates you guys have been doing at Highland Park.

We have a survey update that was done some time ago by a third party for both our local district and NR districts, which overlap, but our HPC never reviewed it, so it hasn't been instated at the local level. I've been working on getting that local update processed so our Period of Significance and rating updates are all updated to the same period as our NR listing. We are now at a point where the updated survey, with rating changes, is ready to be reviewed, but we don't have a clear view on what level of review the update needs to undergo.

Have you all seen this issue with the updates you've been working through, where a district is already established but an update is triggering rating changes? If so, how have you handled it? We've seen a lot of variety in review processes and are hoping some local experience might bring clarity, so any advice would be great!

Thanks in advance!

Subject: Reviewing Open Hearing Deposits

Hi Heather,

Please see only the first page of this document. I made the font red for all of the “Open” hearing deposits that can be closed out and billed out. The remaining projects are as follows:

- Prairie Grove – There are two errors: 1) I accidentally coded hearing deposit invoice # 640444 as a stormwater invoice for this same project. Please let me know if I need to do anything to remedy this mistake. 2) The hearing deposit excel sheet shows a WBK invoice # 640079 as in the hearing deposit section – this is actually a Kane County Recorder invoice and is correctly located in the hearing deposit section. (There is nothing to fix here in NewWorld, only a new naming in the hearing excel sheet.)
- 601 N 1st St Porch Variation – I mistakenly coded invoice #667143 in batch #2026-00000508 as applying to the Bullock Campus project. This invoice should be applied to the 601 N 1st Porch Variation project. After it is applied to this project, the project can be closed and billed out.
- Bullock Campus – 1) I need to somehow move the invoice #667143 from Bullock to the 601 N 1st St Porch Variation; 2) I believe we are waiting on an IGA with Kane County to be recorded before we can close this out
- Historic Review PP 2025-011 4 E State Street Demo – I want to wait until the City Council decision to decide whether we need to close this out or not.

Please let me know how I can help to reattribute invoices #640444 and #667143.

Going forward, I will generate a Project Transaction Report monthly the Friday before our 2nd-of-the-month Development Staff meeting (a Tuesday). This will usually be the 3rd Friday of the month, but sometimes the 4th (depending on the date of the Development Staff meeting). I will review which hearing deposits need to remain open and which can be closed and billed out, and I will review with Brian Davids at the Development Staff meeting which planning stormwater deposits can be closed out.

Thank you,

Hi Heather,

Thank you very much! I'll set up a meeting for us. As for the project number, I create a new project number when I fill out the Check Receipt Form on our end, because I need to write it in the top right corner of that sheet. I know whether I need a hearing deposit (and) stormwater deposit at that same time, though I have not always told you guys that early. I just made a draft edit of the Check Receipt Form that would show the certain type(s) of deposits which I would need you guys to make numbers for. Let me know if it makes sense or if you like it.

Jessie,

I have entered in both of the checks and created the project codes. I'll have the deposit accounts for you by tomorrow.

Can we setup a time next week to discuss the balances and process? I can see where we are getting tripped up on our side and I will discuss some changes with Jen and Kim. Also, at what point in the project do you know that you need a new project number? It seems that is the holdup for entering in the invoices and the checks.

Thanks for the information, Jessie. I have attached the Stormwater and Hearing spreadsheets. We can go through those spreadsheets next week and Finance can make adjustments if there are errors. I have also attached Kim's outstanding invoice listing. These are items that she has billed, but have not been paid. I am also going to pull Mike into the process so that he can keep Finance up-to-date.

Here are the items I was hoping we could discuss on Monday.

- Check handling process
- Project code creation process
- Monthly items Finance to provide to Planning
  - Stormwater spreadsheet
  - Hearing spreadsheet
  - Outstanding Accounts Receivable invoices
- Monthly items requested from Planning
  - Which projects can be closed out?
  - If a project is over their deposit, should we bill them the overage plus another deposit?
  - Are there any errors noted in the monthly reports?

Thanks so much!

It worked!! Thank you so much!

One last thing for today. When I was clicking around I noticed that the two lots I circled in the screenshot below got conjoined, probably when I had you adjust those boundaries. The eastern lot is actually Elizabeth_PL_316, and the western lot is Shady_Ave_716. Would it be possible to get those separated and then I can quickly add the Elizabeth Place info back in? Luckily it's only happening on the local layer.

Thank you again!

For some odd reason, the national parcel is not updating as it should normally. I've completed it another way by overwriting the web layer through ArcPro and it seems to work now!

Ok weird! I've definitely been saving it there regularly and I hopped on yesterday to do it again just in case, but things still don't seem to be carrying over. I attached screenshots of the map on the web versus the app so you could see what I'm seeing (I turned the districts layer off so it was easier to see). It looks like specifically the Historic Parcels – National layer isn't updating. I included a screenshot of just that layer so you could see but it's basically just gray, lol.

I also noticed that the Riverbank Laboratories lots (the three down on the south) still aren't combined. If it's possible to get those combined on the national and local layers, that would be great too!

Thank you again!

Easy fix then! So what we do for this is go to the editing section and save our edits there. Since all the features are hosted individually and in one spot, making any changes will show on the web map! I saved it any way on the web browser version so now its last updated was today, but you should be good now.

Let me know if that works just to be sure!

Hi Ian,

Thanks! No worries on the time, we have plenty of details outside of the map to hash out in the meantime. I dropped in a screenshot of what my tool bar looks like. In the past when I've worked on maps I've been able to just hit "save web map," but in this case that's grayed out and isn't possible to click. It might just be that you can hit it and it'll refresh?

Thanks,

Sorry it took me a second to get back to you. I updated those parcels so they are combined. As for your saving issue, could you show me what it looks like when you go to save on the web map? Ill play around with it in the mean time and see if I can find anything.

Hi Ian,

A few requests as David starts reviewing things! It doesn't look like I'm able to save the web map, so anyone reviewing online can only see about half of the updated info on the map. Is it possible for you to update that public-facing web map so all of my edits are visible?

We also realized that for the landmarks which have multiple lots, it can be a little confusing to read. Would it be possible to get the spots I circled below combined into one shape each?

They are in both the Historic_Parcels_Local and Historic_Parcels_National layers.

Thank you, and hope you're staying warm!

Hi Ian,

Thanks so much! I think there's you already included a field in the local parcels layer for the forms, so I plan on just using that for the links. For now I'll get to work on that and keep you updated! As I finish populating and start having other people review I'm guessing there will be some details to switch around, so I'm sure you'll be hearing from me again 😊

Hi Emily,

I'm happy I could help support you in this project! I've gone ahead and removed the two areas you circled below, so you should be good there. As for attaching PDFs, I can add a field labeling it "PDF" or "Document" rather. From there you would be able to copy and paste a link to it for users to click on. This should be no problem, but let IT know if the number of documents is going to be a lot. Either way it should be fine! Just let me know and I'll add the fields.

Would it be just for the Historic parcels?

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much for all your help already. The map is finally getting close! I have kind of a larger question for you. The last thing I need to do is link all the documents to their parcels. Do you or Cam have any suggestions on where we might store the documents so that they can eventually be available to the public through the links on the map? It's obviously a pretty large set of docs and we're not sure how to create the least load on our system while publishing them for everyone to be able to see. We were hoping you guys might have some experience or even just ideas which might work with our existing infrastructure!

Also, I noticed that a couple of the landmark boundaries didn't get fully deleted on the Historic Designations layer. No rush, but whenever you have time, could you please delete those as well? I circled them below so you can see what I'm looking at.

Thank you!!

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much! How strange that things weren't working, but maybe the updated permissions just hadn't fully loaded up yet. For the Historic Designations, the local historic district is outlined in blue, but so are the individual landmarks (which are also marked with the stars). If the polygons outlining those individual landmarks could be deleted, so the only things outlined by the historic designations layer were the different district bounds, I think that would make all the different designation types a little bit less confusing. Hopefully that makes more sense!

Thank you again,

Hi Ian,

Back again! I'm not totally sure, but I think when you updated some of the permissions, the system reverted other ones. I think at this point I'm just going to go by layer and bullet point the edits I've been trying to do below, so that either you can update it since you have access or try to update permissions – whichever is easiest for you.

- Historic Landmark Properties
  - a. Add those two points at the below addresses and then delete the extra point at the Pure Oil Station (this is the layer I think I lost permissions on because I was changing things earlier and it worked)
    - i. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave. (if it's possible to get the point specifically at the villa that would be amazing, I'll drop in a photo circling its location)
    - ii. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.
- Historic Designations
  - Remove the local outlines on the individual landmarks so that only the districts are outlined on this layer
- Historic_Parcels_Local
  - Switch the data type on the Date of Construction field to Text instead of Date Only (most dates in the survey are not exact)

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

I just updated the permissions so you should be able to edit now on your end. Default wise we normally don't give editing permissions so that was the systems end.

As for the address's you listed below just to clarify, those are going to be Parcels then and not pin locations for the landmark properties?

Hi Ian,

So sorry to be emailing you again, I promise I’m getting close to being done. I have two questions for you, although I think one might be a Cam question.

- 1. I have permissions for the Local layer now, but I can’t edit vertices, delete anything, or edit fields in that layer. If I could just get those permissions I think it would be easier, because I could make quick edits without having to bother you guys every time.
- 2. I just now realized that report with the National Register mapping didn’t include any of the individually listed National Register Landmarks. Would it be possible to add these parcels to the Historic_Parcels_National Layer? I’m sorry I don’t have their PINS, I just quickly pulled them off the Register. Luckily the rest of them are doubled up with other designations so these are the only two missing.
  - a. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave.
  - b. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.

Thank you again!

1. On the version of the map that I have, I don't seem to have editing privileges for the Historic_Parcels_Local layer – I'm not sure if there's a toggle for that on your end.
2. Would it be possible to change the "Location" field into two fields with the following drop downs? I think that will make it easier to convey the various overlapping areas.
  - a. Designation Location – Local
    - i. Local Historic District
    - ii. Local Landmark
    - iii. No Local Designation
  - b. Designation Location – National
    - i. North Geneva Historic District
    - ii. Central Geneva Historic District

Hi Ian,

I finally got some time to look at the map a little more closely! I have a couple questions for you.

1. I think this might be because of how some of the paper maps were drawn, but some of the lots on the map go beyond the actual bounds of the district/landmarks. For example, most of the lots on the east side of the river are not within district bounds, or the Marshall Judson Home only includes the lot that the house sits on. Would it be possible to adjust things so those lots aren't involved? I mainly ask since this will be public facing and I don't want those property owners thinking they're suddenly under HPC review. I included the map that I think hopefully makes those outlines the most clear – it's still not perfect so the main bounds to know for the local district are the west edge of river, the north edge of the railroad, the east edge of Seventh St, and the south edge of Stevens St. On the southwest corner, the lots are specifically the ones that line that southwest side of Creekside Dr. if that makes sense.
2. This one's minor but it looks there's a test landmark point labeled "East State Street" on the intersection of State and Second – there's no landmark there.
3. I might just not be seeing this, but is there a spot on the attribute tables where I can link the survey pdfs to each lot? That's definitely a big thing we want to include so people can see histories and images.

Thank you so much! Let me know if any of that doesn't make sense, especially the bounds.

Hi Ian!

If it's possible to do two layers – one with the local significance rating and one with the National Register rating, that would be optimal. We primarily look at local ratings over here, but knowing the National Register ratings can help us tell property owners about different grants and resources that might be available to them too.

Hi Ian,

The revised boundary would be best! Thanks for double checking – I'm not sure why they didn't just use the revised boundaries in all the drawings.

Hi Emily,

Quick question for you; when drawing the National Register Districts, am I drawing what is pictured below? Or shall I draw the revised boundary?

The areas outlined in orange and red are the North and Central Geneva National Register Districts, respectively. Areas outlined in blue are not included in either of the National Register Districts, but are in the survey area and local historic district.

Thank you!

It worked!! Thank you so much!

One last thing for today. When I was clicking around I noticed that the two lots I circled in the screenshot below got conjoined, probably when I had you adjust those boundaries. The eastern lot is actually Elizabeth_PI_316, and the western lot is Shady_Ave_716. Would it be possible to get those separated and then I can quickly add the Elizabeth Place info back in? Luckily it's only happening on the local layer.

Thank you again!

Ok weird! I've definitely been saving it there regularly and I hopped on yesterday to do it again just in case, but things still don't seem to be carrying over. I attached screenshots of the map on the web versus the app so you could see what I'm seeing (I turned the districts layer off so it was easier to see). It looks like specifically the Historic Parcels – National layer isn't updating. I included a screenshot of just that layer so you could see but it's basically just gray, lol.

I also noticed that the Riverbank Laboratories lots (the three down on the south) still aren't combined. If it's possible to get those combined on the national and local layers, that would be great too!

Thank you again!

Easy fix then! So what we do for this is go to the editing section and save our edits there. Since all the features are hosted individually and in one spot, making any changes will show on the web map! I saved it any way on the web browser version so now its last updated was today, but you should be good now.

Let me know if that works just to be sure!

Hi Ian,

Thanks! No worries on the time, we have plenty of details outside of the map to hash out in the meantime. I dropped in a screenshot of what my tool bar looks like. In the past when I’ve worked on maps I’ve been able to just hit “save web map,” but in this case that’s grayed out and isn’t possible to click. It might just be that you can hit it and it’ll refresh?

Hi Ian,

A few requests as David starts reviewing things! It doesn’t look like I’m able to save the web map, so anyone reviewing online can only see about half of the updated info on the map. Is it possible for you to update that public-facing web map so all of my edits are visible?
We also realized that for the landmarks which have multiple lots, it can be a little confusing to read. Would it be possible to get the spots I circled below combined into one shape each? They are in both the Historic_Parcels_Local and Historic_Parcels_National layers.

Thank you, and hope you're staying warm!

Hi Emily,

I'm happy I could help support you in this project! I've gone ahead and removed the two areas you circled below, so you should be good there. As for attaching PDFs, I can add a field labeling it "PDF" or "Document" rather. From there you would be able to copy and paste a link to it for users to click on. This should be no problem, but let IT know if the number of documents is going to be a lot. Either way it should be fine! Just let me know and ill add the fields.

Would it be just for the Historic parcels?

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much for all your help already. The map is finally getting close! I have kind of a larger question for you. The last thing I need to do is link all the documents to their parcels. Do you or Cam have any suggestions on where we might store the documents so that they can eventually be available to the public through the links on the map? It's obviously a pretty large set of docs and we're not sure how to create the least load on our system while publishing them for everyone to be able to see. We were hoping you guys might have some experience or even just ideas which might work with our existing infrastructure!

Also, I noticed that a couple of the landmark boundaries didn't get fully deleted on the Historic Designations layer. No rush, but whenever you have time, could you please delete those as well? I circled them below so you can see what I'm looking at.

Thank you!!

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much! How strange that things weren't working, but maybe the updated permissions just hadn't fully loaded up yet. For the Historic Designations, the local historic district is outlined in blue, but so are the individual landmarks (which are also marked with the stars). If the polygons outlining those individual landmarks could be deleted, so the only things outlined by the historic designations layer were the different district bounds, I think that would make all the different designation types a little bit less confusing. Hopefully that makes more sense!

Hi Ian,

Back again! I'm not totally sure, but I think when you updated some of the permissions, the system reverted other ones. I think at this point I'm just going to go by layer and bullet point the edits I've been trying to do below, so that either you can update it since you have access or try to update permissions – whichever is easiest for you.

- Historic Landmark Properties
  - a. Add those two points at the below addresses and then delete the extra point at the Pure Oil Station (this is the layer I think I lost permissions on because I was changing things earlier and it worked)
    - i. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave. (if it's possible to get the point specifically at the villa that would be amazing, I'll drop in a photo circling its location)
    - ii. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.
- Historic Designations
  - Remove the local outlines on the individual landmarks so that only the districts are outlined on this layer
- Historic_Parcels_Local
  - Switch the data type on the Date of Construction field to Text instead of Date Only (most dates in the survey are not exact)

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

I just updated the permissions so you should be able to edit now on your end. Default wise we normally don't give editing permissions so that was the systems end.

As for the address's you listed below just to clarify, those are going to be Parcels then and not pin locations for the landmark properties?

Hi Ian,

So sorry to be emailing you again, I promise I’m getting close to being done. I have two questions for you, although I think one might be a Cam question.

- 1. I have permissions for the Local layer now, but I can’t edit vertices, delete anything, or edit fields in that layer. If I could just get those permissions I think it would be easier, because I could make quick edits without having to bother you guys every time.
- 2. I just now realized that report with the National Register mapping didn’t include any of the individually listed National Register Landmarks. Would it be possible to add these parcels to the Historic_Parcels_National Layer? I’m sorry I don’t have their PINS, I just quickly pulled them off the Register. Luckily the rest of them are doubled up with other designations so these are the only two missing.
  - a. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave.
  - b. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.

Understood! I’ve made the changes on my end for the location. It’ll take a bit to change, but you should see that on Monday if anything.

As for permissions, I will need to wait for Cam to return on Monday and he can get that squared away for you!

Hi Ian,

I’m glad the trip went well! I have it open in the ArcPro app. For the locations, I mean this highlighted field – basically separating that one into two, one for local and one for national.

Rating - Local	Previous Rating - Local	Rating - NR	Previous Rating - NR	Location	PIN	SiteAddres	SiteCity	:

Hi Ian,

Hope you're doing well, and your trip was fun! I've been doing some more survey work, and have two requests for the map if they're possible.

1. On the version of the map that I have, I don't seem to have editing privileges for the Historic_Parcels_Local layer – I'm not sure if there's a toggle for that on your end.
2. Would it be possible to change the "Location" field into two fields with the following drop downs? I think that will make it easier to convey the various overlapping areas.
  - a. Designation Location – Local
    - i. Local Historic District
    - ii. Local Landmark
    - iii. No Local Designation
  - b. Designation Location – National
    - i. North Geneva Historic District
    - ii. Central Geneva Historic District
    - iii. Individual National Register Designation
    - iv. No National Register Designation

Thank you in advance!

Hi Ian,

I finally got some time to look at the map a little more closely! I have a couple questions for you.

1. I think this might be because of how some of the paper maps were drawn, but some of the lots on the map go beyond the actual bounds of the district/landmarks. For example, most of the lots on the east side of the river are not within district bounds, or the Marshall Judson Home only includes the lot that the house sits on. Would it be possible to adjust things so those lots aren't involved? I mainly ask since this will be public facing and I don't want those property owners thinking they're suddenly under HPC review. I included the map that I think hopefully makes those outlines the most clear – it's still not perfect so the main bounds to know for the local district are the west edge of river, the north edge of the railroad, the east edge of Seventh St, and the south edge of Stevens St. On the southwest corner, the lots are specifically the ones that line that southwest side of Creekside Dr. if that makes sense.
2. This one's minor but it looks there's a test landmark point labeled "East State Street" on the intersection of State and Second – there's no landmark there.
3. I might just not be seeing this, but is there a spot on the attribute tables where I can link the survey pdfs to each lot? That's definitely a big thing we want to include so people can see histories and images.

Thank you so much! Let me know if any of that doesn't make sense, especially the bounds.

Hi Ian!

If it's possible to do two layers – one with the local significance rating and one with the National Register rating, that would be optimal. We primarily look at local ratings over here, but knowing the National Register ratings can help us tell property owners about different grants and resources that might be available to them too.

Hi Ian,

A few requests as David starts reviewing things! It doesn't look like I'm able to save the web map, so anyone reviewing online can only see about half of the updated info on the map. Is it possible for you to update that public-facing web map so all of my edits are visible?

We also realized that for the landmarks which have multiple lots, it can be a little confusing to read. Would it be possible to get the spots I circled below combined into one shape each? They are in both the Historic_Parcels_Local and Historic_Parcels_National layers.

Thank you, and hope you're staying warm!

I'm happy I could help support you in this project! I've gone ahead and removed the two areas you circled below, so you should be good there. As for attaching PDFs, I can add a field labeling it "PDF" or "Document" rather. From there you would be able to copy and paste a link to it for users to click on. This should be no problem, but let IT know if the number of documents is going to be a lot. Either way it should be fine! Just let me know and I'll add the fields.

Would it be just for the Historic parcels?

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much for all your help already. The map is finally getting close! I have kind of a larger question for you. The last thing I need to do is link all the documents to their parcels. Do you or Cam have any suggestions on where we might store the documents so that they can eventually be available to the public through the links on the map? It's obviously a pretty large set of docs and we're not sure how to create the least load on our system while publishing them for everyone to be able to see. We were hoping you guys might have some experience or even just ideas which might work with our existing infrastructure!

Also, I noticed that a couple of the landmark boundaries didn't get fully deleted on the Historic Designations layer. No rush, but whenever you have time, could you please delete those as well? I circled them below so you can see what I'm looking at.

Thank you!!

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much! How strange that things weren't working, but maybe the updated permissions just hadn't fully loaded up yet. For the Historic Designations, the local historic district is outlined in blue, but so are the individual landmarks (which are also marked with the stars). If the polygons outlining those individual landmarks could be deleted, so the only things outlined by the historic designations layer were the different district bounds, I think that would make all the different designation types a little bit less confusing. Hopefully that makes more sense!

Hi Ian,

Back again! I'm not totally sure, but I think when you updated some of the permissions, the system reverted other ones. I think at this point I'm just going to go by layer and bullet point the edits I've been trying to do below, so that either you can update it since you have access or try to update permissions – whichever is easiest for you.

- Historic Landmark Properties
  - a. Add those two points at the below addresses and then delete the extra point at the Pure Oil Station (this is the layer I think I lost permissions on because I was changing things earlier and it worked)
    - i. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave. (if it's possible to get the point specifically at the villa that would be amazing, I'll drop in a photo circling its location)
    - ii. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.
- Historic Designations

Hi Emily,

I just updated the permissions so you should be able to edit now on your end. Default wise we normally don't give editing permissions so that was the systems end.

As for the address's you listed below just to clarify, those are going to be Parcels then and not pin locations for the landmark properties?

And as always never be sorry for reaching out! I'm happy to help always.

Hi Ian,

So sorry to be emailing you again, I promise I’m getting close to being done. I have two questions for you, although I think one might be a Cam question.

- 1. I have permissions for the Local layer now, but I can’t edit vertices, delete anything, or edit fields in that layer. If I could just get those permissions I think it would be easier, because I could make quick edits without having to bother you guys every time.
- 2. I just now realized that report with the National Register mapping didn’t include any of the individually listed National Register Landmarks. Would it be possible to add these parcels to the Historic_Parcels_National Layer? I’m sorry I don’t have their PINS, I just quickly pulled them off the Register. Luckily the rest of them are doubled up with other designations so these are the only two missing.
  - a. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave.
  - b. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.

Thank you again!

Hi Ian,

Hope you're doing well, and your trip was fun! I've been doing some more survey work, and have two requests for the map if they're possible.

1. On the version of the map that I have, I don't seem to have editing privileges for the Historic_Parcels_Local layer – I'm not sure if there's a toggle for that on your end.
2. Would it be possible to change the "Location" field into two fields with the following drop downs? I think that will make it easier to convey the various overlapping areas.
  - a. Designation Location – Local
    - i. Local Historic District
    - ii. Local Landmark
    - iii. No Local Designation
  - b. Designation Location – National
    - i. North Geneva Historic District
    - ii. Central Geneva Historic District
    - iii. Individual National Register Designation
    - iv. No National Register Designation

Thank you in advance!

Hi Ian,

I finally got some time to look at the map a little more closely! I have a couple questions for you.

1. I think this might be because of how some of the paper maps were drawn, but some of the lots on the map go beyond the actual bounds of the district/landmarks. For example, most of the lots on the east side of the river are not within district bounds, or the Marshall Judson Home only includes the lot that the house sits on. Would it be possible to adjust things so those lots aren't involved? I mainly ask since this will be public facing and I don't want those property owners thinking they're suddenly under HPC review. I included the map that I think hopefully makes those outlines the most clear – it's still not perfect so the main bounds to know for the local district are the west edge of river, the north edge of the railroad, the east edge of Seventh St, and the south edge of Stevens St. On the southwest corner, the lots are specifically the ones that line that southwest side of Creekside Dr. if that makes sense.
2. This one's minor but it looks there's a test landmark point labeled "East State Street" on the intersection of State and Second – there's no landmark there.
3. I might just not be seeing this, but is there a spot on the attribute tables where I can link the survey pdfs to each lot? That's definitely a big thing we want to include so people can see histories and images.

Thank you so much! Let me know if any of that doesn't make sense, especially the bounds.

Hi Ian!

If it's possible to do two layers – one with the local significance rating and one with the National Register rating, that would be optimal. We primarily look at local ratings over here, but knowing the National Register ratings can help us tell property owners about different grants and resources that might be available to them too.

Ok weird! I've definitely been saving it there regularly and I hopped on yesterday to do it again just in case, but things still don't seem to be carrying over. I attached screenshots of the map on the web versus the app so you could see what I'm seeing (I turned the districts layer off so it was easier to see). It looks like specifically the Historic Parcels – National layer isn't updating. I included a screenshot of just that layer so you could see but it's basically just gray, lol.

I also noticed that the Riverbank Laboratories lots (the three down on the south) still aren't combined. If it's possible to get those combined on the national and local layers, that would be great too!

Thank you again!

Easy fix then! So what we do for this is go to the editing section and save our edits there. Hi Ian,

A few requests as David starts reviewing things! It doesn't look like I'm able to save the web map, so anyone reviewing online can only see about half of the updated info on the map. Is it possible for you to update that public-facing web map so all of my edits are visible?

We also realized that for the landmarks which have multiple lots, it can be a little confusing to read. Would it be possible to get the spots I circled below combined into one shape each? They are in both the Historic_Parcel_Local and Historic_Parcel_National layers.

Thank you, and hope you're staying warm!

Hi Emily,

I'm happy I could help support you in this project! I've gone ahead and removed the two areas you circled below, so you should be good there. As for attaching PDFs, I can add a field labeling it "PDF" or "Document" rather. From there you would be able to copy and paste a link to it for users to click on. This should be no problem, but let IT know if the number of documents is going to be a lot. Either way it should be fine! Just let me know and ill add the fields.

Would it be just for the Historic parcels?

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much for all your help already. The map is finally getting close! I have kind of a larger question for you. The last thing I need to do is link all the documents to their parcels. Do you or Cam have any suggestions on where we might store the documents so that they can eventually be available to the public through the links on the map? It's obviously a pretty large set of docs and we're not sure how to create the least load on our system while publishing them for everyone to be able to see. We were hoping you guys might have some experience or even just ideas which might work with our existing infrastructure!

Also, I noticed that a couple of the landmark boundaries didn't get fully deleted on the Historic Designations layer. No rush, but whenever you have time, could you please delete those as well? I circled them below so you can see what I'm looking at.

Thank you!!

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much! How strange that things weren't working, but maybe the updated permissions just hadn't fully loaded up yet. For the Historic Designations, the local historic district is outlined in blue, but so are the individual landmarks (which are also marked with the stars). If the polygons outlining those individual landmarks could be deleted, so the only things outlined by the historic designations layer were the different district bounds, I think that would make all the different designation types a little bit less confusing. Hopefully that makes more sense!

Thank you again,

Hi Ian,

Back again! I'm not totally sure, but I think when you updated some of the permissions, the system reverted other ones. I think at this point I'm just going to go by layer and bullet point the edits I've been trying to do below, so that either you can update it since you have access or try to update permissions – whichever is easiest for you.

- Historic Landmark Properties
  - a. Add those two points at the below addresses and then delete the extra point at the Pure Oil Station (this is the layer I think I lost permissions on because I was changing things earlier and it worked)
    - i. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave. (if it's possible to get the point specifically at the villa that would be amazing, I'll drop in a photo circling its location)
    - ii. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.
- Historic Designations
  - Remove the local outlines on the individual landmarks so that only the districts are outlined on this layer
- Historic_Parcels_Local
  - Switch the data type on the Date of Construction field to Text instead of Date Only (most dates in the survey are not exact)

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

Hi Emily,

I just updated the permissions so you should be able to edit now on your end. Default wise we normally don't give editing permissions so that was the systems end.

As for the address's you listed below just to clarify, those are going to be Parcels then and not pin locations for the landmark properties?

And as always never be sorry for reaching out! I'm happy to help always.

Hi Ian,

So sorry to be emailing you again, I promise I’m getting close to being done. I have two questions for you, although I think one might be a Cam question.

- 1. I have permissions for the Local layer now, but I can’t edit vertices, delete anything, or edit fields in that layer. If I could just get those permissions I think it would be easier, because I could make quick edits without having to bother you guys every time.
- 2. I just now realized that report with the National Register mapping didn’t include any of the individually listed National Register Landmarks. Would it be possible to add these parcels to the Historic_Parcels_National Layer? I’m sorry I don’t have their PINS, I just quickly pulled them off the Register. Luckily the rest of them are doubled up with other designations so these are the only two missing.
  - a. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave.
  - b. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.

Thank you again!

Hi Ian,

Hope you're doing well, and your trip was fun! I've been doing some more survey work, and have two requests for the map if they're possible.

1. On the version of the map that I have, I don't seem to have editing privileges for the Historic_Parcels_Local layer – I'm not sure if there's a toggle for that on your end.
2. Would it be possible to change the "Location" field into two fields with the following drop downs? I think that will make it easier to convey the various overlapping areas.
  - a. Designation Location – Local
    - i. Local Historic District
    - ii. Local Landmark
    - iii. No Local Designation
  - b. Designation Location – National
    - i. North Geneva Historic District
    - ii. Central Geneva Historic District
    - iii. Individual National Register Designation
    - iv. No National Register Designation

Hi Ian,

I finally got some time to look at the map a little more closely! I have a couple questions for you.

1. I think this might be because of how some of the paper maps were drawn, but some of the lots on the map go beyond the actual bounds of the district/landmarks. For example, most of the lots on the east side of the river are not within district bounds, or the Marshall Judson Home only includes the lot that the house sits on. Would it be possible to adjust things so those lots aren't involved? I mainly ask since this will be public facing and I don't want those property owners thinking they're suddenly under HPC review. I included the map that I think hopefully makes those outlines the most clear – it's still not perfect so the main bounds to know for the local district are the west edge of river, the north edge of the railroad, the east edge of Seventh St, and the south edge of Stevens St. On the southwest corner, the lots are specifically the ones that line that southwest side of Creekside Dr. if that makes sense.
2. This one's minor but it looks there's a test landmark point labeled "East State Street" on the intersection of State and Second – there's no landmark there.
3. I might just not be seeing this, but is there a spot on the attribute tables where I can link the survey pdfs to each lot? That's definitely a big thing we want to include so people can see histories and images.

Thank you so much! Let me know if any of that doesn't make sense, especially the bounds.

Hi Ian!

If it's possible to do two layers – one with the local significance rating and one with the National Register rating, that would be optimal. We primarily look at local ratings over here, but knowing the National Register ratings can help us tell property owners about different grants and resources that might be available to them too.

Ian,

Emily and I would like to meet to discuss how best to create an interactive map for the historic district properties survey. We have some examples to share with you and get your feedback on.

Thanks,

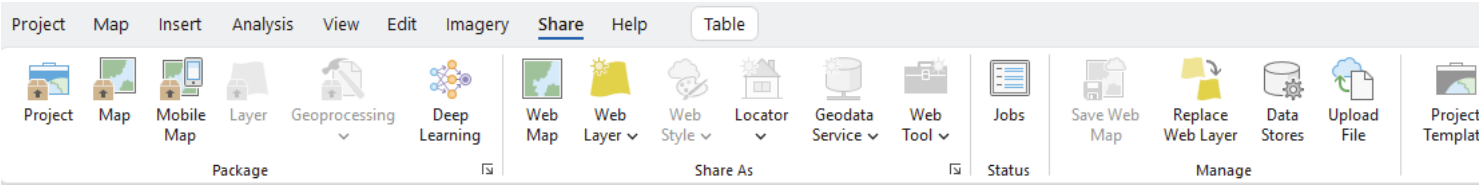

David

Hi Ian,

Thanks! No worries on the time, we have plenty of details outside of the map to hash out in the meantime. I dropped in a screenshot of what my tool bar looks like. In the past when I’ve worked on maps I’ve been able to just hit “save web map,” but in this case that’s grayed out and isn’t possible to click. It might just be that you can hit it and it’ll refresh?

Thanks,

Hi Ian,

A few requests as David starts reviewing things! It doesn’t look like I’m able to save the web map, so anyone reviewing online can only see about half of the updated info on the map. Is it possible for you to update that public-facing web map so all of my edits are visible?
We also realized that for the landmarks which have multiple lots, it can be a little confusing to read. Would it be possible to get the spots I circled below combined into one shape each? They are in both the Historic_Parcels_Local and Historic_Parcels_National layers.

Thank you, and hope you're staying warm!

Hi Ian,

Thanks so much! I think there's you already included a field in the local parcels layer for the forms, so I plan on just using that for the links. For now I'll get to work on that and keep you updated! As I finish populating and start having other people review I'm guessing there will be some details to switch around, so I'm sure you'll be hearing from me again 😊

Hi Emily,

I'm happy I could help support you in this project! I've gone ahead and removed the two areas you circled below, so you should be good there. As for attaching PDFs, I can add a field labeling it "PDF" or "Document" rather. From there you would be able to copy and paste a link to it for users to click on. This should be no problem, but let IT know if the number of documents is going to be a lot. Either way it should be fine! Just let me know and ill add the fields.

Would it be just for the Historic parcels?

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much for all your help already. The map is finally getting close! I have kind of a larger question for you. The last thing I need to do is link all the documents to their parcels. Do you or Cam have any suggestions on where we might store the documents so that they can eventually be available to the public through the links on the map? It's obviously a pretty large set of docs and we're not sure how to create the least load on our system while publishing them for everyone to be able to see. We were hoping you guys might have some experience or even just ideas which might work with our existing infrastructure!

Also, I noticed that a couple of the landmark boundaries didn't get fully deleted on the Historic Designations layer. No rush, but whenever you have time, could you please delete those as well? I circled them below so you can see what I'm looking at.

Thank you!!

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much! How strange that things weren't working, but maybe the updated permissions just hadn't fully loaded up yet. For the Historic Designations, the local historic district is outlined in blue, but so are the individual landmarks (which are also marked with the stars). If the polygons outlining those individual landmarks could be deleted, so the only things outlined by the historic designations layer were the different district bounds, I think that would make all the different designation types a little bit less confusing. Hopefully that makes more sense!

Thank you again,

Hi Ian,

Back again! I'm not totally sure, but I think when you updated some of the permissions, the system reverted other ones. I think at this point I'm just going to go by layer and bullet point the edits I've been trying to do below, so that either you can update it since you have access or try to update permissions – whichever is easiest for you.

- Historic Landmark Properties
  - a. Add those two points at the below addresses and then delete the extra point at the Pure Oil Station (this is the layer I think I lost permissions on because I was changing things earlier and it worked)
    - i. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave. (if it's possible to get the point specifically at the villa that would be amazing, I'll drop in a photo circling its location)
    - ii. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.
- Historic Designations
  - Remove the local outlines on the individual landmarks so that only the districts are outlined on this layer
- Historic_Parcels_Local
  - Switch the data type on the Date of Construction field to Text instead of Date Only (most dates in the survey are not exact)

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

Hi Emily,

I just updated the permissions so you should be able to edit now on your end. Default wise we normally don't give editing permissions so that was the systems end.

As for the address's you listed below just to clarify, those are going to be Parcels then and not pin locations for the landmark properties?

Hi Ian,

So sorry to be emailing you again, I promise I’m getting close to being done. I have two questions for you, although I think one might be a Cam question.

- 1. I have permissions for the Local layer now, but I can’t edit vertices, delete anything, or edit fields in that layer. If I could just get those permissions I think it would be easier, because I could make quick edits without having to bother you guys every time.
- 2. I just now realized that report with the National Register mapping didn’t include any of the individually listed National Register Landmarks. Would it be possible to add these parcels to the Historic_Parcels_National Layer? I’m sorry I don’t have their PINS, I just quickly pulled them off the Register. Luckily the rest of them are doubled up with other designations so these are the only two missing.
  - a. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave.
  - b. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.

Thank you again!

Hi Ian,

Hope you're doing well, and your trip was fun! I've been doing some more survey work, and have two requests for the map if they're possible.

1. On the version of the map that I have, I don't seem to have editing privileges for the Historic_Parcels_Local layer – I'm not sure if there's a toggle for that on your end.
2. Would it be possible to change the "Location" field into two fields with the following drop downs? I think that will make it easier to convey the various overlapping areas.
  - a. Designation Location – Local
    - i. Local Historic District
    - ii. Local Landmark
    - iii. No Local Designation
  - b. Designation Location – National
    - i. North Geneva Historic District
    - ii. Central Geneva Historic District
    - iii. Individual National Register Designation
    - iv. No National Register Designation

Hi Ian,

I finally got some time to look at the map a little more closely! I have a couple questions for you.

1. I think this might be because of how some of the paper maps were drawn, but some of the lots on the map go beyond the actual bounds of the district/landmarks. For example, most of the lots on the east side of the river are not within district bounds, or the Marshall Judson Home only includes the lot that the house sits on. Would it be possible to adjust things so those lots aren't involved? I mainly ask since this will be public facing and I don't want those property owners thinking they're suddenly under HPC review. I included the map that I think hopefully makes those outlines the most clear – it's still not perfect so the main bounds to know for the local district are the west edge of river, the north edge of the railroad, the east edge of Seventh St, and the south edge of Stevens St. On the southwest corner, the lots are specifically the ones that line that southwest side of Creekside Dr. if that makes sense.
2. This one's minor but it looks there's a test landmark point labeled "East State Street" on the intersection of State and Second – there's no landmark there.
3. I might just not be seeing this, but is there a spot on the attribute tables where I can link the survey pdfs to each lot? That's definitely a big thing we want to include so people can see histories and images.

Thank you so much! Let me know if any of that doesn't make sense, especially the bounds.

Hi Emily,

I have attached here is the ArcPro project you can use to make edits and changes to the new Geneva Historic Map! Provided of course it looks correct to you. If you need help setting up, please let me know. You should just need to open it and save it where you find easy to access.

I also have a link below to the viewer that will be public facing:

Hi Ian!

If it's possible to do two layers – one with the local significance rating and one with the National Register rating, that would be optimal. We primarily look at local ratings over here, but knowing the National Register ratings can help us tell property owners about different grants and resources that might be available to them too.

Thank you!

Hi Emily,

Quick question for you; when drawing the National Register Districts, am I drawing what is pictured below? Or shall I draw the revised boundary?

The areas outlined in orange and red are the North and Central Geneva National Register Districts, respectively. Areas outlined in blue are not included in either of the National Register Districts, but are in the survey area and local historic district.

Thank you!

Easy fix then! So what we do for this is go to the editing section and save our edits there. Since all the features are hosted individually and in one spot, making any changes will show on the web map! I saved it any way on the web browser version so now its last updated was today, but you should be good now.

Thanks! No worries on the time, we have plenty of details outside of the map to hash out in the meantime. I dropped in a screenshot of what my tool bar looks like. In the past when I've worked on maps I've been able to just hit "save web map," but in this case that's grayed out and isn't possible to click. It might just be that you can hit it and it'll refresh?

Hi Ian,

A few requests as David starts reviewing things! It doesn't look like I'm able to save the web map, so anyone reviewing online can only see about half of the updated info on the map. Is it possible for you to update that public-facing web map so all of my edits are visible?

We also realized that for the landmarks which have multiple lots, it can be a little confusing to read. Would it be possible to get the spots I circled below combined into one shape each? They are in both the Historic_Parcels_Local and Historic_Parcels_National layers.

Thank you, and hope you're staying warm!

Thanks so much! I think there's you already included a field in the local parcels layer for the forms, so I plan on just using that for the links. For now I'll get to work on that and keep you updated! As I finish populating and start having other people review I'm guessing there will be some details to switch around, so I'm sure you'll be hearing from me again 😊

Hi Emily,

I'm happy I could help support you in this project! I've gone ahead and removed the two areas you circled below, so you should be good there. As for attaching PDFs, I can add a field labeling it "PDF" or "Document" rather. From there you would be able to copy and paste a link to it for users to click on. This should be no problem, but let IT know if the number of documents is going to be a lot. Either way it should be fine! Just let me know and I'll add the fields.

Would it be just for the Historic parcels?

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much for all your help already. The map is finally getting close! I have kind of a larger question for you. The last thing I need to do is link all the documents to their parcels. Do you or Cam have any suggestions on where we might store the documents so that they can eventually be available to the public through the links on the map? It's obviously a pretty large set of docs and we're not sure how to create the least load on our system while publishing them for everyone to be able to see. We were hoping you guys might have some experience or even just ideas which might work with our existing infrastructure!

Also, I noticed that a couple of the landmark boundaries didn't get fully deleted on the Historic Designations layer. No rush, but whenever you have time, could you please delete those as well? I circled them below so you can see what I'm looking at.

Thank you!!

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much! How strange that things weren't working, but maybe the updated permissions just hadn't fully loaded up yet. For the Historic Designations, the local historic district is outlined in blue, but so are the individual landmarks (which are also marked with the stars). If the polygons outlining those individual landmarks could be deleted, so the only things outlined by the historic designations layer were the different district bounds, I think that would make all the different designation types a little bit less confusing. Hopefully that makes more sense!

Hi Ian,

Back again! I'm not totally sure, but I think when you updated some of the permissions, the system reverted other ones. I think at this point I'm just going to go by layer and bullet point the edits I've been trying to do below, so that either you can update it since you have access or try to update permissions – whichever is easiest for you.

- Historic Landmark Properties
  - a. Add those two points at the below addresses and then delete the extra point at the Pure Oil Station (this is the layer I think I lost permissions on because I was changing things earlier and it worked)
    - i. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave. (if it's possible to get the point specifically at the villa that would be amazing, I'll drop in a photo circling its location)
    - ii. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.
- Historic Designations
  - Remove the local outlines on the individual landmarks so that only the districts are outlined on this layer
- Historic_Parcels_Local
  - Switch the data type on the Date of Construction field to Text instead of Date Only (most dates in the survey are not exact)

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

Hi Emily,

I just updated the permissions so you should be able to edit now on your end. Default wise we normally don't give editing permissions so that was the systems end.

As for the address's you listed below just to clarify, those are going to be Parcels then and not pin locations for the landmark properties?

Hi Ian,

So sorry to be emailing you again, I promise I’m getting close to being done. I have two questions for you, although I think one might be a Cam question.

- 1. I have permissions for the Local layer now, but I can’t edit vertices, delete anything, or edit fields in that layer. If I could just get those permissions I think it would be easier, because I could make quick edits without having to bother you guys every time.
- 2. I just now realized that report with the National Register mapping didn’t include any of the individually listed National Register Landmarks. Would it be possible to add these parcels to the Historic_Parcels_National Layer? I’m sorry I don’t have their PINS, I just quickly pulled them off the Register. Luckily the rest of them are doubled up with other designations so these are the only two missing.
  - a. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave.
  - b. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.

Thank you again!

Understood! I’ve made the changes on my end for the location. It’ll take a bit to change, but you should see that on Monday if anything.

As for permissions, I will need to wait for Cam to return on Monday and he can get that squared away for you!

Hi Ian,

I’m glad the trip went well! I have it open in the ArcPro app. For the locations, I mean this highlighted field – basically separating that one into two, one for local and one for national.

Rating - Local	Previous Rating - Local	Rating - NR	Previous Rating - NR	Location	PIN	SiteAddres	SiteCity	:

For your first request, is this from ArcPro or from AGOL? As for the designated locations, is that something you would like me to replace for both Local and National?

Hi Ian,

Hope you're doing well, and your trip was fun! I've been doing some more survey work, and have two requests for the map if they're possible.

1. On the version of the map that I have, I don't seem to have editing privileges for the Historic_Parcels_Local layer – I'm not sure if there's a toggle for that on your end.
2. Would it be possible to change the "Location" field into two fields with the following drop downs? I think that will make it easier to convey the various overlapping areas.
  - a. Designation Location – Local
    - i. Local Historic District
    - ii. Local Landmark
    - iii. No Local Designation
  - b. Designation Location – National
    - i. North Geneva Historic District
    - ii. Central Geneva Historic District
    - iii. Individual National Register Designation
    - iv. No National Register Designation

Thank you in advance!

Hi Ian,

I finally got some time to look at the map a little more closely! I have a couple questions for you.

1. I think this might be because of how some of the paper maps were drawn, but some of the lots on the map go beyond the actual bounds of the district/landmarks. For example, most of the lots on the east side of the river are not within district bounds, or the Marshall Judson Home only includes the lot that the house sits on. Would it be possible to adjust things so those lots aren't involved? I mainly ask since this will be public facing and I don't want those property owners thinking they're suddenly under HPC review. I included the map that I think hopefully makes those outlines the most clear – it's still not perfect so the main bounds to know for the local district are the west edge of river, the north edge of the railroad, the east edge of Seventh St, and the south edge of Stevens St. On the southwest corner, the lots are specifically the ones that line that southwest side of Creekside Dr. if that makes sense.
2. This one's minor but it looks there's a test landmark point labeled "East State Street" on the intersection of State and Second – there's no landmark there.
3. I might just not be seeing this, but is there a spot on the attribute tables where I can link the survey pdfs to each lot? That's definitely a big thing we want to include so people can see histories and images.

Thank you so much! Let me know if any of that doesn't make sense, especially the bounds.

Hi Ian!

If it's possible to do two layers – one with the local significance rating and one with the National Register rating, that would be optimal. We primarily look at local ratings over here, but knowing the National Register ratings can help us tell property owners about different grants and resources that might be available to them too.

Ok weird! I've definitely been saving it there regularly and I hopped on yesterday to do it again just in case, but things still don't seem to be carrying over. I attached screenshots of the map on the web versus the app so you could see what I'm seeing (I turned the districts layer off so it was easier to see). It looks like specifically the Historic Parcels – National layer isn't updating. I included a screenshot of just that layer so you could see but it's basically just gray, lol.

I also noticed that the Riverbank Laboratories lots (the three down on the south) still aren't combined. If it's possible to get those combined on the national and local layers, that would be great too!

Thank you again!

Easy fix then! So what we do for this is go to the editing section and save our edits there. Since all the features are hosted individually and in one spot, making any changes will show on the web map! A few requests as David starts reviewing things! It doesn't look like I'm able to save the web map, so anyone reviewing online can only see about half of the updated info on the map. Is it possible for you to update that public-facing web map so all of my edits are visible?

We also realized that for the landmarks which have multiple lots, it can be a little confusing to read. Would it be possible to get the spots I circled below combined into one shape each? They are in both the Historic_Parcels_Local and Historic_Parcels_National layers.

Thank you, and hope you're staying warm!

Hi Emily,

I'm happy I could help support you in this project! I've gone ahead and removed the two areas you circled below, so you should be good there. As for attaching PDFs, I can add a field labeling it "PDF" or "Document" rather. From there you would be able to copy and paste a link to it for users to click on. This should be no problem, but let IT know if the number of documents is going to be a lot. Either way it should be fine! Just let me know and I'll add the fields.

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much for all your help already. The map is finally getting close! I have kind of a larger question for you. The last thing I need to do is link all the documents to their parcels. Do you or Cam have any suggestions on where we might store the documents so that they can eventually be available to the public through the links on the map? It's obviously a pretty large set of docs and we're not sure how to create the least load on our system while publishing them for everyone to be able to see. We were hoping you guys might have some experience or even just ideas which might work with our existing infrastructure!

Also, I noticed that a couple of the landmark boundaries didn't get fully deleted on the Historic Designations layer. No rush, but whenever you have time, could you please delete those as well? I circled them below so you can see what I'm looking at.

Thank you!!

For the Historic Designations, the local historic district is outlined in blue, but so are the individual landmarks (which are also marked with the stars). If the polygons outlining those individual landmarks could be deleted, so the only things outlined by the historic designations layer were the different district bounds, I think that would make all the different designation types a little bit less confusing. Hopefully that makes more sense!

Thank you again,

Hi Emily,

Permissions are still set to how they were before, but I went ahead and refreshed them so they should be good on your end. I've updated everything besides the Historic Designations request; do you mind clarifying more on what outlines you're speaking of?

Thank you!

Hi Ian,

Back again! I'm not totally sure, but I think when you updated some of the permissions, the system reverted other ones. I think at this point I'm just going to go by layer and bullet point the edits I've been trying to do below, so that either you can update it since you have access or try to update permissions – whichever is easiest for you.

- Historic Landmark Properties
  - a. Add those two points at the below addresses and then delete the extra point at the Pure Oil Station (this is the layer I think I lost permissions on because I was changing things earlier and it worked)
    - i. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave. (if it's possible to get the point specifically at the villa that would be amazing, I'll drop in a photo circling its location)
    - ii. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.
- Historic Designations
  - Remove the local outlines on the individual landmarks so that only the districts are outlined on this layer
- Historic_Parcels_Local
  - Switch the data type on the Date of Construction field to Text instead of Date Only (most dates in the survey are not exact)

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

Hi Emily,

I just updated the permissions so you should be able to edit now on your end. Default wise we normally don't give editing permissions so that was the systems end.

As for the address's you listed below just to clarify, those are going to be Parcels then and not pin locations for the landmark properties?

And as always never be sorry for reaching out! I'm happy to help always.

Hi Ian,

So sorry to be emailing you again, I promise I’m getting close to being done. I have two questions for you, although I think one might be a Cam question.

- 1. I have permissions for the Local layer now, but I can’t edit vertices, delete anything, or edit fields in that layer. If I could just get those permissions I think it would be easier, because I could make quick edits without having to bother you guys every time.
- 2. I just now realized that report with the National Register mapping didn’t include any of the individually listed National Register Landmarks. Would it be possible to add these parcels to the Historic_Parcels_National Layer? I’m sorry I don’t have their PINS, I just quickly pulled them off the Register. Luckily the rest of them are doubled up with other designations so these are the only two missing.
  - a. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave.
  - b. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.

Thank you again!

Hi Ian,

Hope you're doing well, and your trip was fun! I've been doing some more survey work, and have two requests for the map if they're possible.

1. On the version of the map that I have, I don't seem to have editing privileges for the Historic_Parcels_Local layer – I'm not sure if there's a toggle for that on your end.
2. Would it be possible to change the "Location" field into two fields with the following drop downs? I think that will make it easier to convey the various overlapping areas.
  - a. Designation Location – Local
    - i. Local Historic District
    - ii. Local Landmark
    - iii. No Local Designation
  - b. Designation Location – National
    - i. North Geneva Historic District
    - ii. Central Geneva Historic District
    - iii. Individual National Register Designation
    - iv. No National Register Designation

Thank you in advance!

Hi Ian,

I finally got some time to look at the map a little more closely! I have a couple questions for you.

1. I think this might be because of how some of the paper maps were drawn, but some of the lots on the map go beyond the actual bounds of the district/landmarks. For example, most of the lots on the east side of the river are not within district bounds, or the Marshall Judson Home only includes the lot that the house sits on. Would it be possible to adjust things so those lots aren't involved? I mainly ask since this will be public facing and I don't want those property owners thinking they're suddenly under HPC review. I included the map that I think hopefully makes those outlines the most clear – it's still not perfect so the main bounds to know for the local district are the west edge of river, the north edge of the railroad, the east edge of Seventh St, and the south edge of Stevens St. On the southwest corner, the lots are specifically the ones that line that southwest side of Creekside Dr. if that makes sense.
2. This one's minor but it looks there's a test landmark point labeled "East State Street" on the intersection of State and Second – there's no landmark there.
3. I might just not be seeing this, but is there a spot on the attribute tables where I can link the survey pdfs to each lot? That's definitely a big thing we want to include so people can see histories and images.

Thank you so much! Let me know if any of that doesn't make sense, especially the bounds.

Hi Ian!

If it's possible to do two layers – one with the local significance rating and one with the National Register rating, that would be optimal. We primarily look at local ratings over here, but knowing the National Register ratings can help us tell property owners about different grants and resources that might be available to them too.

One last thing for today. When I was clicking around I noticed that the two lots I circled in the screenshot below got conjoined, probably when I had you adjust those boundaries. The eastern lot is actually Elizabeth_PI_316, and the western lot is Shady_Ave_716. Would it be possible to get those separated and then I can quickly add the Elizabeth Place info back in? Luckily it's only happening on the local layer.

Ok weird! I've definitely been saving it there regularly and I hopped on yesterday to do it again just in case, but things still don't seem to be carrying over. I attached screenshots of the map on the web versus the app so you could see what I'm seeing (I turned the districts layer off so it was easier to see). It looks like specifically the Historic Parcels – National layer isn't updating. I included a screenshot of just that layer so you could see but it's basically just gray, lol.

I also noticed that the Riverbank Laboratories lots (the three down on the south) still aren't combined. If it's possible to get those combined on the national and local layers, that would be great too!

Thank you again!

Easy fix then! So what we do for this is go to the editing section and save our edits there. Since all the features are hosted individually and in one spot, making any changes will show on the web map! I saved it any way on the web browser version so now its last updated was today, but you should be good now.

Let me know if that works just to be sure!

Hi Ian,

Thanks! No worries on the time, we have plenty of details outside of the map to hash out in the meantime. I dropped in a screenshot of what my tool bar looks like. In the past when I've worked on maps I've been able to just hit "save web map," but in this case that's grayed out and isn't possible to click. It might just be that you can hit it and it'll refresh?

Thanks,

Hi Ian,

A few requests as David starts reviewing things! It doesn't look like I'm able to save the web map, so anyone reviewing online can only see about half of the updated info on the map. Is it possible for you to update that public-facing web map so all of my edits are visible?

We also realized that for the landmarks which have multiple lots, it can be a little confusing to read. Would it be possible to get the spots I circled below combined into one shape each? They are in both the Historic_Parcel_Local and Historic_Parcel_National layers.

Thank you, and hope you're staying warm!

Hi Ian,

Thanks so much! I think there's you already included a field in the local parcels layer for the forms, so I plan on just using that for the links. For now I'll get to work on that and keep you updated! As I finish populating and start having other people review I'm guessing there will be some details to switch around, so I'm sure you'll be hearing from me again 😊

Hi Emily,

I'm happy I could help support you in this project! I've gone ahead and removed the two areas you circled below, so you should be good there. As for attaching PDFs, I can add a field labeling it "PDF" or "Document" rather. From there you would be able to copy and paste a link to it for users to click on. This should be no problem, but let IT know if the number of documents is going to be a lot. Either way it should be fine! Just let me know and I'll add the fields.

Would it be just for the Historic parcels?

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much for all your help already. The map is finally getting close! I have kind of a larger question for you. The last thing I need to do is link all the documents to their parcels. Do you or Cam have any suggestions on where we might store the documents so that they can eventually be available to the public through the links on the map? It's obviously a pretty large set of docs and we're not sure how to create the least load on our system while publishing them for everyone to be able to see. We were hoping you guys might have some experience or even just ideas which might work with our existing infrastructure!

Also, I noticed that a couple of the landmark boundaries didn't get fully deleted on the Historic Designations layer. No rush, but whenever you have time, could you please delete those as well? I circled them below so you can see what I'm looking at.

Thank you!!

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much! How strange that things weren't working, but maybe the updated permissions just hadn't fully loaded up yet. For the Historic Designations, the local historic district is outlined in blue, but so are the individual landmarks (which are also marked with the stars). If the polygons outlining those individual landmarks could be deleted, so the only things outlined by the historic designations layer were the different district bounds, I think that would make all the different designation types a little bit less confusing. Hopefully that makes more sense!

Hi Ian,

Back again! I'm not totally sure, but I think when you updated some of the permissions, the system reverted other ones. I think at this point I'm just going to go by layer and bullet point the edits I've been trying to do below, so that either you can update it since you have access or try to update permissions – whichever is easiest for you.

- Historic Landmark Properties
  - a. Add those two points at the below addresses and then delete the extra point at the Pure Oil Station (this is the layer I think I lost permissions on because I was changing things earlier and it worked)
    - i. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave. (if it's possible to get the point specifically at the villa that would be amazing, I'll drop in a photo circling its location)
    - ii. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.
- Historic Designations
  - Remove the local outlines on the individual landmarks so that only the districts are outlined on this layer
- Historic_Parcels_Local
  - Switch the data type on the Date of Construction field to Text instead of Date Only (most dates in the survey are not exact)

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

Hi Emily,

I just updated the permissions so you should be able to edit now on your end. Default wise we normally don't give editing permissions so that was the systems end.

As for the address's you listed below just to clarify, those are going to be Parcels then and not pin locations for the landmark properties?

Hi Ian,

So sorry to be emailing you again, I promise I’m getting close to being done. I have two questions for you, although I think one might be a Cam question.

- 1. I have permissions for the Local layer now, but I can’t edit vertices, delete anything, or edit fields in that layer. If I could just get those permissions I think it would be easier, because I could make quick edits without having to bother you guys every time.
- 2. I just now realized that report with the National Register mapping didn’t include any of the individually listed National Register Landmarks. Would it be possible to add these parcels to the Historic_Parcels_National Layer? I’m sorry I don’t have their PINS, I just quickly pulled them off the Register. Luckily the rest of them are doubled up with other designations so these are the only two missing.
  - a. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave.
  - b. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.

Thank you again!

Hope you're doing well, and your trip was fun! I've been doing some more survey work, and have two requests for the map if they're possible.

1. On the version of the map that I have, I don't seem to have editing privileges for the Historic_Parcels_Local layer – I'm not sure if there's a toggle for that on your end.
2. Would it be possible to change the "Location" field into two fields with the following drop downs? I think that will make it easier to convey the various overlapping areas.
  - a. Designation Location – Local
    - i. Local Historic District
    - ii. Local Landmark
    - iii. No Local Designation
  - b. Designation Location – National
    - i. North Geneva Historic District
    - ii. Central Geneva Historic District
    - iii. Individual National Register Designation
    - iv. No National Register Designation

Hi Ian,

I finally got some time to look at the map a little more closely! I have a couple questions for you.

1. I think this might be because of how some of the paper maps were drawn, but some of the lots on the map go beyond the actual bounds of the district/landmarks. For example, most of the lots on the east side of the river are not within district bounds, or the Marshall Judson Home only includes the lot that the house sits on. Would it be possible to adjust things so those lots aren't involved? I mainly ask since this will be public facing and I don't want those property owners thinking they're suddenly under HPC review. I included the map that I think hopefully makes those outlines the most clear – it's still not perfect so the main bounds to know for the local district are the west edge of river, the north edge of the railroad, the east edge of Seventh St, and the south edge of Stevens St. On the southwest corner, the lots are specifically the ones that line that southwest side of Creekside Dr. if that makes sense.
2. This one's minor but it looks there's a test landmark point labeled "East State Street" on the intersection of State and Second – there's no landmark there.
3. I might just not be seeing this, but is there a spot on the attribute tables where I can link the survey pdfs to each lot? That's definitely a big thing we want to include so people can see histories and images.

Thank you so much! Let me know if any of that doesn't make sense, especially the bounds.

Hi Ian!

If it's possible to do two layers – one with the local significance rating and one with the National Register rating, that would be optimal. We primarily look at local ratings over here, but knowing the National Register ratings can help us tell property owners about different grants and resources that might be available to them too.

Thank you!

Hi Emily,

Quick question for you; when drawing the National Register Districts, am I drawing what is pictured below? Or shall I draw the revised boundary?

The areas outlined in orange and red are the North and Central Geneva National Register Districts, respectively. Areas outlined in blue are not included in either of the National Register Districts, but are in the survey area and local historic district.

Thank you!

Hi Ian,

A few requests as David starts reviewing things! It doesn't look like I'm able to save the web map, so anyone reviewing online can only see about half of the updated info on the map. Is it possible for you to update that public-facing web map so all of my edits are visible?

We also realized that for the landmarks which have multiple lots, it can be a little confusing to read. Would it be possible to get the spots I circled below combined into one shape each? They are in both the Historic_Parcels_Local and Historic_Parcels_National layers.

Thank you, and hope you're staying warm!

Hi Emily,

I'm happy I could help support you in this project! I've gone ahead and removed the two areas you circled below, so you should be good there. As for attaching PDFs, I can add a field labeling it "PDF" or "Document" rather. From there you would be able to copy and paste a link to it for users to click on. This should be no problem, but let IT know if the number of documents is going to be a lot. Either way it should be fine! Just let me know and ill add the fields.

Would it be just for the Historic parcels?

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much for all your help already. The map is finally getting close! I have kind of a larger question for you. The last thing I need to do is link all the documents to their parcels. Do you or Cam have any suggestions on where we might store the documents so that they can eventually be available to the public through the links on the map? It's obviously a pretty large set of docs and we're not sure how to create the least load on our system while publishing them for everyone to be able to see. We were hoping you guys might have some experience or even just ideas which might work with our existing infrastructure!

Also, I noticed that a couple of the landmark boundaries didn't get fully deleted on the Historic Designations layer. No rush, but whenever you have time, could you please delete those as well? I circled them below so you can see what I'm looking at.

Thank you!!

Hi Ian,

Thank you so much! How strange that things weren't working, but maybe the updated permissions just hadn't fully loaded up yet. For the Historic Designations, the local historic district is outlined in blue, but so are the individual landmarks (which are also marked with the stars). If the polygons outlining those individual landmarks could be deleted, so the only things outlined by the historic designations layer were the different district bounds, I think that would make all the different designation types a little bit less confusing. Hopefully that makes more sense!

Hi Ian,

Back again! I'm not totally sure, but I think when you updated some of the permissions, the system reverted other ones. I think at this point I'm just going to go by layer and bullet point the edits I've been trying to do below, so that either you can update it since you have access or try to update permissions – whichever is easiest for you.

- Historic Landmark Properties
  - a. Add those two points at the below addresses and then delete the extra point at the Pure Oil Station (this is the layer I think I lost permissions on because I was changing things earlier and it worked)
    - i. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave. (if it's possible to get the point specifically at the villa that would be amazing, I'll drop in a photo circling its location)
    - ii. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.
- Historic Designations
  - Remove the local outlines on the individual landmarks so that only the districts are outlined on this layer
- Historic_Parcels_Local
  - Switch the data type on the Date of Construction field to Text instead of Date Only (most dates in the survey are not exact)

Thank you, and have a good weekend!

Hi Emily,

I just updated the permissions so you should be able to edit now on your end. Default wise we normally don't give editing permissions so that was the systems end.

As for the address's you listed below just to clarify, those are going to be Parcels then and not pin locations for the landmark properties?

Hi Ian,

So sorry to be emailing you again, I promise I’m getting close to being done. I have two questions for you, although I think one might be a Cam question.

- 1. I have permissions for the Local layer now, but I can’t edit vertices, delete anything, or edit fields in that layer. If I could just get those permissions I think it would be easier, because I could make quick edits without having to bother you guys every time.
- 2. I just now realized that report with the National Register mapping didn’t include any of the individually listed National Register Landmarks. Would it be possible to add these parcels to the Historic_Parcels_National Layer? I’m sorry I don’t have their PINS, I just quickly pulled them off the Register. Luckily the rest of them are doubled up with other designations so these are the only two missing.
  - a. Fabyan Villa – 1511 S. Batavia Ave.
  - b. Geneva Country Day School – 1250 South St.

Thank you again!

Hi Ian,

Hope you're doing well, and your trip was fun! I've been doing some more survey work, and have two requests for the map if they're possible.

1. On the version of the map that I have, I don't seem to have editing privileges for the Historic_Parcels_Local layer – I'm not sure if there's a toggle for that on your end.
2. Would it be possible to change the "Location" field into two fields with the following drop downs? I think that will make it easier to convey the various overlapping areas.
  - a. Designation Location – Local
    - i. Local Historic District
    - ii. Local Landmark
    - iii. No Local Designation
  - b. Designation Location – National
    - i. North Geneva Historic District
    - ii. Central Geneva Historic District
    - iii. Individual National Register Designation
    - iv. No National Register Designation

Yes, part of that lot was de-designated so now it's only that one specific section! Thank you for double checking, and for adjusting those other bounds and things.

Feel free to check in on anything else,

Hi Ian,

I finally got some time to look at the map a little more closely! I have a couple questions for you.

1. I think this might be because of how some of the paper maps were drawn, but some of the lots on the map go beyond the actual bounds of the district/landmarks. For example, most of the lots on the east side of the river are not within district bounds, or the Marshall Judson Home only includes the lot that the house sits on. Would it be possible to adjust things so those lots aren't involved? I mainly ask since this will be public facing and I don't want those property owners thinking they're suddenly under HPC review. I included the map that I think hopefully makes those outlines the most clear – it's still not perfect so the main bounds to know for the local district are the west edge of river, the north edge of the railroad, the east edge of Seventh St, and the south edge of Stevens St. On the southwest corner, the lots are specifically the ones that line that southwest side of Creekside Dr. if that makes sense.
2. This one's minor but it looks there's a test landmark point labeled "East State Street" on the intersection of State and Second – there's no landmark there.
3. I might just not be seeing this, but is there a spot on the attribute tables where I can link the survey pdfs to each lot? That's definitely a big thing we want to include so people can see histories and images.

Thank you so much! Let me know if any of that doesn't make sense, especially the bounds.

Hi Ian!

If it's possible to do two layers – one with the local significance rating and one with the National Register rating, that would be optimal. We primarily look at local ratings over here, but knowing the National Register ratings can help us tell property owners about different grants and resources that might be available to them too.

Thank you!

Dear FOIA Officer:

Please consider this a freedom of information request for the following records:

All emails sent or received by Dean Kilburg, Mark Reinecke, Anaïs Bowring, William Malecki, Richard Marks, Brad Kosirog, Larry Furnish, Martha Paschke, Amy Mayer, Jeff Palmquist and Kevin Burns between Dec. 1, 2025 and Jan. 16, 2026, that include any of the following search terms in the subject, body or attachments of the email (please do individual searches for these keywords if possible):

"Shodeen"

"Dave Patzelt"

"HPC"

If this search would yield a burdensome amount of results, please contact me, as I am willing to narrow the scope of my request.

Please note: I know of no exemption that would allow these records to not be released, absent pinpoint redactions for private information such as Social Security Numbers. If your agency believes any parts of any records are exempt from disclosure, please provide an explanation to justify the redaction or withholding, and then provide the rest of the records. Please note that statute does not allow your agency to withhold documents in their entirety if only parts of the records may be exempt.

I'm requesting the records in electronic format, if they can be provided in that format. Otherwise, please provide the records in whatever format they are kept.

I am a member of the news media doing research in the public interest and request fees be waived. Please call me if you believe this request will cost more than $50 to fulfill.

City Council Denies Appeal Of 4 E. State St. Demolition Request

_____ | The City of Geneva Development Projects Map has been updated with details about the Jan. 12 special City Council meeting regarding the appeal of the 4 E. State St. Historic Landmark Demolition request.

A reversal or modification of the Historic Preservation Commission's (HPC) determination requires not less than two-thirds of the alderpersons holding office (seven votes). At the City Council meeting, six alderpersons voted in favor of overturning the HPC, and four voted to uphold the HPC's decision.

As such, the appeal failed, and the demolition request was denied.

Hi Heather,

Please see only the first page of this document. I made the font red for all of the “Open” hearing deposits that can be closed out and billed out. The remaining projects are as follows:

- Prairie Grove – There are two errors: 1) I accidentally coded hearing deposit invoice # 640444 as a stormwater invoice for this same project. Please let me know if I need to do anything to remedy this mistake. 2) The hearing deposit excel sheet shows a WBK invoice # 640079 as in the hearing deposit section – this is actually a Kane County Recorder invoice and is correctly located in the hearing deposit section. (There is nothing to fix here in NewWorld, only a new naming in the hearing excel sheet.)
- 601 N 1st St Porch Variation – I mistakenly coded invoice #667143 in batch #2026-00000508 as applying to the Bullock Campus project. This invoice should be applied to the 601 N 1st Porch Variation project. After it is applied to this project, the project can be closed and billed out.
- Bullock Campus – 1) I need to somehow move the invoice #667143 from Bullock to the 601 N 1st St Porch Variation; 2) I believe we are waiting on an IGA with Kane County to be recorded before we can close this out
- Historic Review PP 2025-011 4 E State Street Demo – I want to wait until the City Council decision to decide whether we need to close this out or not.

Please let me know how I can help to reattribute invoices #640444 and #667143.

Going forward, I will generate a Project Transaction Report monthly the Friday before our 2nd-of-the-month Development Staff meeting (a Tuesday). This will usually be the 3rd Friday of the month, but sometimes the 4th (depending on the date of the Development Staff meeting). I will review which hearing deposits need to remain open and which can be closed and billed out, and I will review with Brian Davids at the Development Staff meeting which planning stormwater deposits can be closed out.

Thank you,

Jeff,

In late December, i attended the HPC meeting where the members carefully reviewed the SHodeen request to allow demolition of the blacksmith shop. There was much public commentary, including a strong statement from Patrice Berteau urging demolition. As you probably know, she also orchestrated a letter campaign among her neighbors and political allies; most of the letters followed a template and were identical.

I was quite disappointed that you ended up taking the same position she did, allowing demolition of the structure.

I thought Billy Malecki and Anais Bowring explained their vote with clarity - and conscience - supporting the unanimous decision of the HPC. This should not be taken lightly; the HPC rebutted Shodeen's 3rd demolition request, with NO NEW DATA or proposal. Nothing had changed ..... until Amy Mayer offered her misguided amendment based on NEW proposals from Shodeen, not on the record of deliberations to date. YES, the blacksmith shop is an eyesore, partly due to SHodeen's total neglect of the structure .

I simply cannot believe that 6 aldermen ignored the careful homework of the HPC, including public hearings where a variety of opinions were shared, many opposed to demolition.

We have heard that Shodeen can, and probably will, appeal again in 12 months. And what has happened to those fines? A fine mess.

Hello,

I am contacting you to encourage you to say no to the most recent petition from the Shodeen group to demolish the Blacksmith Shop on the site of the previous Mill Race Inn property. The Historical Preservation Committee has denied this request on multiple occasions. I implore to honor their sound reasoning for this and uphold their decision. In a recent HPC meeting, the following was stated:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

Shodeen shot down in showdown: Judge affirms Geneva ruling on 1840s blac...

Kane County Circuit Judge Elizabeth Flood ruled this week that Geneva developer Shodeen Group cannot evade the c...

There are many reasons to uphold the HPC decision. In support of them, I provide the following rationale:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine, even though there is a court order to do so. I am confused as to why a public entity is allowed to disregard the law and why the local governing body allows this. Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure. They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument, that also fell flat as why weren't other vacant buildings (Campana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr. It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. Now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. The Shodeen/Patzelt group has not pursued any available funding from historical societies. There are grants available from a number of resources that have been mentioned to this group at a previous HPC meeting by representatives from the state historical entities. These suggestions and resources have been blatantly ignored.
6. Why destroy a historical building and site if we have no idea what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval? It is on a floodplain, would require allowances for ingress and egress for two state highways, and no environmental impact study has been completed. Until these items are completed, why is a "possible construction project" even being considered?

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner. Geneva claims to be a historical community. It is time to keep history from being destroyed.

Respectfully,
Erica Eysturid

Hello:

This is my plea to you to uphold the good work of Geneva's Historical Preservation Commission (HPC) in its, and ideally your, denial of the request to demolish the 1840s Blacksmith shop.

I quote:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

The reasons to say no, I would offer, are:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine (why not? There was a court order. What happened here? Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure.). They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument (it's an eyes-sore, don't you know?) that also fell flat in that why weren't other vacant buildings (Capana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. The idea of "moving" of a historic structure sounds good, but it clearly robs the site and the building of their historic meaning. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr, but does anyone know or care? It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. And now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. Why do this until we know for sure what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval. It is on a floodplain, for example.

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner.

Dear Alderpersons,
The current demolition request for 4 E. State is going to be decided on January 12th, and I wanted to share my thoughts on the matter with you.

I realize you all are aware of the previous votes on this matter, as well as the legal decisions that have been issued in the last year or so. All of these votes/decisions were to maintain and protect the landmark status of the blacksmith structure.

While I agree with the past decisions, I also believe that the current petition presents a threat to the City's landmark ordinance.

1. The landmark status was granted without any time limit for redevelopment. The City has worked with the owner to determine a potential redevelopment project, and viable options were identified.
2. City Code 10-6-10 Part 13 C states that buildings and structures designated as a historic landmark shall be maintained and protected from demolition that results from neglect or undeterred deterioration of the exterior features or structural elements. This Duty to Maintain specifically requires the owner of record to repair any deficient element contributing to material deterioration of the structure. I see the refusal of the owner to properly protect the structure from the elements as evidence of this breach. The courts agreed.
3. To my knowledge, the owner has not presented a redevelopment plan since the conclusion of the charette project. A presentation of a plan would allow for the City and the owner to work through some of the potential obstacles to moving forward. One key point to work through would be the extent that TIF financing is available for this redevelopment. A key provision to our landmark ordinance is that demolition is considered only when all other redevelopment options have been exhausted. (CC 10-6-10 4) How can all options be considered exhausted when none have been presented? It seems like a decision to allow demolition at this point in time is rewarding the owner for not maintaining the structure, as well as for not presenting any type of redevelopment plan. Would the City allow this failure to maintain our historic, protected, structures in the Historic District to occur for years?
4. The landmark owner stated at the last HPC meeting that no redevelopment plan will be presented as long as the blacksmith shop remains. This statement indicates a complete refusal to even attempt to exhaust all redevelopment options. This intransigence should not be rewarded. The historic preservation and landmark ordinances of the City deserve support and compliance.

Finally, I do not believe that demolition of the blacksmith structure is in the best interest of the majority of residents. There are many ways to evaluate this question, and arguments for both sides of demolition could be considered valid.

Is the best interest of the majority of residents determined by the highest EAV for the property? The greatest sales tax generated? The largest draw of out-of-town visitors? The priceless value of the sightline of the riverfront and the downtown? The potential benefits of being the only Fox River town with a renovated pre-Civil War industrial structure that once was the life blood of most river towns?

Demolition of the structure would eliminate some of the positive outcomes for residents that I mentioned above. I do not believe that the passage of time, and deterioration of the structure from neglect, should become the main drivers to evaluate the best interests of the majority of residents. Clearly, the majority of residents want the current status of the site to be improved. That does not mean that demolition is the only path forward to resolving this impasse.

I appreciate all of your efforts and work. You have a difficult, but clear, decision to make on Monday.

Thanks,

Bob Swanson

Alderman Palmquist,

To the members of the Geneva City Council,

Although we live in the 1st Ward, we're writing to all of you because this is an issue that involves all of the City of Geneva: the preservation and repurposing of the historic blacksmith shop on East State St.

When the developer acquired this property, they were quoted in the Daily Herald as recognizing the historic importance of this building and they stated their intention to preserve it. When they demolished the rest of the old Mill Race Inn they took great care to preserve the blacksmith shop which, at that time had been incorporated into the structure of the restaurant.

But then, some time later, they submitted an application to the City to demolish the building. The fact that they submitted their request shortly before Christmas, when people were likely to be distracted by the upcoming holidays, that they knew that the building had no historic preservation protection, and that such a demolition request is frequently issued promptly as a matter of course, one might surmise that they were confident that the request would be granted and the building demolished before preservationists could react.

Fortunately, a concerned citizen learned of the application and worked almost overnight to submit an application to Landmark the old building. That, of course, halted any action to demolish it. The building was then granted Landmark status by HPC and the City Council.

Since then the developer has made many attempts to get the City to revoke the landmark status of the building. In each case the City has firmly rejected each request. And now they are trying yet once again to get the City to reverse itself and once again the HPC has unanimously ejected their request.

We don't understand their reasoning for committing so much time and money over the years in their repeated attempts to get the City to change its mind, but at this point their submitting yet another request seems almost abusive.

This developer has successfully and creatively restored numerous historic buildings in Geneva. These include The Herrington Inn complex, The Riverside Banquets complex, and The Dodson Place complex. Compared with these developments the blacksmith shop is a very small project. In a city that prides itself on historic preservation as an important aspect of its "brand" it would be a shame for the City to cave and allow this building to be demolished now.

We ask you to once again deny the request to demolish this historic structure and to support an honest effort on the part of the developer to restore and repurpose it.

Most sincerely,

Colin C. and Glorianne S. Campbell

Good Morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

I have received questions regarding 4 E. State Street from various Council members. As is the practice, I am providing the answers to the entire City Council.

Previous meeting dates regarding 4 E. State Street:

Please see page 2 of the staff report (page 21 of this meeting packet) for a summary of prior meetings including the landmark nomination, charrette, landmark boundary amendment, and demolition request.

Previous discussions about integrating the structure into future projects:

The short answer is that Shodeen was presenting this information to support their previous request for demolition, claiming that they met standard 3 and that the "retention of the structure would cause the owner undue economic hardship". The plan to adaptively reuse the structure was submitted with a detailed proforma to show the high cost per square foot to bring the building to a habitable condition and the low return on that investment. The HPC and CC denied demolition based on economic hardship because the applicant did not factor in that the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site where TIF assistance is needed, and concluded (with the help of a 3rd party consultant review the proforma) that preserving the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site with TIF assistance would not cause undue economic hardship.

Thank you, wishing you all a safe and Happy New Year!

Good morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

Please mark your calendars for a Special City Council Meeting on Monday, January 12, 2026. A summary of the meeting purpose has been provided below by Director DeGroot.

On December 16th the Historic Preservation Commission unanimously voted to deny the demolition of the historic landmark located at 4 E State Street. On December 17th the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. The ordinance requires that the appeal be considered by the City Council within 30 days. A special City Council meeting will be held on January 12th where both the applicant and the historic preservation commission will have the right to be heard. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than 2/3 of the alderpersons holding office.

Please do not hesitate to reach out with any questions.

Hi Alex,

I've had a chance to review the attached files and have a question. The Shodeens had Altus Works complete a Mill Race Assessment Report outlining the development of the Blacksmith Shop. The report summary states that it will support "an adaptive reuse of historic Mill Race to serve as an office or retail space." It would "preserve and repair historic building elements while incorporating new elements that are sympathetic to existing building fabric." It included rebuilt masonry and steel supports, as well as mechanical, electrical, and plumbing. The total cost of design and construction was estimated to be $ 1,461,849. Why have they walked away from this plan? Are there things that might be done to induce them to reconsider it? This would seem to be a sensible path forward. What are your thoughts?

Thanks very much,

Mark

I live in the Third Ward 3 blocks southeast of the 180-year-old blacksmith shop and value Geneva's heritage. Please do not overrule or modify the HPC's unanimous decision (I submitted comments before their meeting). The property owners knew what they were getting into. I'm fine with putting a roof on it and strengthening it, with a nice sign, with graphics, telling the many passersby on 38 what it is. It is so much more important to our city than a structure one might find in, say, Schaumburg.

Thank you for your consideration and your service.

Mayor Burns,

To the members of the Geneva City Council,

Although we live in the 1st Ward, we're writing to all of you because this is an issue that involves all of the City of Geneva: the preservation and repurposing of the historic blacksmith shop on East State St.

When the developer acquired this property, they were quoted in the Daily Herald as recognizing the historic importance of this building and they stated their intention to preserve it. When they demolished the rest of the old Mill Race Inn they took great care to preserve the blacksmith shop which, at that time had been incorporated into the structure of the restaurant.

But then, some time later, they submitted an application to the City to demolish the building. The fact that they submitted their request shortly before Christmas, when people were likely to be distracted by the upcoming holidays, that they knew that the building had no historic preservation protection, and that such a demolition request is frequently issued promptly as a matter of course, one might surmise that they were confident that the request would be granted and the building demolished before preservationists could react.

Fortunately, a concerned citizen learned of the application and worked almost overnight to submit an application to Landmark the old building. That, of course, halted any action to demolish it. The building was then granted Landmark status by HPC and the City Council.

Since then the developer has made many attempts to get the City to revoke the landmark status of the building. In each case the City has firmly rejected each request. And now they are trying yet once again to get the City to reverse itself and once again the HPC has unanimously ejected their request.

We don't understand their reasoning for committing so much time and money over the years in their repeated attempts to get the City to change its mind, but at this point their submitting yet another request seems almost abusive.

This developer has successfully and creatively restored numerous historic buildings in Geneva. These include The Herrington Inn complex, The Riverside Banquets complex, and The Dodson Place complex. Compared with these developments the blacksmith shop is a very small project. In a city that prides itself on historic preservation as an important aspect of its "brand" it would be a shame for the City to cave and allow this building to be demolished now.

We ask you to once again deny the request to demolish this historic structure and to support an honest effort on the part of the developer to restore and repurpose it.

Most sincerely,

DRAFT Demolition Permit Amendment/Agreement Toward Advancing Redevelopment of 4 E. State Street Property

- ~~1.—~~Upon careful and responsible disassembling of the structure (avoiding merely bulldozing), materials deemed worthy of preserving for monument design, development and installation shall be relocated from 4. E. State parcel and stored in a location agreed upon and authorized by the City. ~~Costs associated with such work shall be paid for with TIF funds.~~ I don't think we should commit to this.
2. Remaining material from the disassembled structure will be offered to the GHM as a right-of-first-refusal to be used for purposes including but not limited to, collections, fundraising (selling pieces), etc.
3. Preserve sufficient material from structure to design and develop and educational structure (monument) recognizing the erstwhile Blacksmith Shop and its relationship to the City for public benefit and place said structure (monument) on or in close proximity to the redevelopment of the 4 E. State parcel. Does it have to be a separate monument? Or can it be incorporated into the structure and signed as such, or something along those lines?
4. Design of said monument to be directed by a panel of citizens appointed by the City and will include at least 2 representatives of the City Council, 1 representative from GHM , 1 representative of the Shodeen Group/Foundation (??? not sold on Shodeen rep), 1 representative from the City's Historic Preservation Commission and 1 one at-large community representative. I would like to discuss this more, this part makes me nervous. We need a process that will help "rebuild" the relationship between the community and Shodeen – this could inhibit this. I like the spirit of it, but given the poor relationship would need to be very carefully managed.
5. All costs associated with the design, development and installation of said monument will be paid for by a grant from the Shodeen Foundation and not to exceed $_____

or...

All costs associated with the design, development and installation of said monument will be paid for by TIF funds as the monument is a "public benefit". Costs associated thereto will be deducted from the anticipated TIF request by Mill Race Land

Company/Shodeen. I think the approval and or proposal to use public funds with the fines out in the wind would be a bad idea.

6. Perpetual care of said monument shall be paid for by TIF funds and upon expiration of the TIF said costs shall be transferred to the City (just as the “Rain Man” statute on S. Third Street). Same comment as above.
7. Payment of fines assigned to the Mill Race Land Company shall be recouped by the City (effective dates of aggregate fines tbd) by means of subtracting said amount of fines from anticipated TIF request by Mill Race Land Company/Shodeen and approved by the City. This needs to be front and center and carefully articulated. Top of the fold as they say.

NOTE:

Per our own code we need to add dates and expectations of when disassembling of structure must commence.

Notice that I have not included any redevelopment deadline submittal date...should I/we?

I live in the Third Ward 3 blocks southeast of the 180-year-old blacksmith shop and value Geneva's heritage. Please do not overrule or modify the HPC's unanimous decision (I submitted comments before their meeting). The property owners knew what they were getting into. I'm fine with putting a roof on it and strengthening it, with a nice sign, with graphics, telling the many passersby on 38 what it is. It is so much more important to our city than a structure one might find in, say, Schaumburg.

Thank you for your consideration and your service.

City Council Denies Appeal Of 4 E. State St. Demolition Request

_____ | The City of Geneva Development Projects Map has been updated with details about the Jan. 12 special City Council meeting regarding the appeal of the 4 E. State St. Historic Landmark Demolition request.

A reversal or modification of the Historic Preservation Commission's (HPC) determination requires not less than two-thirds of the alderpersons holding office (seven votes). At the City Council meeting, six alderpersons voted in favor of overturning the HPC, and four voted to uphold the HPC's decision.

As such, the appeal failed, and the demolition request was denied.

Good Morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

I have received questions regarding 4 E. State Street from various Council members. As is the practice, I am providing the answers to the entire City Council.

Previous meeting dates regarding 4 E. State Street:

Please see page 2 of the staff report (page 21 of this meeting packet) for a summary of prior meetings including the landmark nomination, charrette, landmark boundary amendment, and demolition request.

Previous discussions about integrating the structure into future projects:

The short answer is that Shodeen was presenting this information to support their previous request for demolition, claiming that they met standard 3 and that the "retention of the structure would cause the owner undue economic hardship". The plan to adaptively reuse the structure was submitted with a detailed proforma to show the high cost per square foot to bring the building to a habitable condition and the low return on that investment. The HPC and CC denied demolition based on economic hardship because the applicant did not factor in that the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site where TIF assistance is needed, and concluded (with the help of a 3rd party consultant review the proforma) that preserving the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site with TIF assistance would not cause undue economic hardship.

Thank you, wishing you all a safe and Happy New Year!

Good morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

Please mark your calendars for a Special City Council Meeting on Monday, January 12, 2026. A summary of the meeting purpose has been provided below by Director DeGroot.

On December 16th the Historic Preservation Commission unanimously voted to deny the demolition of the historic landmark located at 4 E State Street. On December 17th the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. The ordinance requires that the appeal be considered by the City Council within 30 days. A special City Council meeting will be held on January 12th where both the applicant and the historic preservation commission will have the right to be heard. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than 2/3 of the alderpersons holding office.

Information on the case can be found on the development projects page and in the agenda center.

Please do not hesitate to reach out with any questions.

Thank you,

Good Morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

I have received questions regarding 4 E. State Street from various Council members. As is the practice, I am providing the answers to the entire City Council.

Previous meeting dates regarding 4 E. State Street:

Please see page 2 of the staff report (page 21 of this meeting packet) for a summary of prior meetings including the landmark nomination, charrette, landmark boundary amendment, and demolition request.

Previous discussions about integrating the structure into future projects:

The short answer is that Shodeen was presenting this information to support their previous request for demolition, claiming that they met standard 3 and that the “retention of the structure would cause the owner undue economic hardship”. The plan to adaptively reuse the structure was submitted with a detailed proforma to show the high cost per square foot to bring the building to a habitable condition and the low return on that investment . The HPC and CC denied demolition based on economic hardship because the applicant did not factor in that the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site where TIF assistance is needed, and concluded (with the help of a 3rd party consultant review the proforma) that preserving the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site with TIF assistance would not cause undue economic hardship.

Thank you, wishing you all a safe and Happy New Year!

Good morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

Please mark your calendars for a Special City Council Meeting on Monday, January 12, 2026. A summary of the meeting purpose has been provided below by Director DeGroot.

On December 16th the Historic Preservation Commission unanimously voted to deny the demolition of the historic landmark located at 4 E State Street. On December 17th the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. The ordinance requires that the appeal be considered by the City Council within 30 days. A special City Council meeting will be held on January 12th where both the applicant and the historic preservation commission will have the right to be heard. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than 2/3 of the alderpersons holding office.

Information on the case can be found on the development projects page and in the agenda center.

Please do not hesitate to reach out with any questions.

Geneva commission again denies demolition request for landmarked structure at old Mill Race Inn site

Some say it's an eyesore. Others appeal to its history. Some want to see it repurposed, others call for its demolition.

But before it became a site for public debates, the limestone structure at 4 E. State St. had many lives, according to the city of Geneva: it was a blacksmith shop in the 1840s, a carriage painting shop shortly after the turn of the 20th century and was part of the property of a longstanding Geneva restaurant that operated from the 1930s until it shuttered in 2011.

In more recent years, what remains of the limestone building on the northern edge of the former Mill Race Inn property has been a source of contention in Geneva. Its owner has on several occasions appealed to the city to tear it down, the city has denied its requests, and preservationists have joined the mix in attempts to keep it standing. Last week, the city's Historic Preservation Commission unanimously shot down another request by Dave Patzelt, the president of Geneva-based Shodeen Group, to demolish the structure.

Its future remains uncertain, however, as Shodeen has already filed an appeal of the commission's decision, meaning the Geneva City Council could still override the commission and vote to allow demolition. Discussion at the Dec. 16 meeting also led to a number of calls for redeveloping the property — another matter that's come before the city in the past.

These debates about the structure at the former Mill Race Inn property in downtown Geneva have been years in the making.

According to the city, the limestone building was first the Alexander Brothers' Blacksmith Shop in the mid-19th century. Among other things, it later was used as a wagon manufacturing and blacksmithing shop, a cooperage and a carriage painting shop.

The site of the property later was incorporated into an iconic restaurant, the Mill Race Inn.

After almost 80 years, the Mill Race Inn closed in 2011, and the property was eventually acquired by Geneva-based development company Shodeen Group. Demolition of most of the property began in 2016. At the time, city officials said the developer would evaluate the 1840s-era limestone sections to determine if the structure could be considered a historic landmark or be incorporated within any future development of the property.

In 2017, Shodeen looked to demolish the limestone building that had been part of the restaurant property, but the matter was put on hold early in 2018 after a Geneva resident moved to get it designated as a historic landmark.

Later that year, the building got a landmark designation from the city, and preservationists advocated for repurposing the site for another use.

Fast forward a few years, the Shodeen Family Foundation again requested permission to demolish the building, but it was unanimously shot down by the city's Historic Preservation Commission. Following an appeal by the developer, the City Council affirmed the commission's decision in 2023.

Later that year, the city cited the property owner for code violations, per documents from the city, and a ruling was made on the case in September 2025 in the city's favor, requiring that the building be made weather-tight.

Then, in recent months, Shodeen made a request for demolition again. The application by Patzelt claims that the stone structure "stands in the way of" redevelopment goals for the property and that "no positive impacts have been accomplished" in the eight years of discussions regarding the structure. The application asks the city to consider the demolition request on the grounds that the structure "is not in the best interest of the majority of the community."

At the Dec. 16 meeting Patzelt noted that, previously, part of the hold on the future of the building was to give residents additional time to find something that could be done with the structure.

"I would suggest that, whatever amount of time, that time has passed," Patzelt said. "It's been long enough. There's been several different attempts ... whether it's to find a buyer, to move the structure, to find somebody that is interested in renovating the structure or ... using it for some specific use."

He argued that the cost to repair the structure is in excess of what it's worth.

"The time has come that we need to make some further decisions on it," he said.

Several of the commissioners offered their opinions on the request at last week's meeting, and considered what the future of the property might look like.

Commissioner Jewel Jensen — pointing to the portion of Shodeen's application related to a failed stakeholder input initiative about the site — suggested that taxpayer-funded efforts to determine the property's future were not successful because the owner didn't ultimately submit development plans for approval, has not protected the structure from the elements and has not agreed to work with a study group about the site.

Jensen also noted the fine the owner has incurred from the city, questioning whether the city would have to pay it if the demolition request were to be approved.

Jensen also asked about the ownership, and Patzelt clarified that the property is no longer owned by Shodeen itself, but by the Mill Race Land Company, LLC. Shodeen remains listed as the contractor on the original application for demolition from October.

Some of the response to the request for demolition centered around the criticism that there had been no significant change since the last time Shodeen came to the city asking to tear down the structure.

"I just want to make clear ... that nothing has changed since 2023 in August when this commission denied demolition, with the exception of, I'm assuming, additional letters that are in favor of demolition being submitted to the commission," said Commissioner Kevin Phillips.

Patzelt said he would "admit that there's maybe no change," but reiterated that there had been a request for more time, more time had been given, and no solution has since materialized.

Phillips argued that, because that request for additional time didn't come from the commission, it was "irrelevant" from anything being different from its latest decision in 2023.

"Since that time, Shodeen has done nothing except drag the city into hearings in courts and question the (commission's) decision, and, in the meantime, has allowed that building to deteriorate such, to the point where, now, maybe many people in ... the community view it as an eyesore," Phillips said. "You're asking us to approve a demolition that basically is based on an eyesore that you've created."

Patzelt said he doesn't think much has changed from deterioration.

Commissioner Lisa McManus suggested that there should have been work on a development plan for the property.

"It's just not a property, right now, that's in good shape," she said. "And the reality is that we need, rather than have these conversations about taking the building down, for years we could've just presented something ... Shodeen could be making money on this property, but yet here we are entertaining another demo request."

Patzelt said that, to do so, Shodeen would need to know what is to be done with the structure in order to make a redevelopment plan.

And Commissioner Mike Riebe asked whether, if the structure must remain, Shodeen plans to let the property sit as is, rather than develop the site.

Patzelt said they would, and noted that structural engineers have said the walls and footings are not capable of sustaining any additional load, so they couldn't put an addition on the building.

During the meeting, a number of residents — split between those in favor and those against demolition — also advanced their suggestions about the site and what they hoped would come of it.

Several of those opposed to demolition spoke of their hopes that the site would ultimately be redeveloped.

"If the (commission) were to deny this demolition application, there is an opportunity for the former blacksmith shop to be part of a larger redevelopment at a minimal cost to the property owner," said Al Watts, the community engagement director of local nonprofit Preservation Partners of the Fox Valley. "Collaboration between the public and the owner with that goal in mind would likely accomplish something the community could be proud of that both honors the legacy of Geneva's industrial past and stimulates Geneva's future."

Alan Leahigh, of Geneva, said Shodeen is bringing forward a "false choice" between keeping the structure or demolition, suggesting that efforts to restore or redevelop the building would be "much more favorably received" by the community.

And Lee Eysturlid, who said he lives across the street from the structure, said whether the building is an "eyesore" is subjective, and criticized the "stonewalling of the process" as setting a precedent for the future. He also spoke about his view on preservation, including what the future of the site could end up as.

"It's not just the present of the history ... that you preserve, but it's the future of the history you preserve," Eysturlid said. "And it's not just the building, it's the space. And by removing the building, you open this space up to a six-story monolith. And I know that's not part of the point, but it is the point, because history is also into the future. Otherwise, why are we preserving anything?"

Some individuals from the area felt otherwise, criticizing in particular the impact the deteriorating structure has on the neighborhood and the city's economic position.

Herb Nachreiner, of Elgin, said that even decades ago, the blacksmith shop "was a piece of junk, and it's even worse today." He noted that the site is essentially the gateway to Geneva's business district, and that businesses "never get a second chance at a first impression."

"Move on," Nachreiner said. "We're beating a dead horse with this building."

Similarly, Patrice Bertheau, of Geneva, pointed out that there is "no progress being made" on the property, and it is having an impact on "neighborhood pride and economic potential, as it discourages investment and tourism."

Another nearby resident of the structure, Ed Streibig, said he hopes there will be a sidewalk by the site for safety reasons, and that he is "here looking for progress."

"When I think about progress, the quickest way to progress seems like demolition," Streibig said. He suggested taking the stone blocks from the structure and incorporating them into a new structure.

Ultimately, after the public hearing on the proposal for demolition, the commission again considered the possibility, but ultimately landed in opposition to Patzelt's request.

Riebe said they haven't gotten a "good faith proposal" for redeveloping the site and suggested that Shodeen has just been "waiting and waiting and waiting to strongarm — whether it's us or City Council to give in, give them what they want."

"The differences between the petition ... to demo a few years ago versus today is that the property has sat longer," McManus added.

The commission also considered how it could judge what the consensus from the community is, and Jensen suggested that the owner and community don't have to be in opposition going forward.

“I believe that we can come to a solution if we do work together on this,” Jensen said.

The commission ultimately unanimously shot down the demolition permit request on Tuesday.

But Patzelt, in an email to The Beacon-News, says an appeal has been filed with the City Council, which the city also confirmed. A city spokesman said the date the council will consider the matter has not yet been determined.

The City Council has the ability to uphold, amend or reverse the commission’s decision, Historic Preservation Commission Chair Paul Zellmer noted at the Dec. 16 meeting. Per the city, the council must vote on the commission’s determination within 30 calendar days of an appeal being made. A reversal or modification of the commission’s decision requires a two-thirds majority of the aldermen.

Hi Kevin, Emily,

I watched the HPC hearing tonight about the demolition petition on 4 E. State St.

Can you help me with who's who on the commission by where they were seated?

I figured out who the women were.

In my notes, I identified people by where they sat because I couldn't see names from where the recording was.

On the right, was Jewel Jensen.

Who were the two men seated on that side?

On the left, there's a man seated closest to the flag - his name?

Then there's Lisa McManus.

And then the man on the end. Last night he was wearing a red shirt - his name?

Thank you for your help.

I am sorry I could not be there in person.

Subject: vote no to petition to demolish historic Blacksmith shop

Hello,

I am contacting you to encourage you to say no to the most recent petition from the Shodeen group to demolish the Blacksmith Shop on the site of the previous Mill Race Inn property. The Historical Preservation Committee has denied this request on multiple occasions. I implore to honor their sound reasoning for this and uphold their decision. In a recent HPC meeting, the following was stated:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

Shodeen shot down in showdown: Judge affirms Geneva ruling on 1840s blacksmith shop

Kane County Circuit Judge Elizabeth Flood ruled this week that Geneva developer Shodeen Group cannot evade the city's building maintenance code.

There are many reasons to uphold the HPC decision. In support of them, I provide the following rationale:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine, even though there is a court order to do so. I am confused as to why a public entity is allowed to disregard the law and why the local governing body allows this. Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure. They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument, that also fell flat as why weren't other vacant buildings (Campana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr. It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. Now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. The Shodeen/Patzelt group has not pursued any available funding from historical societies. There are grants available from a number of resources that have been mentioned to this group at a previous HPC meeting by representatives from the state historical entities. These suggestions and resources have been blatantly ignored.
6. Why destroy a historical building and site if we have no idea what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval? It is on a floodplain, would require allowances for ingress and egress for two state highways, and no environmental impact study has been completed. Until these items are completed, why is a "possible construction project" even being considered?

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner. Geneva claims to be a historical community. It is time to keep history from being destroyed.

Respectfully,
Erica Eysturlið

Subject: Petition to demolish Geneva's 1840s blacksmith shop

Hello:

This is my plea to you to uphold the good work of Geneva's Historical Preservation Commission (HPC) in its, and ideally your, denial of the request to demolish the 1840s Blacksmith shop.

I quote:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

The reasons to say no, I would offer, are:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine (why not? There was a court order. What happened here? Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure.). They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument (it's an eyes-sore, don't you know?) that also fell flat in that why weren't other vacant buildings (Capana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. The idea of "moving" of a historic structure sounds good, but it clearly robs the site and the building of their historic meaning. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr, but does anyone know or care? It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. And now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. Why do this until we know for sure what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval. It is on a floodplain, for example.

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner.

I live in the Third Ward 3 blocks southeast of the 180-year-old blacksmith shop and value Geneva's heritage. Please do not overrule or modify the HPC's unanimous decision (I submitted comments before their meeting). The property owners knew what they were getting into. I'm fine with putting a roof on it and strengthening it, with a nice sign, with graphics, telling the many passersby on 38 what it is. It is so much more important to our city than a structure one might find in, say, Schaumburg.

Thank you for your consideration and your service.

Alderman Furnish

To the members of the Geneva City Council,

Although we live in the 1st Ward, we're writing to all of you because this is an issue that involves all of the City of Geneva: the preservation and repurposing of the historic blacksmith shop on East State St.

When the developer acquired this property, they were quoted in the Daily Herald as recognizing the historic importance of this building and they stated their intention to preserve it. When they demolished the rest of the old Mill Race Inn they took great care to preserve the blacksmith shop which, at that time had been incorporated into the structure of the restaurant.

But then, some time later, they submitted an application to the City to demolish the building. The fact that they submitted their request shortly before Christmas, when people were likely to be distracted by the upcoming holidays, that they knew that the building had no historic preservation protection, and that such a demolition request is frequently issued promptly as a matter of course, one might surmise that they were confident that the request would be granted and the building demolished before preservationists could react.

Fortunately, a concerned citizen learned of the application and worked almost overnight to submit an application to Landmark the old building. That, of course, halted any action to demolish it. The building was then granted Landmark status by HPC and the City Council.

Since then the developer has made many attempts to get the City to revoke the landmark status of the building. In each case the City has firmly rejected each request. And now they are trying yet once again to get the City to reverse itself and once again the HPC has unanimously ejected their request.

We don't understand their reasoning for committing so much time and money over the years in their repeated attempts to get the City to change its mind, but at this point their submitting yet another request seems almost abusive.

This developer has successfully and creatively restored numerous historic buildings in Geneva. These include The Herrington Inn complex, The Riverside Banquets complex, and The Dodson Place complex. Compared with these developments the blacksmith shop is a very small project. In a city that prides itself on historic preservation as an important aspect of its "brand" it would be a shame for the City to cave and allow this building to be demolished now.

We ask you to once again deny the request to demolish this historic structure and to support an honest effort on the part of the developer to restore and repurpose it.

Most sincerely,

Colin C. and Glorianne S. Campbell

Hi Erica

This is the only email that I have on this account. You mentioned that you text me also. I could not find any text messages . I would like you to resend the text to 6303637854.

I do respond to people in Geneva that reach out to my email or text. Some questions are directed to multiple people and if someone else sends the question to the responsible party, I usually do not duplicate the message. I also talk to people while out in the community.

I would be available to meet with you to talk about the Mill Race Inn or any other issues.

Thanks

Hello,

I am contacting you to encourage you to say no to the most recent petition from the Shodeen group to demolish the Blacksmith Shop on the site of the previous Mill Race Inn property. The Historical Preservation Committee has denied this request on multiple occasions. I implore to honor their sound reasoning for this and uphold their decision. In a recent HPC meeting, the following was stated:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

Shodeen shot down in showdown: Judge affirms Geneva ruling on 1840s blac...
Kane County Circuit Judge Elizabeth Flood ruled this week that Geneva developer Shodeen Group cannot evade the c...

There are many reasons to uphold the HPC decision. In support of them, I provide the following rationale:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine, even though there is a court order to do so. I am confused as to why a public entity is allowed to disregard the law and why the local governing body allows this. Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure. They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.

2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument, that also fell flat as why weren't other vacant buildings (Campana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr. It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. Now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. The Shodeen/Patzelt group has not pursued any available funding from historical societies. There are grants available from a number of resources that have been mentioned to this group at a previous HPC meeting by representatives from the state historical entities. These suggestions and resources have been blatantly ignored.
6. Why destroy a historical building and site if we have no idea what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval? It is on a floodplain, would require allowances for ingress and egress for two state highways, and no environmental impact study has been completed. Until these items are completed, why is a "possible construction project" even being considered?

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner. Geneva claims to be a historical community. It is time to keep history from being destroyed.

Respectfully,
Erica Eysturlið

Good afternoon,

Attached, you'll find the billing details for the month of December. Please note there is one meeting from November that had not yet been invoiced. For your awareness, I completely understand if this needs to be omitted and resubmitted.

Thank you very much,

Becca

Good Morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

I have received questions regarding 4 E. State Street from various Council members. As is the practice, I am providing the answers to the entire City Council.

Previous meeting dates regarding 4 E. State Street:

Please see page 2 of the staff report (page 21 of this meeting packet) for a summary of prior meetings including the landmark nomination, charrette, landmark boundary amendment, and demolition request.

Previous discussions about integrating the structure into future projects:

The short answer is that Shodeen was presenting this information to support their previous request for demolition, claiming that they met standard 3 and that the “retention of the structure would cause the owner undue economic hardship”. The plan to adaptively reuse the structure was submitted with a detailed proforma to show the high cost per square foot to bring the building to a habitable condition and the low return on that investment. The HPC and CC denied demolition based on economic hardship because the applicant did not factor in that the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site where TIF assistance is needed, and concluded (with the help of a 3rd party consultant review the proforma) that preserving the structure as part of a larger redevelopment site with TIF assistance would not cause undue economic hardship.

Thank you, wishing you all a safe and Happy New Year!

Alex

Good morning Mayor & City Council (bcc'd):

Please mark your calendars for a Special City Council Meeting on Monday, January 12, 2026. A summary of the meeting purpose has been provided below by Director DeGroot.

On December 16th the Historic Preservation Commission unanimously voted to deny the demolition of the historic landmark located at 4 E State Street. On December 17th the applicant requested an appeal of the decision. The ordinance requires that the appeal be considered by the City Council within 30 days. A special City Council meeting will be held on January 12th where both the applicant and the historic preservation commission will have the right to be heard. A reversal or modification of the commission's determination requires not less than 2/3 of the alderpersons holding office.

Information on the case can be found on the development projects page and in the agenda center.

Please do not hesitate to reach out with any questions.

Thank you,

Alex

Alderwoman Paschke,

To the members of the Geneva City Council,

Although we live in the 1st Ward, we're writing to all of you because this is an issue that involves all of the City of Geneva: the preservation and repurposing of the historic blacksmith shop on East State St.

When the developer acquired this property, they were quoted in the Daily Herald as recognizing the historic importance of this building and they stated their intention to preserve it. When they demolished the rest of the old Mill Race Inn they took great care to preserve the blacksmith shop which, at that time had been incorporated into the structure of the restaurant.

But then, some time later, they submitted an application to the City to demolish the building. The fact that they submitted their request shortly before Christmas, when people were likely to be distracted by the upcoming holidays, that they knew that the building had no historic preservation protection, and that such a demolition request is frequently issued promptly as a matter of course, one might surmise that they were confident that the request would be granted and the building demolished before preservationists could react.

Fortunately, a concerned citizen learned of the application and worked almost overnight to submit an application to Landmark the old building. That, of course, halted any action to demolish it. The building was then granted Landmark status by HPC and the City Council.

Since then the developer has made many attempts to get the City to revoke the landmark status of the building. In each case the City has firmly rejected each request. And now they are trying yet once again to get the City to reverse itself and once again the HPC has unanimously ejected their request.

We don't understand their reasoning for committing so much time and money over the years in their repeated attempts to get the City to change its mind, but at this point their submitting yet another request seems almost abusive.

This developer has successfully and creatively restored numerous historic buildings in Geneva. These include The Herrington Inn complex, The Riverside Banquets complex, and The Dodson Place complex. Compared with these developments the blacksmith shop is a very small project. In a city that prides itself on historic preservation as an important aspect of its "brand" it would be a shame for the City to cave and allow this building to be demolished now.

We ask you to once again deny the request to demolish this historic structure and to support an honest effort on the part of the developer to restore and repurpose it.

Most sincerely,

Colin C. and Glorianne S. Campbell

Dear Martha,

I watched the HPC meeting on the blacksmith shop demolition and I'm not sure how you are going to figure out if the majority of Genevans are for the demolition of the blacksmith shop, but you can put me down for NOT demolishing it. Once a historic building is gone you can NEVER get it back. I believe Shodeen is gaslighting the citizens of Geneva by doing nothing to preserve the building and that they are waiting for it to fall over so they can say it's not safe and needs to go. I also believe a person/business MUST pay the fines levied, but apparently Shodeen believes the law doesn't apply to them.

If Shodeen petitions the city council for demolition I hope you vote to preserve the blacksmith shop.

On another note, I watched a past city council meeting where you mentioned a get together with the citizens of ward 4 but unfortunately I didn't see the video until after the fact. If you have another one could you please email me so I can attend.

Thank you,

I strongly urge city council members to confirm the Dec 16 decision of Geneva's Historic Preservation Comm, denying the Shodeen corporation proposal to demolish the original blacksmith shop.

In his third application to get approval for demolition, the Corp has not presented any new factors that would override earlier decisions,

In 2014, the Chicago Tribune quoted Shodeen's intention to respect and retain the historic features of this site. Instead, he has defied the will of the community and the courts ---- and the end result may well be demolition by neglect.

If the demolition proposal is rejected ( with your help), then the community can pursue creative options for future development of the site.

With gratitude for all the time and energy you devote to community issues:

Mr. Radecki,

Thanks for your email and for your past service as alderperson as well.

I apologize for the delayed response.

I've been keeping a careful eye on this over the years and did not take my vote lightly. I understand the arguments from both sides and received thoughtful responses from a variety of residents.

I took great care in revisiting the lengthy discussions and the decisions that my predecessors had made in regard to this property and this specific historical landmark. The structure was designated a historical landmark by the city through the proper channels, and the applicant has failed to de-designate the property as such. The issue has been brought up repeatedly, and the city has remained steadfast, collectively through the HPC and via City Council.

No matter the condition of the structure, it is still deemed a historical landmark and that carried a significant weight as I personally deliberated over the topic at hand.

I am asking you both, as the rules allow, to request a motion for reconsideration of your vote at your next meeting regarding last night's vote on the Mill Race Inn demolition request. As a past three term member of the Geneva City Council and strong supporter of reasonable historic preservation I hope you consider this request. I participated in the year long discussion of our current HP ordinance and while objecting to the owner consent issue, still voted to approve the ordinance. As a whole it is excellent and I did not wish to throw the baby out with the bath water.

I won't rehash the already exhaustive discussion on the pro and con issues. However, I believe there are 2 strong arguments to be made for your reconsideration.

First is the fact that the sitting majority of Council members who represent the majority of people in Geneva voted for conditional redevelopment/demolition. But for the super majority requirement based on the HPC unanimous vote, the redevelopment would proceed. If conditional demolition and redevelopment did not have such wide support from the council I would not be writing to you.

Second, I believe you are not elected leaders but rather our elected representatives. To borrow from Alderson Reinecke's theme last night, I think there are some things we can all agree upon. Foremost, if the question was put to the voters in a referendum we would no doubt overwhelmingly support the conditional demolition and redevelopment of the property. I understand that your responsibilities on the council exceed simply polling your constituents. However, if you are going to break from them on such an important issue then you should be 100% confident in your position. If not, I think it is best to go with the collective wisdom and support your constituents.

The reality is that you may feel 49% in favor of an issue but since you vote in a whole number you must cast your vote the other way. It is what makes your position challenging at times. So my request again is that in light of the above I respectfully ask you to reconsider your vote and allow the conditional demolition and redevelopment of the Mill Race Inn property.

Thank you for your service and please contact me if you wish to discuss further

Hi Mark,

Thank you for getting back to me. You are absolutely right that this is a solvable problem. Sometimes the City inadvertently gets in their own way by handcuffing the Aldermen.

Your understanding is also correct, you can only consider whether the HPC's vote was correct, but you are allowed to discuss anything that HPC was allowed to discuss at their meeting, whether or not they actually discussed it or not. Bringing the issue back for reconsideration would allow Aldermen time to reach out to Dave Rogers, Geneva's former Planning Commission Chairman and Wood Award winner, to ask him why in this instance he chose to write to HPC in support of demolition. They could reach out to Chris Aiston, Geneva's former Economic Development Director, and ask why he chose to write to HPC in support of demolition. The list of who's who in Geneva goes on with who reached out to HPC in support of demolition. There has to be a reason so many people that undeniably have Geneva's best interests at heart would come forward with their support.

The amendment that was voted on and passed last Monday should also allow Aldermen to ask what type of commemoration of the site would be acceptable to the City. The Shodeen Family has always been willing to discuss what can or cannot be saved and how best to commemorate the site, and the Aldermen have always been willing to listen. The interpretation of rules are making it difficult for you to do your job.

Bringing this issue up for a re-vote will give everyone time to ask a few more questions and keep the discussion going. At this time I'm not asking you to change you vote (but I will in time), I'm just asking you not to let the issue die right now. Please make the motion for reconsideration. There is absolutely no downside to at least ask.

Dear Joe,

Thank you so much for your thoughtful note regarding last night's vote on the referendum. I'm always open to more discussion and to considering alternative ways of resolving issues. I'll share this with other members of the City Council to see if there is an interest in revisiting the vote. My understanding is that the issues you bring up, while important, would not have been appropriate to raise at this week's meeting. By statute, we could only consider the question of whether the HPC's vote was incorrect, and decide this based on one issue--Does demolition of the site serve the "best interests" of the "majority of the community?" Beyond this, the testimony had to be in the record of the HPC prior to their last vote. We were limited, then, in the questions we could ask and the information we could use to make a decision. That said, I believe there is a path forward that will enable development on the site to begin. I would be open to talking with the developers and members of the City Council about strategies that might be of help in accomplishing this. My approach is collaborative. This is a solvable problem.

Thank you again for your suggestion. I greatly appreciate it.

Aldermen Malecki and Reinecke,

The City Code allows for any alderman from the prevailing side to ask for a re-vote. I am hoping you would consider making that motion and seconding it at the next meeting. I believe too much misinformation has worked its way into discussions.

First as an introduction. I have been a resident of Geneva for over 40 years and for fifteen years I attended, in person, every Committee of the Whole and City Council meeting. After COVID I've enjoyed the luxury of watching online from my couch. With the exception of the mayor, no one has attended or watched more meetings than I have. I point this out so you know this isn't a single issue complaint from an activist, it is a well informed opinion of someone who has worked to stay informed on the facts and that cares about Geneva.

- This property is not in the Historic District. When the Shodeen's purchased the property, they could have applied for a demo permit and received it before anyone had a chance to comment. Instead, because they knew that there may be remnants of an historic structure inside the building they decided, at great expense to themselves, to expose the structure for inspection. After inspection they decided saving the structure "as is" was not practical. It was only then that a group of people moved to have the site landmarked behind their back. That never should have been allowed to happen. It was certainly an instance of "No good deed goes unpunished".
- It's claimed that the Shodeen's are committing "Demolition by Neglect". This is nonsense. The building is in the same shape that it was in when it was originally exposed.
- It's being ignored that the structure sits in a flood plain. Making use of the structure "as is" and where it is located would be a cost prohibitive and impractical endeavor.
- Opponents to demolition like to refer to it as the Blacksmith Shop. It's had many uses over the years, but they chose to call it that for impact. I believe it was also the site of bathrooms for the Mill Race Inn at one time.
- The Shodeen's have continually showed strong support of Historic Preservation. Geneva on the Dam, their corporate offices on First Street, The Herrington, The Creamery, Dodson Place are all impressive examples of their cooperation. But because in this instance they don't agree with saving the structure as is, they are made to be villains.
- It is often repeated "Show us a plan on how you can incorporate the structure and demolition will be approved". How many tens of thousands of dollars in drawings would have to be presented to get this done? It's like saying I don't know what I want from you, but I'll know when I see it. What they are offering is what you want. They have always been willing to incorporate or pay homage to the history if given the chance.
- Many letters and emails were sent to HPC in support of saving the structure, but more than half were not from Geneva residents. Three times that amount were sent supporting demolition. Those supporting demolition include a former Planning Commissioner, the former Chairman of the Planning Commission, a former Alderman, the former Economic Development Director of Geneva, two Wood Award winners, etc. These are not activists with a single propose, these are residents that care about Geneva.
- Please consider bringing this back up for additional discussion. Asking for a re-vote doesn't mean you have changed your mind. It only means you are willing to listen.

Thanks so much. Let's see what can be done with sidewalks. If it's a state road, it complicates what the city can do. As regards the development project, the idea of incorporating elements/walls of the old Blacksmith Shop into the facade of a new building makes sense. I suspect there would be support for this. Thanks Mark!

Sidewalks on Bennett are part of the 2012 Master Plan, but the issue is complicated by the fact that Bennett St is controlled by IDOT. I have spoken with State Rep Matt Hanson and Jonathan E. Karabowicz (IDOT traffic engineer for our district), and they will require a sidewalk installed by the developers of the Mill Race Inn parcel.

Is a conditional demolition permit a thing? Like "you can demo the building, but you must reuse > 70% of the stones as a facade for the new one"? I bet you'd get a proposal if the developers had some parameters to work within!

Hi Mark,

Agreed on representativeness—this isn't a truly random sample, and I tried to note the main sources of bias in the write-up. Even with those limitations, I believe it's the best compilation of public input to date, and I'd genuinely welcome additional data collection and analysis!

I also agree with your point about approaching the Mill Race parcel thoughtfully. Where I differ is on extending time to deliberate. We're eight years in, and the continued delay has real day-to-day safety impacts. My family and I walk the un-sidewalked stretch of Bennett St multiple times a day with our 1 and 3 year old children. Last month, a truck came off the road and struck a telephone pole. If this continues to drag, I worry it won't just be a near-miss.

A lot of people have been thinking about this. As regards statistics, I'd be interested in knowing the Effect Size and confidence intervals, not simply the power. In reading the notes and letters, I came away wondering about the representativeness, reliability, and validity of some of the material. Narrative is so important. My sense, in looking at data, is that research rarely resolves conceptual issues; rather, it simply sharpens the swords of the combatants. We want to draw conclusions we can have confidence in, which can be tricky when emotions are high. That said, several things are clear--this has become a contentious issue, and many (myself included) are frustrated by delays in developing the space. Beyond this, the Mill Race parcel offers a singularly valuable opportunity for the city. There's an opportunity here to develop something remarkable, something which will be valued for generations. We should approach this thoughtfully. Time put against clarifying issues and values, external pressures and contingencies, as well as the strengths and limitations of alternative solutions, invariably pays dividends in the long run.

Thank you again for your considered approach to this issue. I greatly appreciate the time, effort, and creativity you've put against this. Please feel free to reach out any time. Happy New Year to you...

Alderman Reinecke,

The Historic Preservation Commission claimed (Dec 16, 2025) they cannot evaluate public opinion as to whether the retention of this building, structure, object, improvement, or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community. Such data is readily available.

- After reviewing 343 public commenters, 61% support demolition or partial reuse compared to 39% who support preservation
- This sample can be projected to Geneva's 21,000 population with 95% confidence and a 5% margin of error

Full analysis and source material attached. Welcome to share and reference publicly.

I am on the side of progress, and I hope this data encourages you to represent your community with a vote for demolition and partial reuse on January 12.

Dear Jim,

Thank you very much for your note and for your recommendation. Your comment on the role of elected officials--Representative or leader--is an interesting one. It's something anyone elected to office takes seriously. John Kennedy wrote about this in the opening chapter of Profiles in Courage. The best one can do is to be open to the voices you hear, attempt to discern the central issues, look for points of contact and opportunities for collaboration, and vote honestly. I try to take both the broad and the long view--What truly is in the best interests of Geneva? This is solvable. We should be able to find a solution and move forward with development on the site.

Thank you again for your note. I greatly appreciate it.

I am asking you both, as the rules allow, to request a motion for reconsideration of your vote at your next meeting regarding last night's vote on the Mill Race Inn demolition request. As a past three term member of the Geneva City Council and strong supporter of reasonable historic preservation I hope you consider this request. I participated in the year long discussion of our current HP ordinance and while objecting to the owner consent issue, still voted to approve the ordinance. As a whole it is excellent and I did not wish to throw the baby out with the bath water.

I won't rehash the already exhaustive discussion on the pro and con issues. However, I believe there are 2 strong arguments to be made for your reconsideration.

First is the fact that the sitting majority of Council members who represent the majority of people in Geneva voted for conditional redevelopment/demolition. But for the super majority requirement based on the HPC unanimous vote, the redevelopment would proceed. If conditional demolition and redevelopment did not have such wide support from the council I would not be writing to you.

Second, I believe you are not elected leaders but rather our elected representatives. To borrow from Alderperson Reineck's theme last night, I think there are some things we can all agree upon. Foremost, if the question was put to the voters in a referendum we would no doubt overwhelmingly support the conditional demolition and redevelopment of the property. I understand that your responsibilities on the council exceed simply polling your constituents. However, if you are going to break from them on such an important issue then you should be 100% confident in your position. If not, I think it is best to go with the collective wisdom and support your constituents.

The reality is that you may feel 49% in favor of an issue but since you vote in a whole number you must cast your vote the other way. It is what makes your position challenging at times. So my request again is that in light of the above I respectfully ask you to reconsider your vote and allow the conditional demolition and redevelopment of the Mill Race Inn property.

Thank you for your service and please contact me if you wish to discuss further

I was on the edge of my seat during the vote. Devastated that my own 1st Ward aldermen voted against the will of the people they represent and the safety of my family.

I think it's more likely we'll have some progress after the next election cycle. And we'll keep getting honked at while walking our stroller in traffic until then. I would love for you to prove me wrong.

Dear Ed,

Thanks so much. Let's see what can be done with sidewalks. If it's a state road, it complicates what the city can do. As regards the development project, the idea of incorporating elements/walls of the old Blacksmith Shop into the facade of a new building makes sense. I suspect there would be support for this. Were you planning on presenting this next Monday?

Thanks Mark!

Sidewalks on Bennett are part of the 2012 Master Plan, but the issue is complicated by the fact that Bennett St is controlled by IDOT. I have spoken with State Rep Matt Hanson and Jonathan E. Karabowicz (IDOT traffic engineer for our district), and they will require a sidewalk installed by the developers of the Mill Race Inn parcel.

Is a conditional demolition permit a thing? Like "you can demo the building, but you must reuse > 70% of the stones as a facade for the new one"? I bet you'd get a proposal if the developers had some parameters to work within!

New sidewalks may already be part of that project. I'm happy to facilitate this. As for public opinion on Mill Race, your data are sensible, perhaps the best available. I appreciate your work on this. We'd all like to see development move forward on the lot. To date, we've not received a proposal from the owners. I've seen preliminary renderings of possible commercial buildings using the existing Blacksmith Shop. They're nice, but haven't been presented to the City as a formal proposal. There's nothing for us to discuss or approve.

Thank you again. Have a very good weekend,

Hi Mark,

Agreed on representativeness—this isn't a truly random sample, and I tried to note the main sources of bias in the write-up. Even with those limitations, I believe it's the best compilation of public input to date, and I'd genuinely welcome additional data collection and analysis!

I also agree with your point about approaching the Mill Race parcel thoughtfully. Where I differ is on extending time to deliberate. We're eight years in, and the continued delay has real day-to-day safety impacts. My family and I walk the un-sidewalked stretch of Bennett St multiple times a day with our 1 and 3 year old children. Last month, a truck came off the road and struck a telephone pole. If this continues to drag, I worry it won't just be a near-miss.

Dear Ed,

Thank you so much. I appreciate it. I didn't think of using AI for the task. I was old-school — I read each letter individually, taking notes on it. To be sure, the sample size is adequate. A lot of people have been thinking about this. As regards statistics, I'd be interested in knowing the Effect Size and confidence intervals, not simply the power. In reading the notes and letters, I came away wondering about the representativeness, reliability, and validity of some of the material. Narrative is so important. My sense, in looking at data, is that research rarely resolves conceptual issues; rather, it simply sharpens the swords of the combatants. We want to draw conclusions we can have confidence in, which can be tricky when emotions are high. That said, several things are clear--this has become a contentious issue, and many (myself included) are frustrated by delays in developing the space. Beyond this, the Mill Race parcel offers a singularly valuable opportunity for the city. There's an opportunity here to develop something remarkable, something which will be valued for generations. We should approach this thoughtfully. Time put against clarifying issues and values, external pressures and contingencies, as well as the strengths and limitations of alternative solutions, invariably pays dividends in the long run.

Thank you again for your considered approach to this issue. I greatly appreciate the time, effort, and creativity you've put against this. Please feel free to reach out any time. Happy New Year to you...

Alderman Reinecke,

The Historic Preservation Commission claimed (Dec 16, 2025) they cannot evaluate public opinion as to whether the retention of this building, structure, object, improvement, or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community. Such data is readily available.

- After reviewing 343 public commenters, 61% support demolition or partial reuse compared to 39% who support preservation
- This sample can be projected to Geneva's 21,000 population with 95% confidence and a 5% margin of error

Subject: vote no to petition to demolish historic Blacksmith shop

Hello,

I am contacting you to encourage you to say no to the most recent petition from the Shodeen group to demolish the Blacksmith Shop on the site of the previous Mill Race Inn property. The Historical Preservation Committee has denied this request on multiple occasions. I implore to honor their sound reasoning for this and uphold their decision. In a recent HPC meeting, the following was stated:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

Shodeen shot down in showdown: Judge affirms Geneva ruling on 1840s blacksmith shop

Kane County Circuit Judge Elizabeth Flood ruled this week that Geneva developer Shodeen Group cannot evade the city's historic preservation laws.

There are many reasons to uphold the HPC decision. In support of them, I provide the following rationale:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine, even though there is a court order to do so. I am confused as to why a public entity is allowed to disregard the law and why the local governing body allows this. Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure. They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument, that also fell flat as why weren't other vacant buildings (Campana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr. It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. Now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. The Shodeen/Patzelt group has not pursued any available funding from historical societies. There are grants available from a number of resources that have been mentioned to this group at a previous HPC meeting by representatives from the state historical entities. These suggestions and resources have been blatantly ignored.
6. Why destroy a historical building and site if we have no idea what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval? It is on a floodplain, would require allowances for ingress and egress for two state highways, and no environmental impact study has been completed. Until these items are completed, why is a "possible construction project" even being considered?

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner. Geneva claims to be a historical community. It is time to keep history from being destroyed.

Respectfully,
Erica Eysturid

I am asking you both, as the rules allow, to request a motion for reconsideration of your vote at your next meeting regarding last night's vote on the Mill Race Inn demolition request. As a past three term member of the Geneva City Council and strong supporter of reasonable historic preservation I hope you consider this request. I participated in the year long discussion of our current HP ordinance and while objecting to the owner consent issue, still voted to approve the ordinance. As a whole it is excellent and I did not wish to throw the baby out with the bath water.

I won't rehash the already exhaustive discussion on the pro and con issues. However, I believe there are 2 strong arguments to be made for your reconsideration.

First is the fact that the sitting majority of Council members who represent the majority of people in Geneva voted for conditional redevelopment/demolition. But for the super majority requirement based on the HPC unanimous vote, the redevelopment would proceed. If conditional demolition and redevelopment did not have such wide support from the council I would not be writing to you.

Second, I believe you are not elected leaders but rather our elected representatives. To borrow from Alderperson Reineck's theme last night, I think there are some things we can all agree upon. Foremost, if the question was put to the voters in a referendum we would no doubt overwhelmingly support the conditional demolition and redevelopment of the property. I understand that your responsibilities on the council exceed simply polling your constituents. However, if you are going to break from them on such an important issue then you should be 100% confident in your position. If not, I think it is best to go with the collective wisdom and support your constituents.

The reality is that you may feel 49% in favor of an issue but since you vote in a whole number you must cast your vote the other way. It is what makes your position challenging at times. So my request again is that in light of the above I respectfully ask you to reconsider your vote and allow the conditional demolition and redevelopment of the Mill Race Inn property.

Thank you for your service and please contact me if you wish to discuss further

Aldermen Malecki and Reinecke,

The City Code allows for any alderman from the prevailing side to ask for a re-vote. I am hoping you would consider making that motion and seconding it at the next meeting. I believe too much misinformation has worked its way into discussions.

First as an introduction. I have been a resident of Geneva for over 40 years and for fifteen years I attended, in person, every Committee of the Whole and City Council meeting. After COVID I've enjoyed the luxury of watching online from my couch. With the exception of the mayor, no one has attended or watched more meetings than I have. I point this out so you know this isn't a single issue complaint from an activist, it is a well informed opinion of someone who has worked to stay informed on the facts and that cares about Geneva.

Here are a few of my comments:

- This property is not in the Historic District. When the Shodeen's purchased the property, they could have applied for a demo permit and received it before anyone had a chance to comment. Instead, because they knew that there may be remnants of an historic structure inside the building they decided, at great expense to themselves, to expose the structure for inspection. After inspection they decided saving the structure "as is" was not practical. It was only then that a group of people moved to have the site landmarked behind their back. That never should have been allowed to happen. It was certainly an instance of "No good deed goes unpunished".
- It's claimed that the Shodeen's are committing "Demolition by Neglect". This is nonsense. The building is in the same shape that it was in when it was originally exposed.
- It's being ignored that the structure sits in a flood plain. Making use of the structure "as is" and where it is located would be a cost prohibitive and impractical endeavor.
- Opponents to demolition like to refer to it as the Blacksmith Shop. It's had many uses over the years, but they chose to call it that for impact. I believe it was also the site of bathrooms for the Mill Race Inn at one time.
- The Shodeen's have continually showed strong support of Historic Preservation. Geneva on the Dam, their corporate offices on First Street, The Herrington, The Creamery, Dodson Place are all impressive examples of their cooperation. But because in this instance they don't agree with saving the structure as is, they are made to be villains.
- It is often repeated "Show us a plan on how you can incorporate the structure and demolition will be approved". How many tens of thousands of dollars in drawings would have to be presented to get this done? It's like saying I don't know what I want from you, but I'll know when I see it. What they are offering is what you want. They have always been willing to incorporate or pay homage to the history if given the chance.
- Many letters and emails were sent to HPC in support of saving the structure, but more than half were not from Geneva residents. Three times that amount were sent supporting demolition. Those supporting demolition include a former Planning Commissioner, the former Chairman of the Planning Commission, a former Alderman, the former Economic Development Director of Geneva, two Wood Award winners, etc. These are not activists with a single propose, these are residents that care about Geneva.
- Please consider bringing this back up for additional discussion. Asking for a re-vote doesn't mean you have changed your mind. It only means you are willing to listen.

Mrs. Bowring and Mr. Malecki,

I hope the day and New Year find you both well! As a constituent of the Ward 1, I am reaching out to you both as you prepare to consider the demolition and removal of the Blacksmith Shop this coming Monday. I'll not occupy a lot of your time as I know you both are likely receiving a great deal of feedback from the public on this issue. Just a quick background. My wife Janet and I have been residents at 427 Anderson Boulevard since 1999 where we raised a son (Jonah) and daughter (Sarah) both terrific kids (yikes...now adults!) who were byproducts of the Geneva public school system. I am an architect with a residential practice that has been blessed with many projects in Geneva's historic district. As well I've been teaching architecture at Judson University since 2008. Below are a few points to consider as your mull over your decision.

1) The demolition and permanent removal of the structure will greatly undermine the authority and purpose of the Historic Preservation Commission, a group that has been a key partner in the success of our downtown business district and residential district. I could go on and on with this point but I'll only note that having been a member of the HPC for 11 years (2000-2011) we had frequent incursions with the Shodeen organization as they pursued the removal the East View house, the Dodson mansion (once a hospital) and the many other structures. Shodeen now highlights the Dodson mansion as part of the Dodson Place retail development. The East View house is now the grande dame of homes along Route 31...hard to imagine them not there now. Can Shodeen work with and transform historic structures...you betcha they can. Is it easier to tear them down and erase their memory from our community, I guess this must be the case since they wish to do this with the blacksmith shop, but it's an odd argument to make in light of their successes. Certainly we can't predict the future, it seems likely though, that if Shodeen is given the authority to remove the blacksmith shop, there will inevitably be other applicants in the future requesting a similar fate for other historic structures in our community.

2) The property was purchased knowing full well that this structure was something important and would likely present the Shodeen organization with community interest and push back if they decided to remove the structure, yet little to no effort was made to placate the public that was and has been concerned about this. The organization it seems has done little to acknowledge the significance of the structure and even less as far as giving creative consideration for its reuse. It's clear they can do it as seen in their work with the Harrington Inn, Riverside Receptions and others throughout the Fox Valley.

3) It seems that there has been little to no compromise by Shodeen in relation to the repurposing of the blacksmith shop. The argument that was initially set forward was an issue of the cost of reusing the structure. The argument now has shifted to the structure being a public nuisance, a pretty easy argument to make when it's intentionally left unprotected and further compromised. It's been noted by both sides that the property is "unsightly", yet who currently owns the property? Who has ignored legal and financial consequences?...well you get the gist.

4) There aren't many artifacts like this one in our City, for that matter in the Fox Valley. It's easy to lose sight of this one as we hurdle toward being a City that has great potential and building it out to that potential will push structures like this into oblivion. Obviously once it's gone, it's gone and it's really our one chance to protect it.

5) Geneva has become and will likely even more so become a significant player in attracting residential and business interest in the years to come. As far as cities along the Fox River, trying to be objective about this, Geneva's downtown is and will be the most desirable location for both homeowners and businesses along the Fox River. That said, the long term financial upside for this site is enormous. Our City leadership should leverage this with the Shodeen organization. I do understand that this site is a challenging one to build on, but the folks at Shodeen purchased it knowing this. I believe that this parcel will be a significant generator of income for the Shodeen organization so money spent now for the restoration or repurposing of the blacksmith shop will be minimal when seen through the lens of time and the future.

I'm sure there are many other arguments that can be made for keeping the blacksmith shop but the five noted above came to my mind initially. As I noted above, I served on the HPC for 11 years and I so appreciate and understand the significant commitment of your time and energy on behalf of our community. So at the end of the day you can put me in the camp of keeping the blacksmith shop.

Warmly and grateful for your service!

Sean

Subject: Petition to demolish Geneva's 1840s blacksmith shop

Hello:

This is my plea to you to uphold the good work of Geneva's Historical Preservation Commission (HPC) in its, and ideally your, denial of the request to demolish the 1840s Blacksmith shop.

I quote:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

The reasons to say no, I would offer, are:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine (why not? There was a court order. What happened here? Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure.). They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument (it's an eyes-sore, don't you know?) that also fell flat in that why weren't other vacant buildings (Capana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. The idea of "moving" of a historic structure sounds good, but it clearly robs the site and the building of their historic meaning. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr, but does anyone know or care? It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. And now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. Why do this until we know for sure what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval. It is on a floodplain, for example.

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner.

Dear Alderpersons,

The current demolition request for 4 E. State is going to be decided on January 12th, and I wanted to share my thoughts on the matter with you.

I realize you all are aware of the previous votes on this matter, as well as the legal decisions that have been issued in the last year or so. All of these votes/decisions were to maintain and protect the landmark status of the blacksmith structure.

While I agree with the past decisions, I also believe that the current petition presents a threat to the City's landmark ordinance.

1. The landmark status was granted without any time limit for redevelopment. The City has worked with the owner to determine a potential redevelopment project, and viable options were identified.
2. City Code 10-6-10 Part 13 C states that buildings and structures designated as a historic landmark shall be maintained and protected from demolition that results from neglect or undeterred deterioration of the exterior features or structural elements. This Duty to Maintain specifically requires the owner of record to repair any deficient element contributing to material deterioration of the structure. I see the refusal of the owner to properly protect the structure from the elements as evidence of this breach. The courts agreed.
3. To my knowledge, the owner has not presented a redevelopment plan since the conclusion of the charette project. A presentation of a plan would allow for the City and the owner to work through some of the potential obstacles to moving forward. One key point to work through would be the extent that TIF financing is available for this redevelopment. A key provision to our landmark ordinance is that demolition is considered only when all other redevelopment options have been exhausted. (CC 10-6-10 4) How can all options be considered exhausted when none have been presented? It seems like a decision to allow demolition at this point in time is rewarding the owner for not maintaining the structure, as well as for not presenting any type of redevelopment plan. Would the City allow this failure to maintain our historic, protected, structures in the Historic District to occur for years?
4. The landmark owner stated at the last HPC meeting that no redevelopment plan will be presented as long as the blacksmith shop remains. This statement indicates a complete refusal to even attempt to exhaust all redevelopment options. This intransigence should not be rewarded. The historic preservation and landmark ordinances of the City deserve support and compliance.

Finally, I do not believe that demolition of the blacksmith structure is in the best interest of the majority of residents. There are many ways to evaluate this question, and arguments for both sides of demolition could be considered valid.

Is the best interest of the majority of residents determined by the highest EAV for the property? The greatest sales tax generated? The largest draw of out-of-town visitors? The priceless value of the sightline of the riverfront and the downtown? The potential benefits of being the only Fox River town with a renovated pre-Civil War industrial structure that once was the life blood of most river

Demolition of the structure would eliminate some of the positive outcomes for residents that I mentioned above. I do not believe that the passage of time, and deterioration of the structure from neglect, should become the main drivers to evaluate the best interests of the majority of residents. Clearly, the majority of residents want the current status of the site to be improved. That does not mean that demolition is the only path forward to resolving this impasse.

I appreciate all of your efforts and work. You have a difficult, but clear, decision to make on Monday.

Thanks,

Bob Swanson

Alderman Reinecke,

To the members of the Geneva City Council,

Although we live in the 1st Ward, we're writing to all of you because this is an issue that involves all of the City of Geneva: the preservation and repurposing of the historic blacksmith shop on East State St.

When the developer acquired this property, they were quoted in the Daily Herald as recognizing the historic importance of this building and they stated their intention to preserve it. When they demolished the rest of the old Mill Race Inn they took great care to preserve the blacksmith shop which, at that time had been incorporated into the structure of the restaurant.

But then, some time later, they submitted an application to the City to demolish the building. The fact that they submitted their request shortly before Christmas, when people were likely to be distracted by the upcoming holidays, that they knew that the building had no historic preservation protection, and that such a demolition request is frequently issued promptly as a matter of course, one might surmise that they were confident that the request would be granted and the building demolished before preservationists could react.

Fortunately, a concerned citizen learned of the application and worked almost overnight to submit an application to Landmark the old building. That, of course, halted any action to demolish it. The building was then granted Landmark status by HPC and the City Council.

Since then the developer has made many attempts to get the City to revoke the landmark status of the building. In each case the City has firmly rejected each request. And now they are trying yet once again to get the City to reverse itself and once again the HPC has unanimously ejected their request.

We don't understand their reasoning for committing so much time and money over the years in their repeated attempts to get the City to change its mind, but at this point their submitting yet another request seems almost abusive.

This developer has successfully and creatively restored numerous historic buildings in Geneva. These include The Herrington Inn complex, The Riverside Banquets complex, and The Dodson Place complex. Compared with these developments the blacksmith shop is a very small project. In a city that prides itself on historic preservation as an important aspect of its "brand" it would be a shame for the City to cave and allow this building to be demolished now.

We ask you to once again deny the request to demolish this historic structure and to support an honest effort on the part of the developer to restore and repurpose it.

Most sincerely,

Colin C. and Glorianne S. Campbell

Hi Ald. Reinecke!

It was a pleasure meeting you last week at the HPC meeting. As our eyes and ears for our members about what is going on in the Tri-Cities, I am usually at every meeting and find them to be informative and much more interesting than reading meeting minutes.

I know that the owner of the blacksmith shop has filed an appeal of the HPC decision to deny their demolition request. Until I know differently, I expect the appeal to be presented to the City Council at its next meeting on January 5, 2026.

If you have some time next Monday or Tuesday (Dec. 29 or 30), I am available to discuss the issue and answer any questions you may have. I can host you here at our office at the 1850 Beith House in downtown St. Charles. In general, we are not as concerned about the blacksmith shop as we are about there being due process in accordance with the city's building and zoning ordinances.

If you would like to invite another alderperson to join us, I would welcome that.

Dear Mr. Reinecke,
Please find attached a letter supporting the Geneva City Council's reconsideration of its January 12, 2026 vote which failed to reverse the City's Historic Preservation Commission's decision to deny ShoDeen's request for a permit to demolish the former Alexander Blacksmith building.
As a resident and voting constituent of the City's Fifth Ward, I ask that you make and/or support a motion for the Council to reconsider this question at its next City Council Meeting.

Thanks for your note. You're raising important points and are asking all the right questions. I'd like to talk with Dave, and hope to talk with Chris in the near future. I'd also look forward to talking with Dave and Shodeen representatives. I'm interested in their perspectives and in working together to move through the impasse. There's a solution to be found.

Hi Mark,

Thank you for getting back to me. You are absolutely right that this is a solvable problem. Sometimes the City inadvertently gets in their own way by handcuffing the Aldermen.

Your understanding is also correct, you can only consider whether the HPC's vote was correct, but you are allowed to discuss anything that HPC was allowed to discuss at their meeting, whether or not they actually discussed it or not. Bringing the issue back for reconsideration would allow Aldermen time to reach out to Dave Rogers, Geneva's former Planning Commission Chairman and Wood Award winner, to ask him why in this instance he chose to write to HPC in support of demolition. They could reach out to Chris Aiston, Geneva's former Economic Development Director, and ask why he chose to write to HPC in support of demolition. The list of who's who in Geneva goes on with who reached out to HPC in support of demolition. There has to be a reason so many people that undeniably have Geneva's best interests at heart would come forward with their support.

The amendment that was voted on and passed last Monday should also allow Aldermen to ask what type of commemoration of the site would be acceptable to the City. The Shodeen Family has always been willing to discuss what can or cannot be saved and how best to commemorate the site, and the Aldermen have always been willing to listen. The interpretation of rules are making it difficult for you to do your job.

Bringing this issue up for a re-vote will give everyone time to ask a few more questions and keep the discussion going. At this time I'm not asking you to change you vote (but I will in time), I'm just asking you not to let the issue die right now. Please make the motion for reconsideration. There is absolutely no downside to at least ask.

Dear Joe,

Thank you so much for your thoughtful note regarding last night's vote on the referendum. I'm always open to more discussion and to considering alternative ways of resolving issues. I'll share this with other members of the City Council to see if there is an interest in revisiting the vote. My understanding is that the issues you bring up, while important, would not have been appropriate to raise at this week's meeting. By statute, we could only consider the question of whether the HPC's vote was incorrect, and decide this based on one issue--Does demolition of the site serve the "best interests" of the "majority of the community?" Beyond this, the testimony had to be in the record of the HPC prior to their last vote. We were limited, then, in the questions we could ask and the information we could use to make a decision. That said, I believe there is a path forward that will enable development on the site to begin. I would be open to talking with the developers and members of the City Council about strategies that might be of help in accomplishing this. My approach is collaborative. This is a solvable problem.

Thank you again for your suggestion. I greatly appreciate it.

Aldermen Malecki and Reinecke,

The City Code allows for any alderman from the prevailing side to ask for a re-vote. I am hoping you would consider making that motion and seconding it at the next meeting. I believe too much misinformation has worked its way into discussions.

First as an introduction. I have been a resident of Geneva for over 40 years and for fifteen years I attended, in person, every Committee of the Whole and City Council meeting. After COVID I've enjoyed the luxury of watching online from my couch. With the exception of the mayor, no one has attended or watched more meetings than I have. I point this out so you know this isn't a single issue complaint from an activist, it is a well informed opinion of someone who has worked to stay informed on the facts and that cares about Geneva.

Here are a few of my comments:

- This property is not in the Historic District. When the Shodeen's purchased the property, they could have applied for a demo permit and received it before anyone had a chance to comment. Instead, because they knew that there may be remnants of an historic structure inside the building they decided, at great expense to themselves, to expose the structure for inspection. After inspection they decided saving the structure "as is" was not practical. It was only then that a group of people moved to have the site landmarked behind their back. That never should have been allowed to happen. It was certainly an instance of "No good deed goes unpunished".
- It's claimed that the Shodeen's are committing "Demolition by Neglect". This is nonsense. The building is in the same shape that it was in when it was originally exposed.
- It's being ignored that the structure sits in a flood plain. Making use of the structure "as is" and where it is located would be a cost prohibitive and impractical endeavor.
- Opponents to demolition like to refer to it as the Blacksmith Shop. It's had many uses over the years, but they chose to call it that for impact. I believe it was also the site of bathrooms for the Mill Race Inn at one time.
- The Shodeen's have continually showed strong support of Historic Preservation. Geneva on the Dam, their corporate offices on First Street, The Herrington, The Creamery, Dodson Place are all impressive examples of their cooperation. But because in this instance they don't agree with saving the structure as is, they are made to be villains.
- It is often repeated "Show us a plan on how you can incorporate the structure and demolition will be approved". How many tens of thousands of dollars in drawings would have to be presented to get this done? It's like saying I don't know what I want from you, but I'll know when I see it. What they are offering is what you want. They have always been willing to incorporate or pay homage to the history if given the chance.
- Many letters and emails were sent to HPC in support of saving the structure, but more than half were not from Geneva residents. Three times that amount were sent supporting demolition. Those supporting demolition include a former Planning Commissioner, the former Chairman of the Planning Commission, a former Alderman, the former Economic Development Director of Geneva, two Wood Award winners, etc. These are not activists with a single propose, these are residents that care about Geneva.
- Please consider bringing this back up for additional discussion. Asking for a re-vote doesn't mean you have changed your mind. It only means you are willing to listen.

I was on the edge of my seat during the vote. Devastated that my own 1st Ward aldermen voted against the will of the people they represent and the safety of my family.

I think it's more likely we'll have some progress after the next election cycle. And we'll keep getting honked at while walking our stroller in traffic until then. I would love for you to prove me wrong.

Dear Ed,

Thanks so much. Let's see what can be done with sidewalks. If it's a state road, it complicates what the city can do. As regards the development project, the idea of incorporating elements/walls of the old Blacksmith Shop into the facade of a new building makes sense. I suspect there would be support for this. Were you planning on presenting this next Monday?

Thanks Mark!

Sidewalks on Bennett are part of the 2012 Master Plan, but the issue is complicated by the fact that Bennett St is controlled by IDOT. I have spoken with State Rep Matt Hanson and Jonathan E. Karabowicz (IDOT traffic engineer for our district), and they will require a sidewalk installed by the developers of the Mill Race Inn parcel.

Is a conditional demolition permit a thing? Like "you can demo the building, but you must reuse > 70% of the stones as a facade for the new one"? I bet you'd get a proposal if the developers had some parameters to work within!

You're quite right...a sidewalk would be awesome. Let me look into this. I know there is a great deal of work being done as part of the East Side development project. New sidewalks may already be part of that project. I'm happy to facilitate this. As for public opinion on Mill Race, your data are sensible, perhaps the best available. I appreciate your work on this. We'd all like to see development move forward on the lot. To date, we've not received a proposal from the owners. I've seen preliminary renderings of possible commercial buildings using the existing Blacksmith Shop. They're nice, but haven't been presented to the City as a formal proposal. There's nothing for us to discuss or approve.

Hi Mark,

Agreed on representativeness—this isn't a truly random sample, and I tried to note the main sources of bias in the write-up. Even with those limitations, I believe it's the best compilation of public input to date, and I'd genuinely welcome additional data collection and analysis!

I also agree with your point about approaching the Mill Race parcel thoughtfully. Where I differ is on extending time to deliberate. We're eight years in, and the continued delay has real day-to-day safety impacts. My family and I walk the un-sidewalked stretch of Bennett St multiple times a day with our 1 and 3 year old children. Last month, a truck came off the road and struck a telephone pole. If this continues to drag, I worry it won't just be a near-miss.

Dear Ed,

Thank you so much. I appreciate it. I didn't think of using AI for the task. I was old-school — I read each letter individually, taking notes on it. To be sure, the sample size is adequate. A lot of people have been thinking about this. As regards statistics, I'd be interested in knowing the Effect Size and confidence intervals, not simply the power. In reading the notes and letters, I came away wondering about the representativeness, reliability, and validity of some of the material. Narrative is so important. My sense, in looking at data, is that research rarely resolves conceptual issues; rather, it simply sharpens the swords of the combatants. We want to draw conclusions we can have confidence in, which can be tricky when emotions are high. That said, several things are clear--this has become a contentious issue, and many (myself included) are frustrated by delays in developing the space. Beyond this, the Mill Race parcel offers a singularly valuable opportunity for the city. There's an opportunity here to develop something remarkable, something which will be valued for generations. We should approach this thoughtfully. Time put against clarifying issues and values, external pressures and contingencies, as well as the strengths and limitations of alternative solutions, invariably pays dividends in the long run.

Thank you again for your considered approach to this issue. I greatly appreciate the time, effort, and creativity you've put against this. Please feel free to reach out any time. Happy New Year to you...

Alderman Reinecke,

The Historic Preservation Commission claimed (Dec 16, 2025) they cannot evaluate public opinion as to whether the retention of this building, structure, object, improvement, or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community. Such data is readily available.

- After reviewing 343 public commenters, 61% support demolition or partial reuse compared to 39% who support preservation
- This sample can be projected to Geneva's 21,000 population with 95% confidence and a 5% margin of error

Dear Mr. Reinecke,

Please find attached a letter supporting the Geneva City Council's reconsideration of its January 12, 2026 vote which failed to reverse the City's Historic Preservation Commission's decision to deny ShoDeen's request for a permit to demolish the former Alexander Blacksmith building.

As a resident and voting constituent of the City's Fifth Ward, I ask that you make and/or support a motion for the Council to reconsider this question at its next City Council Meeting.

Dear Ed,

Thanks so much. Let's see what can be done with sidewalks. If it's a state road, it complicates what the city can do. As regards the development project, the idea of incorporating elements/walls of the old Blacksmith Shop into the facade of a new building makes sense. I suspect there would be support for this. Were you planning on presenting this next Monday?

Thanks Mark!

Sidewalks on Bennett are part of the 2012 Master Plan, but the issue is complicated by the fact that Bennett St is controlled by IDOT. I have spoken with State Rep Matt Hanson and Jonathan E. Karabowicz (IDOT traffic engineer for our district), and they will require a sidewalk installed by the developers of the Mill Race Inn parcel.

Is a conditional demolition permit a thing? Like "you can demo the building, but you must reuse > 70% of the stones as a facade for the new one"? I bet you'd get a proposal if the developers had some parameters to work within!

You're quite right...a sidewalk would be awesome. Let me look into this. I know there is a great deal of work being done as part of the East Side development project. New sidewalks may already be part of that project. I'm happy to facilitate this. As for public opinion on Mill Race, your data are sensible, perhaps the best available. I appreciate your work on this. We'd all like to see development move forward on the lot. To date, we've not received a proposal from the owners. I've seen preliminary renderings of possible commercial buildings using the existing Blacksmith Shop. They're nice, but haven't been presented to the City as a formal proposal. There's nothing for us to discuss or approve.

Hi Mark,

Agreed on representativeness—this isn't a truly random sample, and I tried to note the main sources of bias in the write-up. Even with those limitations, I believe it's the best compilation of public input to date, and I'd genuinely welcome additional data collection and analysis!

I also agree with your point about approaching the Mill Race parcel thoughtfully. Where I differ is on extending time to deliberate. We're eight years in, and the continued delay has real day-to-day safety impacts. My family and I walk the un-sidewalked stretch of Bennett St multiple times a day with our 1 and 3 year old children. Last month, a truck came off the road and struck a telephone pole. If this continues to drag, I worry it won't just be a near-miss.

Alderman Reinecke,

The Historic Preservation Commission claimed (Dec 16, 2025) they cannot evaluate public opinion as to whether the retention of this building, structure, object, improvement, or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community. Such data is readily available.

- After reviewing 343 public commenters, 61% support demolition or partial reuse compared to 39% who support preservation
- This sample can be projected to Geneva's 21,000 population with 95% confidence and a 5% margin of error

<Screenshot 2025-12-26 at 11.45.12?PM.png>

Full analysis and source material attached. Welcome to share and reference publicly.

I am on the side of progress, and I hope this data encourages you to represent your community with a vote for demolition and partial reuse on January 12.

Dear Jim,

Thank you very much for your note and for your recommendation. Your comment on the role of elected officials--Representative or leader--is an interesting one. It's something anyone elected to office takes seriously. John Kennedy wrote about this in the opening chapter of Profiles in Courage. The best one can do is to be open to the voices you hear, attempt to discern the central issues, look for points of contact and opportunities for collaboration, and vote honestly. I try to take both the broad and the long view--What truly is in the best interests of Geneva? This is solvable. We should be able to find a solution and move forward with development on the site.

Thank you again for your note. I greatly appreciate it.

*****

I am asking you both, as the rules allow, to request a motion for reconsideration of your vote at your next meeting regarding last night's vote on the Mill Race Inn demolition request. As a past three term member of the Geneva City Council and strong supporter of reasonable historic preservation I hope you consider this request. I participated in the year long discussion of our current HP ordinance and while objecting to the owner consent issue, still voted to approve the ordinance. As a whole it is excellent and I did not wish to throw the baby out with the bath water.

I won't rehash the already exhaustive discussion on the pro and con issues. However, I believe there are 2 strong arguments to be made for your reconsideration.

First is the fact that the sitting majority of Council members who represent the majority of people in Geneva voted for conditional redevelopment/demolition. But for the super majority requirement based on the HPC unanimous vote, the redevelopment would proceed. If conditional demolition and redevelopment did not have such wide support from the council I would not be writing to you.

Second, I believe you are not elected leaders but rather our elected representatives. To borrow from Alderperson Reinecke's theme last night, I think there are some things we can all agree upon. Foremost, if the question was put to the voters in a referendum we would no doubt overwhelmingly support the conditional demolition and redevelopment of the property. I understand that your responsibilities on the council exceed simply polling your constituents. However, if you are going to break from them on such an important issue then you should be 100% confident in your position. If not, I think it is best to go with the collective wisdom and support your constituents.

The reality is that you may feel 49% in favor of an issue but since you vote in a whole number you must cast your vote the other way. It is what makes your position challenging at times. So my request again is that in light of the above I respectfully ask you to reconsider your vote and allow the conditional demolition and redevelopment of the Mill Race Inn property.

Thank you for your service and please contact me if you wish to discuss further

Dear Ed,

Thank you very much for your note and for your analysis of the data. I appreciate it. If I could ask, what statistic did you use? I had the chance to read each of the letters (it took an evening), and came away with several questions. The concept of "Best Interest of the Community" and how it is operationalized is complex. No doubt there are a range of opinions as to how this guideline should be interpreted. I'm looking forward to the meeting and to hearing from proponents of both perspectives. Thank you again for your letter and for taking the time to run the calculation.

Alderman Reinecke,

The Historic Preservation Commission claimed (Dec 16, 2025) they cannot evaluate public opinion as to whether the retention of this building, structure, object, improvement, or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community. Such data is readily available.

- After reviewing 343 public commenters, 61% support demolition or partial reuse compared to 39% who support preservation
- This sample can be projected to Geneva's 21,000 population with 95% confidence and a 5% margin of error

Full analysis and source material attached. Welcome to share and reference publicly.

I am on the side of progress, and I hope this data encourages you to represent your community with a vote for demolition and partial reuse on January 12.

Dear Lee,

Thank you so much for your thoughtful note in support of preserving the Blacksmith Shop. I greatly appreciate your perspectives on this issue. You raise a number of excellent questions regarding what constitutes the "best interest" of the community, how one determines a community's views, and the absence of an alternative plan for evaluation. All give us pause.

Thank you again.

Hello:

This is my plea to you to uphold the good work of Geneva's Historical Preservation Commission (HPC) in its, and ideally your, denial of the request to demolish the 1840s Blacksmith shop.

I quote:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

The reasons to say no, I would offer, are:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine (why not? There was a court order. What happened here? Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure.). They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument (it's an eyes-sore, don't you know?) that also fell flat in that why weren't other vacant buildings (Capana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.
4. The idea of "moving" of a historic structure sounds good, but it clearly robs the site and the building of their historic meaning. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr, but does anyone know or care? It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. And now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. Why do this until we know for sure what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval. It is on a floodplain, for example.

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner.

Thank you,

Hello,

I am contacting you to encourage you to say no to the most recent petition from the Shodeen group to demolish the Blacksmith Shop on the site of the previous Mill Race Inn property. The Historical Preservation Committee has denied this request on multiple occasions. I implore to honor their sound reasoning for this and uphold their decision. In a recent HPC meeting, the following was stated:

"In its arguments in front of the HPC, the owner noted that a large number of letters supporting demolition had been submitted to the HPC and therefore met criterion four in 10-6-10-B of the city code, "The retention of a building, structure, object, improvement or site is not in the best interest of the majority of the community." Nothing materially had changed in the demolition request since the owner's last request in 2023, according to the HPC, other than the growing fine the owner is incurring for violating Geneva's building maintenance code. Furthermore, the HPC determined it was not the best body to determine what is in the best interest of the community. For these reasons, the HPC denied the demolition request."

Shodeen shot down in showdown: Judge affirms Geneva ruling on 1840s blac...
Kane County Circuit Judge Elizabeth Flood ruled this week that Geneva developer Shodeen Group cannot evade the c...

There are many reasons to uphold the HPC decision. In support of them, I provide the following rationale:

1. The good work of the HBC makes it clear that the Shodden/Patzelt have not been honest with Geneva for years. The company has changed, plans have been changed, they have made no effort to pay their $300K fine, even though there is a court order to do so. I am confused as to why a public entity is allowed to disregard the law and why the local governing body allows this. Collected fines could be used to repair/save the structure. They made it clear at the last HBC meeting that they would not fix the building or pay the fines, as ordered. It seems clear their strategy is to win by petition or until the building falls down. Ignoring the law will pay off and set a clear and dangerous precedent.
2. The claim that the "majority of the community" sees the structure as needing to go was based on zero evidence. None could be produced at the HBC meeting. When asked about the "eye-sore" argument, that also fell flat as why weren't other vacant buildings (Campana, Little Owl) being demolished? This was an empty argument (although clearly some people would see it demolished.).
3. Why destroy this building/site when there is no clear offer of a plan for what will replace it? Will it come to sit vacant like the lot on the corner of Wilson and Washington in Batavia? The lot that once held a historic church and that was demolished for what? Bad or no planning dictates failure.

4. Historical structures having meaning in place. The historic house removed to make way for the "Roosevelt" on 38 is now a residence over on E. Side Dr. It has lost all meaning as a historical structure. Now the space and area it once occupied are ahistorical. Demolition of the Shop will accomplish the demolition of the area as a historical area, period. This, it seems, was not part of that original plan - Shodden himself (quoted in the Tribune in 2014) was supposedly dedicated to working with/preserving historical sites.
5. The Shodeen/Patzelt group has not pursued any available funding from historical societies. There are grants available from a number of resources that have been mentioned to this group at a previous HPC meeting by representatives from the state historical entities. These suggestions and resources have been blatantly ignored.
6. Why destroy a historical building and site if we have no idea what will replace it and if those plans will even move forward with IL State approval? It is on a floodplain, would require allowances for ingress and egress for two state highways, and no environmental impact study has been completed. Until these items are completed, why is a "possible construction project" even being considered?

I have sat through most of the petitions and heard arguments for and against. I cannot see how Shodden/Patzelt's most recent series of arguments have changed anything. I strongly encourage you, therefore, to say no to the demolition of this building without further effort from the owner. Geneva claims to be a historical community. It is time to keep history from being destroyed.

Respectfully,
Erica Eysturlid

Dear Joe,

Thank you so much for your thoughtful note regarding last night's vote on the referendum. I'm always open to more discussion and to considering alternative ways of resolving issues. I'll share this with other members of the City Council to see if there is an interest in revisiting the vote. My understanding is that the issues you bring up, while important, would not have been appropriate to raise at this week's meeting. By statute, we could only consider the question of whether the HPC's vote was incorrect, and decide this based on one issue--Does demolition of the site serve the "best interests" of the "majority of the community?" Beyond this, the testimony had to be in the record of the HPC prior to their last vote. We were limited, then, in the questions we could ask and the information we could use to make a decision. That said, I believe there is a path forward that will enable development on the site to begin. I would be open to talking with the developers and members of the City Council about strategies that might be of help in accomplishing this. My approach is collaborative. This is a solvable problem.

Thank you again for your suggestion. I greatly appreciate it.

Very best to you,

Mark Reinecke

Aldermen Malecki and Reinecke,

The City Code allows for any alderman from the prevailing side to ask for a re-vote. I am hoping you would consider making that motion and seconding it at the next meeting. I believe too much misinformation has worked its way into discussions.

First as an introduction. I have been a resident of Geneva for over 40 years and for fifteen years I attended, in person, every Committee of the Whole and City Council meeting. After COVID I've enjoyed the luxury of watching online from my couch. With the exception of the mayor, no one has attended or watched more meetings than I have. I point this out so you know this isn't a single issue complaint from an activist, it is a well informed opinion of someone who has worked to stay informed on the facts and that cares about Geneva.

Here are a few of my comments:

- This property is not in the Historic District. When the Shodeen's purchased the property, they could have applied for a demo permit and received it before anyone had a chance to comment. Instead, because they knew that there may be remnants of an historic structure inside the building they decided, at great expense to themselves, to expose the structure for inspection. After inspection they decided saving the structure "as is" was not practical. It was only then that a group of people moved to have the site landmarked behind their back. That never should have been allowed to happen. It was certainly an instance of "No good deed goes unpunished".
- It's claimed that the Shodeen's are committing "Demolition by Neglect". This is nonsense. The building is in the same shape that it was in when it was originally exposed.
- It's being ignored that the structure sits in a flood plain. Making use of the structure "as is" and where it is located would be a cost prohibitive and impractical endeavor.
- Opponents to demolition like to refer to it as the Blacksmith Shop. It's had many uses over the years, but they chose to call it that for impact. I believe it was also the site of bathrooms for the Mill Race Inn at one time.
- The Shodeen's have continually showed strong support of Historic Preservation. Geneva on the Dam, their corporate offices on First Street, The Herrington, The Creamery, Dodson Place are all impressive examples of their cooperation. But because in this instance they don't agree with saving the structure as is, they are made to be villains.
- It is often repeated "Show us a plan on how you can incorporate the structure and demolition will be approved". How many tens of thousands of dollars in drawings would have to be presented to get this done? It's like saying I don't know what I want from you, but I'll know when I see it. What they are offering is what you want. They have always been willing to incorporate or pay homage to the history if given the chance.
- Many letters and emails were sent to HPC in support of saving the structure, but more than half were not from Geneva residents. Three times that amount were sent supporting demolition. Those supporting demolition include a former Planning Commissioner, the former Chairman of the Planning Commission, a former Alderman, the former Economic Development Director of Geneva, two Wood Award winners, etc. These are not activists with a single propose, these are residents that care about Geneva.
- Please consider bringing this back up for additional discussion. Asking for a re-vote doesn't mean you have changed your mind. It only means you are willing to listen.

Joe

Mrs. Bowring and Mr. Malecki,

I hope the day and New Year find you both well! As a constituent of the Ward 1, I am reaching out to you both as you prepare to consider the demolition and removal of the Blacksmith Shop this coming Monday. I'll not occupy a lot of your time as I know you both are likely receiving a great deal of feedback from the public on this issue. Just a quick background. My wife Janet and I have been residents at 427 Anderson Boulevard since 1999 where we raised a son (Jonah) and daughter (Sarah) both terrific kids (yikes...now adults!) who were byproducts of the Geneva public school system. I am an architect with a residential practice that has been blessed with many projects in Geneva's historic district. As well I've been teaching architecture at Judson University since 2008. Below are a few points to consider as your mull over your decision.

1) The demolition and permanent removal of the structure will greatly undermine the authority and purpose of the Historic Preservation Commission, a group that has been a key partner in the success of our downtown business district and residential district. I could go on and on with this point but I'll only note that having been a member of the HPC for 11 years (2000-2011) we had frequent incursions with the Shodeen organization as they pursued the removal the East View house, the Dodson mansion (once a hospital) and the many other structures. Shodeen now highlights the Dodson mansion as part of the Dodson Place retail development. The East View house is now the grande dame of homes along Route 31...hard to imagine them not there now. Can Shodeen work with and transform historic structures...you betcha they can. Is it easier to tear them down and erase their memory from our community, I guess this must be the case since they wish to do this with the blacksmith shop, but it's an odd argument to make in light of their successes. Certainly we can't predict the future, it seems likely though, that if Shodeen is given the authority to remove the blacksmith shop, there will inevitably be other applicants in the future requesting a similar fate for other historic structures in our community.

2) The property was purchased knowing full well that this structure was something important and would likely present the Shodeen organization with community interest and push back if they decided to remove the structure, yet little to no effort was made to placate the public that was and has been concerned about this. The organization it seems has done little to acknowledge the significance of the structure and even less as far as giving creative consideration for its reuse. It's clear they can do it as seen in their work with the Harrington Inn, Riverside Receptions and others throughout the Fox Valley.

3) It seems that there has been little to no compromise by Shodeen in relation to the repurposing of the blacksmith shop. The argument that was initially set forward was an issue of the cost of reusing the structure. The argument now has shifted to the structure being a public nuisance, a pretty easy argument to make when it's intentionally left unprotected and further compromised. It's been noted by both sides that the property is "unsightly", yet who currently owns the property? Who has ignored legal and financial consequences?...well you get the gist.

4) There aren't many artifacts like this one in our City, for that matter in the Fox Valley. It's easy to lose sight of this one as we hurdle toward being a City that has great potential and building it out to that potential will push structures like this into oblivion. Obviously once it's gone, it's gone and it's really our one chance to protect it.

5) Geneva has become and will likely even more so become a significant player in attracting residential and business interest in the years to come. As far as cities along the Fox River, trying to be objective about this, Geneva's downtown is and will be the most desirable location for both homeowners and businesses along the Fox River. That said, the long term financial upside for this site is enormous. Our City leadership should leverage this with the Shodeen organization. I do understand that this site is a challenging one to build on, but the folks at Shodeen purchased it knowing this. I believe that this parcel will be a significant generator of income for the Shodeen organization so money spent now for the restoration or repurposing of the blacksmith shop will be minimal when seen through the lens of time and the future.

I'm sure there are many other arguments that can be made for keeping the blacksmith shop but the five noted above came to my mind initially. As I noted above, I served on the HPC for 11 years and I so appreciate and understand the significant commitment of your time and energy on behalf of our community. So at the end of the day you can put me in the camp of keeping the blacksmith shop.

Warmly and grateful for your service!

I am an architect with a residential practice that has been blessed with many projects in Geneva's historic district. As well I've been teaching architecture at Judson University since 2008. Below are a few points to consider as your mull over your decision.

1) The demolition and permanent removal of the structure will greatly undermine the authority and purpose of the Historic Preservation Commission, a group that has been a key partner in the success of our downtown business district and residential district. I could go on and on with this point but I'll only note that having been a member of the HPC for 11 years (2000-2011) we had frequent incursions with the Shodeen organization as they pursued the removal the East View house, the Dodson mansion (once a hospital) and the many other structures. Shodeen now highlights the Dodson mansion as part of the Dodson Place retail development. The East View house is now the grande dame of homes along Route 31...hard to imagine them not there now. Can Shodeen work with and transform historic structures...you betcha they can. Is it easier to tear them down and erase their memory from our community, I guess this must be the case since they wish to do this with the blacksmith shop, but it's an odd argument to make in light of their successes. Certainly we can't predict the future, it seems likely though, that if Shodeen is given the authority to remove the blacksmith shop, there will inevitably be other applicants in the future requesting a similar fate for other historic structures in our community.

2) The property was purchased knowing full well that this structure was something important and would likely present the Shodeen organization with community interest and push back if they decided to remove the structure, yet little to no effort was made to placate the public that was and has been concerned about this. The organization it seems has done little to acknowledge the significance of the structure and even less as far as giving creative consideration for its reuse. It's clear they can do it as seen in their work with the Harrington Inn, Riverside Receptions and others throughout the Fox Valley.

3) It seems that there has been little to no compromise by Shodeen in relation to the repurposing of the blacksmith shop. The argument that was initially set forward was an issue of the cost of reusing the structure. The argument now has shifted to the structure being a public nuisance, a pretty easy argument to make when it's intentionally left unprotected and further compromised. It's been noted by both sides that the property is "unsightly", yet who currently owns the property? Who has ignored legal and financial consequences?...well you get the gist.

4) There aren't many artifacts like this one in our City, for that matter in the Fox Valley. It's easy to lose sight of this one as we hurdle toward being a City that has great potential and building it out to that potential will push structures like this into oblivion. Obviously once it's gone, it's gone and it's really our one chance to protect it.

5) Geneva has become and will likely even more so become a significant player in attracting residential and business interest in the years to come. As far as cities along the Fox River, trying to be objective about this, Geneva's downtown is and will be the most desirable location for both homeowners and businesses along the Fox River. That said, the long term financial upside for this site is enormous. Our City leadership should leverage this with the Shodeen organization. I do understand that this site is a challenging one to build on, but the folks at Shodeen purchased it knowing this. I believe that this parcel will be a significant generator of income for the Shodeen organization so money spent now for the restoration or repurposing of the blacksmith shop will be minimal when seen through the lens of time and the future.

I'm sure there are many other arguments that can be made for keeping the blacksmith shop but the five noted above came to my mind initially. As I noted above, I served on the HPC for 11 years and I so appreciate and understand the significant commitment of your time and energy on behalf of our community. So at the end of the day you can put me in the camp of keeping the blacksmith shop.

Warmly and grateful for your service!

Dear Bob,

Thank you for your thoughtful comments on the Backsmith Shop issue. I greatly appreciate your insights on this issue. Perhaps you'll be able to join us on Monday. I think your views would be greatly appreciated by your colleagues. Unfortunately, public comment comes after the vote. Perhaps we could talk this week end.

Thanks again,

Dear Alderpersons,

The current demolition request for 4 E. State is going to be decided on January 12th, and I wanted to share my thoughts on the matter with you.

I realize you all are aware of the previous votes on this matter, as well as the legal decisions that have been issued in the last year or so. All of these votes/decisions were to maintain and protect the landmark status of the blacksmith structure.

While I agree with the past decisions, I also believe that the current petition presents a threat to the City's landmark ordinance.

1. The landmark status was granted without any time limit for redevelopment. The City has worked with the owner to determine a potential redevelopment project, and viable options were identified.
2. City Code 10-6-10 Part 13 C states that buildings and structures designated as a historic landmark shall be maintained and protected from demolition that results from neglect or undeterred deterioration of the exterior features or structural elements. This Duty to Maintain specifically requires the owner of record to repair any deficient element contributing to material deterioration of the structure. I see the refusal of the owner to properly protect the structure from the elements as evidence of this breach. The courts agreed.
3. To my knowledge, the owner has not presented a redevelopment plan since the conclusion of the charette project. A presentation of a plan would allow for the City and the owner to work through some of the potential obstacles to moving forward. One key point to work through would be the extent that TIF financing is available for this redevelopment. A key provision to our landmark ordinance is that demolition is considered only when all other redevelopment options have been exhausted. (CC 10-6-10 4) How can all options be considered exhausted when none have been presented? It seems like a decision to allow demolition at this point in time is rewarding the owner for not maintaining the structure, as well as for not presenting any type of redevelopment plan. Would the City allow this failure to maintain our historic, protected, structures in the Historic District to occur for years?
4. The landmark owner stated at the last HPC meeting that no redevelopment plan will be presented as long as the blacksmith shop remains. This statement indicates a complete refusal to even attempt to exhaust all redevelopment options. This intransigence should not be rewarded. The historic preservation and landmark ordinances of the City deserve support and compliance.

Finally, I do not believe that demolition of the blacksmith structure is in the best interest of the majority of residents. There are many ways to evaluate this question, and arguments for both sides of demolition could be considered valid.

Is the best interest of the majority of residents determined by the highest EAV for the property? The greatest sales tax generated? The largest draw of out-of-town visitors? The priceless value of the sightline of the riverfront and the downtown? The potential benefits of being the only Fox River town with a renovated pre-Civil War industrial structure that once was the life blood of most river towns?

Demolition of the structure would eliminate some of the positive outcomes for residents that I mentioned above. I do not believe that the passage of time, and deterioration of the structure from neglect, should become the main drivers to evaluate the best interests of the majority of residents. Clearly, the majority of residents want the current status of the site to be improved. That does not mean that demolition is the only path forward to resolving this impasse.

I appreciate all of your efforts and work. You have a difficult, but clear, decision to make on Monday.

Thanks,

Dear Colin and Glorianne,

Thank you for your thoughtful note in support of preserving the Mill Race Blacksmith Shop. I appreciate it. In investigating this issue, I've learned that approximately 100 18th and 19th-century blacksmith shops have been preserved in the United States and Canada. They have been put to a range of uses--from shops and restaurants to museums and public spaces. Many are on the National Register of Historic Places. For now, I'm interested in learning how the developers would like to proceed. I'm hopeful a plan can be developed that both preserves our heritage and enhances a wonderful riverfront property. Thank you again for your note.

Very best to you,

Mark

Alderman Reinecke,

To the members of the Geneva City Council,

Although we live in the 1st Ward, we're writing to all of you because this is an issue that involves all of the City of Geneva: the preservation and repurposing of the historic blacksmith shop on East State St.

When the developer acquired this property, they were quoted in the Daily Herald as recognizing the historic importance of this building and they stated their intention to preserve it. When they demolished the rest of the old Mill Race Inn they took great care to preserve the blacksmith shop which, at that time had been incorporated into the structure of the restaurant.

But then, some time later, they submitted an application to the City to demolish the building. The fact that they submitted their request shortly before Christmas, when people were likely to be distracted by the upcoming holidays, that they knew that the building had no historic preservation protection, and that such a demolition request is frequently issued promptly as a matter of course, one might surmise that they were confident that the request would be granted and the building demolished before preservationists could react.

Fortunately, a concerned citizen learned of the application and worked almost overnight to submit an application to Landmark the old building. That, of course, halted any action to demolish it. The building was then granted Landmark status by HPC and the City Council.

Since then the developer has made many attempts to get the City to revoke the landmark status of the building. In each case the City has firmly rejected each request. And now they are trying yet once again to get the City to reverse itself and once again the HPC has unanimously ejected their request.

We don't understand their reasoning for committing so much time and money over the years in their repeated attempts to get the City to change it's mind, but at this point their submitting yet another request seems almost abusive.

This developer has successfully and creatively restored numerous historic buildings in Geneva. These include The Herrington Inn complex, The Riverside Banquets complex, and The Dodson Place complex. Compared with these developments the blacksmith shop is a very small project. In a city that prides itself on historic preservation as an important aspect of its "brand" it would be a shame for the City to cave and allow this building to be demolished now.

We ask you to once again deny the request to demolish this historic structure and to support an honest effort on the part of the developer to restore and repurpose it.

Most sincerely,

Colin C. and Glorianne S. Campbell

Chad,

We have gotten in contact with TJ and will continue to communicate with him about the roof, so that should hopefully take that load off your plate. It sounds like the work might not be as extreme as we originally thought, which is good news.

In terms of the side porch, our primary goal is to have a drawing set by January 6, the due date for materials for the January meeting. Completing this permit application and review will let our Code Compliance Officer know that the construction is upcoming and relieve code violation concerns. At minimum, she would need to see a letter from a design professional confirming the current structural stability. For efficiency's sake, I would recommend just submitting everything at once, as we have described previously, in order to get your project moving. In the case that we don't see documentation from a design professional or the drawings required for permit review by the January date, she will need to begin issuing advisory notices on the code concerns. She is copied on this email and can answer any questions you have on the code compliance process.

As always, happy to review any in progress drawings you have. Let me know if you need the drawing and documentation list again or if you have any additional questions on that. I know you're super busy right now, but I'm happy to suggest edits and have them waiting for you in your inbox after the holiday rush.

A drawing was forwarded to Brian. I have not heard back. I told TJ to call whoever he dealt with on my neighbors house. I think the plan is to stabilize the roof as they currently have a jack under a 4x4 holding the peak up. And I'd like gutters sooner than later. No one told me that discovery would result in a 2 month halt mid-winter or I wouldn't have kicked this off.

Please provide how you'd like the side porch stabilized in the interim. If it's violating code from your last email, I don't see it being okay that way until when they finish it next spring. I originally ordered materials for it right after the in-person meeting I had with Brian and Jackie last year and was told it would be administratively approved, similar to the front steps. Those materials are now likely no good (my fault I should have stored them, busy busy). So I'm not doing anything until it's approved, above 60 and scheduled.

Please provide TJ guidance going forward. This is my last work week before shutdown and I have a lot going on. And I'll have to find someone to talk to the HPC on 501 South Streets behalf..

The work outside the pre-existing permit goes beyond normal repair and maintenance, so we just need to see the same permit materials we would request from anyone doing the work, whether the property is in the district or not. Drawings the Building Department typically needs to see would include a plan and section of the structure of the reconstructed roof, not just the exterior shell. I attached some images that I just pulled from the internet which might be good visual examples for that. These don't line up exactly with what's going on in your garage but I know it can be helpful to see images instead of written descriptions. I CC'ed him on this email so he's up to date and can keep you apprised of what the Building Department would be looking for.

That will minimize your need for HPC meetings and keep both projects in motion. Since TJ is working on the roof, you also have to option of speaking to him as your contractor to get those drawings needed for a roof reconstruction and attend the HPC meeting as your representative. The concern of the HPC in this case would be confirming that any changes would be structurally sound and visually the same, while retaining as much historic material as possible.

I basically give up regarding the HPC and feel people should be give more obvious disclosures regarding this nutty process prior to purchasing a home in the district. I need administrative approval to proceed fixing the roof like-for-like or I'm not sure how to proceed. I can't start and then stop as It's winter and the materials were already purchased and are sitting outside. Please let me know how to proceed. I'm not making a drawing more complex than a simple pencil drawing showing the pitch and the hip on front.

You can ask TJ about that. They were doing the roof on the house a few weeks back and the roofer wouldn't do the garage as they said it was too damaged to touch so TJ had someone come to fix the broken rafters(or whatever the term is) and then we have been hit with snow over an over. I'm sort of stuck until they can get to it. He would have all the info, he has the permit as well so you should have his number. Tell him I'd like my garage back soon :)

If there is any additional work you're interested in getting started, feel free to reach out and we can get that permitting process going. I am happy to meet you on site to get some photographs of the material you retained from the old porch, which would also be greatly helpful for the HPC review. I also copied the list of materials for a future HPC review so you didn't have to go searching for it!

1. Plan

1. Dimensioned drawing of subfloor which you have constructed, and any adjustments you might plan to make before starting the rest of construction
2. Material descriptions in labels

2. Elevations

1. Dimensioned drawing of planned reconstruction mimicking the earlier porch, including
  1. Skirting around subfloor
  2. Decking
  3. 4"x4" verticals
  4. 8"x8" verticals
    1. Recommend a detail, either in a separate drawing or in main elevation if graphically legible, including dimensions and locations of original fluting and base
  5. Decorative trim
  6. Horizontal crossbars across screens
  7. Connection to second floor
2. Material descriptions of historic materials vs. proposed in labels

2. Additional Photographs

1. Retained trim
2. Retained 8"x8" columns

Thank you,

Emily Stood

Pete,

FYI, let's chat after Turkey Time. FGM has been working to put us in touch with a commercial lighting resource that can work with us and NRC to look at exterior lighting at City Facilities. I can provide more context when we chat in person.

Hey Mayor Burns,

Just wanted to send a quick update that I have looked into this a little and I'm leaning toward adding some can lights (or similar) to the soffit like pictured below. I'm certain this will light the stairs & east side of the building better, but have confirmed I will need HPC approval to proceed with a change of this nature, fortunately, the Unitarian Universalist Church just recently did a lighting update that Emily shared with me for some ideas/context.

Given the need to go through the HPC review/approval, I'm thinking we'll want to include a few soffit lights to the east elevation too (this will get a bit expensive whether it's 2 lights or 5-6). I'm also looking to add surveillance before the end of the FY and will probably combine this into 1 HPC application (also hoping to consolidate lift rental cost for the installs of both).

Long story short, due to the HPC review/approval requirement, this is going to take a lot more time to solve...

Happy Turkey Day!

Dear FOIA Officer:

Please consider this a freedom of information request for the following records:

All emails sent or received by Dean Kilburg, Mark Reinecke, Anaïs Bowring, William Malecki, Richard Marks, Brad Kosirog, Larry Furnish, Martha Paschke, Amy Mayer, Jeff Palmquist and Kevin Burns between Dec. 1, 2025 and Jan. 16, 2026, that include any of the following search terms in the subject, body or attachments of the email (please do individual searches for these keywords if possible):

"Shodeen"
"Dave Patzelt"
"HPC"

If this search would yield a burdensome amount of results, please contact me, as I am willing to narrow the scope of my request.

Please note: I know of no exemption that would allow these records to not be released, absent pinpoint redactions for private information such as Social Security Numbers. If your agency believes any parts of any records are exempt from disclosure, please provide an explanation to justify the redaction or withholding, and then provide the rest of the records. Please note that statute does not allow your agency to withhold documents in their entirety if only parts of the records may be exempt.

I'm requesting the records in electronic format, if they can be provided in that format. Otherwise, please provide the records in whatever format they are kept.

Hi Jeanne:

Thanks much. Because the City's response to this request will likely be replete with legally protected materials, I want to make sure we do not release attorney-client materials accidentally. So, please let me know when we have gathered responsive emails/documents (including responsive personal emails) and I will come review the same to make sure our response is appropriate.

Thanks.
